French File Firm Denial Of Part in Reich Plot

Protests Prominence Given Story in German Press.

Hitler's Private Army Is Doomed

Less Than 20 Per Cent of Storm Troopers to Be Retained.

By Louis P. Lochner,
(Associated Press Foreign Staff).
(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

Berlin, July 5 (AP).—France, through her Ambassador here, tonight formally and vigorously denied she was involved in the plot against Chancellor Hitler's government which was broken up by the week-end executions.

The denial was given out, and it was stated a formal protest will be made to the German government after the Nazi press had accused the late Gen. Kurt von Schleicher of having dealings with France.

The killing of Von Schleicher, who in 1932 was chancellor for 58 days, was justified, the newspapers insisted, on the basis of "the heinous crime of entering into negotiations with France, thereby giving the idea to Paris that the Nazi system is not going to last."

French Ambassador Andre Francois-Poncet branded the charge an "absurd fable" and protested strongly against tthe "great prominence" given to the story in German newspapers.

Promise Is Claimed.

The Ambassador was said by French sources to have been promised when he called at Wilhelmstrasse yesterday that the German press would not be permitted to drag France into the matter.

Hitler had accused some of the plotters of negotiating with a "foreign power" and there was much speculation as to what country was meant.

The German newspapers' story accused Von Schleicher, one of those executed by Hitler's men, of having dealings with France while he was chancellor in 1932.

French Foreign Minister Louis Barthou was accused of revealing the Von Schleicher plot to the British at Geneva May 30.

"Hitler's days are numbered," Barthou was represented as saying.

In addition to the French envoy, the American and British Ambassadors have called at the foreign office.

The French Ambassador's statement, French sources said, was made doubly emphatic because he learned his name had been mentioned since Von Schleicher was shot. The two men were understood to have dined together within the last few months, and this point was emphasized in some circles.

The Embassy explained that the dining had no significance as Francois-Poncet has may friends

Reds Capture Part of City

Mob Loots Houses and Shops in Amsterdam; One Killed.

Amsterdam, Holland, July 5 (AP).—A mob of Communists and unemployed persons tonight was in control of the Hordaan quarter, a workmen's section of the city.

Houses and shops were being looted and the section was in complete darkness after the mob had cut electric cables.

In fighting earlier in the day one man was killed and many were injured. The disorders were renewed at nightfall. The demonstrators had erected barricades which blocked all streets on entering the area.

Police and members of the sanitary service were mobilized and concentrated in and about the district. Officers hesitated to shoot or to charge through the barricades, hoping the disorder might be settled without further loss of life or bloodshed. Earlier in the day police fired a few shots and the mob countered with a barrage of bottles and other missiles.

The disorders were started by unemployed persons after a reduction in their dole by the municipality. They were joined by Communists.

R. G. Reid Named Alberta Premier

Edmonton, Alta., July 5 (AP).—R. G. Reid, provincial treasurer and minister of lands, was named today to become premier of Alberta, succeeding J. E. Brownlee, who resigned after trial of a seduction suit against him.

The two men visited Lieut. Gov. W. L. Walsh. Arrangements were made for Mr. Reid to take over the office on Monday or Tuesday.

While Brownlee's resignation carried with it the resignation of other members of the United Farmers' party cabinet, the new premier indicated he would keep virtually the same men in office.

San Antonio, Tex., July 5 (AP).—Capt. Harold K. Coulter, who elected to stand trial by courtmartial rather than accept a reprimand for alleged misconduct, was convicted today and ordered dismissed from the United States Army.

The courtmartial, conducted at secret hearings upon the defense's request, found Capt. Coulter guilty on seven counts, including four specific charges of intimacy with

Darrow NRA Review Board Is Dissolved

No Thanks or Flowers Go With Roosevelt Order Ending Service.

By Raymond Clapper.

Unaccompanied by any thanks or flowers, an executive order was made public at the White House late yesterday abolishing the Darrow National Recovery Review Board, which in three reports accused NRA of fostering monopoly and working to the disadvantage of the small business man.

This Presidential order was issued while the Capital was still echoing with the broadcast of Senator Borah, of Idaho, one of the sponsors of the Darrow board, who asserted that monopoly had become more intrenched than ever under the present Administration and announced his intention of carrying the issue to the country in a series of summer and fall speeches. In fact, the Senator left Washington yesterday to start his one-man campaign just before the White House made public the death warrant of the Darrow board.

Marvin McIntyre, White House secretary, explained that the order, dated June 30, and effective July 1, had been overlooked in the rush of activity attending President Roosevelt's departure on his Hawaiian cruise, and that it was being given to the public now merely to "keep the record straight."

In his order, President Roosevelt said the board had "substantially completed" the work for which it was established and remarked that since three members of the board had resigned, "any further investigations and reports would not be representative of the board as originally constituted, or serve to effecuate the purposes for which it was created."

Chairman Darrow resigned June 28. John F. Sinclair, of New York, and W. O. Thompson, of Illinois, also withdrew. Sinclair having quit some time ago because of disagreement with other board members. Although the board had expected to wind up its affairs in the near future, Charles Edward Russell, journalist and advisor to Darrow, said at the time of Mr. Darrow's resignation that there was a vast amount of data still to be assembled. W. W. Neal, North Carolina, was chosen chairman to continue until the board's dissolution.

There is every reason to believe

$50,000 Blaze Razes Stores; Arson Hinted

Mechanicsville Firemen Battle Flames for Hour; Suspect Caught.

Fire, believed to have been started by a colored robber, did between $30,000 and $50,000 damage in the business district of Mechanicsville, Md., early yesterday, and for more than an hour threatened to engulf the entire town.

The flames, which gained headway rapidly, were finally brought under control by firemen from Leonardtown, La Plata and Marburg, after the postoffice, the general store of Eugene Trice and a combination filling station and lunch stand, owned by James Herbert, had been destroyed.

Shortly before the blaze was discovered, at 2:30 a. m., Alfred Burroughs, a lunchroom employe, looked across the street as he was preparing to close his shop and saw a lone colored man emerge from the Trice store, carrying a suit of clothes on a hanger.

"Stop," he yelled, and darted after the man, who escaped on foot after dropping the clothing.

Burroughs went to Trice's home to tell him of the robbery. When the two returned and opened the door of the store, flames were leaping inside.

Within an hour most of Mechanicsville's 400 population had mobilized on the main street. Firemen had difficulty at first in pumping water from the wells, and willing citizens in pajamas and night dresses aided by dousing buckets of water on the flames.

The entire town, the houses of which are built close together, was menaced. At dawn, however, the danger had passed. Yesterday afternoon smoking ruins were all

Man Badly Beaten, Dragged Into Car

Witnesses Report Victim Brutally Handled.

Police last night were checking reports of witnesses that a man had been severely beaten as he rode in an automobile with three other men and a woman, and then had been thrown or fallen out of the car at Twelfth and O streets northwest.

The car is said to have been driven around the block and returned to the scene, one of the men getting out, hitting the prostrate man several times with a revolver, then dragging him back into the machine, after which they drove away. Witnesses said blows were still being rained upon the victim as the car disappeared.

A lookout was sent for a light sedan bearing Florida tags.

Siamese Twin Denied License; Plans Court Fight to Marry

New York, July 5 (AP).—Flatly refused permission to marry in two States because she is a Siamese twin, red-haired Violet Hilton and her would-be bridegroom, Maurice L. Lambert, decided tonight to wage a legal battle for the license.

In both New York and New Jersey officials were unyielding to pleas of Violet, accompanied, of course, by Daisy, the left half of the famous twins, and Lambert. They based their refusals on moral grounds.

The trio appeared first at the municipal license bureau in Manhattan, where a stammering clerk delayed them while he sought a legal refuge in the corporation counsel's office.

Their requets refused, the twins and Lambert journeyed to Newark, N. J., and there the perplexed clerk's refusal was based on the same moral grounds.

The trio then turned back to New York, and their attorney said he would start mandamus proceedings against city authorities tomorrow in Supreme Court.

The corporation counsel's office admittedly based the nonissuance of the license on the theory that a city has the right of discretition in their issuance.

The officials also voiced a suspicion that the application might be a publicity stunt for a forthcoming vaudeville tour of the twins, who are joined together at the hips.

Daisy was disturbed by the legal barriers placed in the romantic path of her twin sister and Lambert, the musical director of their act. Lambert is a native of Westernport, Md.

She said she plans to marry Harry Mason, a welterweight fighter in England, after he comes to this country, about six months hence.

U. S. Arms For Finish Crime War

50 New Agents to Aid in Nation's Greatest Drive.

Machine Guns, Fleet of Fast Cars Made Available.

By Robert C. Albright.

Equipped with crime's own weapons, an augmented staff of investigators and 17 new Federal statutes with teeth in them, the Department of Justice was arming last night to take gangland for a ride.

Director of Investigation J. Edgar Hoover announced plans to purchase a fleet of light, fast cars of the type used by hoodlums themselves in their ruthless war on society.

His disclosure followed announcement by Attorney General Homer S. Cummings that 50 new agents have been enrolled in the department's "Crime College" and over 100 more may be enlisted in the next few weeks.

Trained instructors, versed in criminal methods, are teaching agents to wield machine guns and sawed-off shotguns just as the gangster wields them, in preparation for the mightiest offensive in the department's history.

Funds Greatest Need.

Disappointed in the failure of Congress to provide an additional $700,000, so there would be no need to stint in this counter-maneuver, Justice officials have carefully canvassed available funds and are now read to fire.

Already, Director Hoover's staff has been increased to 484, and when full strength of the drive has been marshalled, over 600 will be in the well-drilled army aligned against a recalcitrant horde of organized criminals.

Even more elaborate plans were in the making before Congres curtailed the department's estimates. It had been Director Hoover's hope that Uncle Sam would go the racketeers one better by placing armored cars in the lanes most traveled by criminals and keeping fast planes close at hand for pursuit.

War to Be Ruthless.

But with equipment available, and that to be purchased under rigid Congresional limitations, Hoover expects to give an acounting that will rival the record already made.

Whetted by new signs of activity on the Dillinger front, and by recurring hold-ups and kidnapings more numerous than the department would like, Justice agents insist they are out to place the modern fast-shooting, hard-riding hoodlum in the American museum of antiques.

Already the Attorney General has potentially used up $22,500 of the $25,000 allotted him by Congress

Workers Get Rest Periods to Escape Blazing Sun's Rays

Official cognizance of the heat wave has been taken by District Highway and Engineering Department officials.

Hundreds of District employes are paid only when they actually work. They are on the per diem rolls. Under orders from the District Building, the men are not to be worked more than 15 minutes at a stretch under the scorching sun and the enervating humidity. For every 15 minutes work the men are to get five-minute rests.

"Everything has to be done with reason," Capt. Herbert C. Whitehurst, engineer of highways, explained. "It is impossible for a man to do as much work during extraordinarily hot days as he would usually do. The order isn't intended to stop work completely on any job each 15 minutes. The work will go on, but individual men will get rest periods. I didn't issue the order. It probably came from Maj. John C. Gotwals, engineer commissioner."

Mrs. Antonio Loses New Trial Appeal

Mother of Three Again Faces Electric Chair.

Ossining, N. Y., July 5 (AP).—Anna Antonio, mother of three children, was unaware tonight that she had been denied a new trial and that she again faces electrocution for the "insurance" slaying of her husband.

Unless Gov. Herbert H. Lehman intervenes, the 28-year-old woman and two men convicted with her of plotting her husband's murder will be executed during the next week.

Twice the Governor has granted the trio reprieves within an hour of the time fixed for execution.

Johnson Rests in N. Y.; Plays Golf With Baruch

New York, July 5 (AP).—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, was in New York today for a brief rest and played golf with Bernard M. Baruch, his war-time chief on the War Industries Board and frequently an associate in business.

With characteristic vigor, the administrator denied reports that he was ill.

The administrator said he expected to return to Washington tomorrow.

Storm Ends Heat Wave; 4 Stricken

Lightning Damages Home, 'Phone Poles; Loss Is $1,000.

Temperature Drops Fast In Three Hours; Humidity High.

Thundershowers, accompanied by lightning and in some instances hail, struck with terrific force late yesterday in scattered sections of Washington and adjacent territory. The storm came after a day of extremely high humidity. The mercury registered a maximum h e of 95 at 2 p. m. There were four heat prostrations here and in nearby Maryland before the storm brought relief.

Arthur J. Hendricks, 60, of 614 East Capitol street, an automobile salesman, collapsed in the 600 block o: H street southeast. He was treated at Casualty Hospital and taken to his home, where physicians said his condition was not serious.

Felled by the sun while at work, Fred Walton, 38, truck driver, of 1928 Thirty-fifth street northwest, collapsed at Twenty-sixth and Water streets. He was treated at Emergency Hospital.

Just before the storm struck at Landover, Md., John Gerstneter, 30, and Charles Robbins, 24, both of Baltimore and employed as operators in the Pennsylvania Railroad signal tower, were overcome by the heat, it was reported. They were taken to Emergency Hospital by the Bladensburg Rescue Squad. Their condition was undetermined.

During the rain, lightning struck telephone poles at Ninth and Aspen streets northwest and at Rhode Island and Eastern avenues northeast. No damage was reported.

Heavy Rain Falls.

Rain, amounting virtually to a cloudburst, fell in several sections of Prince Georges County. Bladensburg, Hyattsville and Riverdale were hit hardest, the Washington-Baltimore boulevard being inundated at these points. Trees were blown down and a bolt of lightning temporarily disrupted the electric current. The storm was equally heavy in Upper Marlboro, but only a light drizzle fell in the lower portion of the county.

In Winchester, Va., a 95-degree temperature was broken by an electric storm marked by a slight fall of hail. Extent of damage, if any, caused by the hail to apple orchards in that area, had not been ascertained last night.

While rainfall was heavy in portions of Montgomery County, it did not reach proportions of a cloudburst but lightning was almost continuous while the storm lasted. The home of Harold G. Haydon, of 9 East Thornapple street, Chevy Chase, Md., was struck by lightning and set on fire.

Fire Damage, $1,000.

Mrs. Haydon was alone. When she tried to call firemen the telephone was out of order. Neighbors responded to her call and turned in the alarm. The damage was estimated at $1,000.

In Washington the freakish gyrations of the weather apparently were very clear and understandable to Weather Bureau officials, but beyond the grasp of the average layman.

The humidity, for instance, was 75 at 8 a. m. yesterday, which is considered unusually humid. At that time it was hot, and no questions asked. Yet at 6 p. m., when the mercury registered only 78, the humidity was 95. It had dropped to 84 at 8 p. m. The weather man declined to go into it.

But there is more. The mercury stood at 95 at 2 p. m. Without any apparent reason it had dropped to 92 at 3 p. m. Then at 4 p. m. it hopped back to 94. From 94 it dropped to 78 at 6 p. m., and then to 74 at 7 p. m., a total decline of 20 degrees in three hours.

For today the Weather Bureau offers virtually the same schedule as to heat and humidity. Thundershowers are probable.

Life Given Slayer of 4, Irked By Yacht Noise

Tawas City, Mich., July 5 (U.P.). John A. Woods, 53, who confessed slaying four persons and wounding another because the noise of a yachting party kept him awake, was sentenced to life imprisonment.

The defendant, attacked by a brother of one of his victims as he sat in circuit court, was sentenced on charges of murdering Lloyd L. Hayes and his wife, Elizabeth. A brother of Mrs. Hayes struck the slayer half a dozen times in the courtroom.

Body of Mme. Curie Is Taken Secretly to Paris

Paris, July 5 (AP).—The body of Mme. Marie Curie, world's foremost woman scientist, was secretively brought to Paris today from Sallanches, guarded, like her work, from the gaze of a curious world.

The government announced tonight that in view of the Curie family's insistence that the burial be held in strictest privacy, it had abandoned plans for a national funeral. Officials and members of the family declined to reveal when and where the burial will take place.

San Francisco Police In Two Battles With Workers.

Governor Acts Swiftly in Crisis

Militia Equipped With New, Powerful Nauseating Gas.

San Francisco, July 5 (AP).—Three men were killed and more than 80 persons were shot, beaten or gassed here today as police fought strikers seeking to keep closed the Port of San Francisco, blocked since May 9 by a walkout of marine workers.

Hundreds of National guardsmen, backed by Gov. Frank Merriam to protect the State's property in view of "a state of tumult, riot and other emergencies," marched upon the waterfront tonight.

The fighting occurred in two phases as bluecoats set out to sweep the waterfront clear of union pickets, determined to stop the delayed movement of cargo from the State-owned piers and waterfront area. The melee embraced a large portion of the industrial district and backlashed into the foot of Market street before the eyes of homeward-bound commuters.

Bystander Wounded.

Innocent bystanders felt the sting of police bullets or clubs as the battle raged. Mrs. Josephine Fuetes, 42, was shot in the head as a slug crashed through a street car window.

Two of the men hit by slugs from police guns—one of them identified only as H. Sperry—died in a street before ambulances could reach them.

Dozens of persons received less serious injuries than the four-score seriously hurt.

The pickets had attacked trucks manned by nonunion workers and operating under police protection to clear the piers.

While streets were still echoing with the sound of police shotgun, pistol and gas bomb fire and blood was trickling along the curbs in full view of great street crowds, Acting Gov. Frank F. Merriam ordered the guardsmen to "protect State property" in the water-front district.

More Than 25,000 Involved.

The battles brought to a bloody climax the coastwise strike of longshoremen and other marine workers, which began May 9. More than 25,000 men are involved. The longshoremen are seeking mainly a change in the operation of "hiring halls," where men are employed and assigned. Nine other water-front unions struck in sympathy.

Merriam in his proclamation, said:

"Whereas there exists in the city

Roosevelt Visits Haiti; Urges Amity

President's Hope of Mutual Good Will Cheered By Natives.

Aboard U. S. S. Gilmer With Presidential Party, July 6 (U.P.).—President Roosevelt stepped ashore at Cap Haitien, chief port of Haiti, today and voiced an appeal that the people of the island republic carry on in a spirit of friendship with the United States after the early withdrawal of United States marines.

In genial good humor, the Chief Executive drank a toast to the Haitians as they cheered him, adding:

"To your government and people—may our friendship ever continue."

The President, making his first foreign call on his vacation cruise to Hawaii, was greeted by President Stenio Vincent and high government dignitaries as the cruiser Houston nosed into the blue waters of Cap Haitien's tropical harbor and dropped anchor.

Vincent, in a brief word of welcome, assured Mr. Roosevelt of the close relations and affection between the people of Haiti and America. He intimated that the Roosevelt Administration's withdrawal of marines, long garrisoned in the island, had gone far to remove hard feelings.

"The relations between America and Haiti have been restored on a basis of complete understanding," President Vincent said. "Very soon, within a month or six weeks, the last of the American marines will have been withdrawn."

The exchange of compliments and good-will messages came at a reception for the Roosevelt party at the spacious clubhouse ashore. The visitors drove through town in a parade cheered constantly by thousands of natives.

The Houston fired a 21-gun salute as the warship led the Presidential fleet into port at Cap Haitien. Her guns were answered from shore batteries.

After the clubhouse reception, President Vincent returned Mr. Roosevelt's call aboard the Houston. He was given another 21-gun salute. The return call was brief, and the Houston got under way in midafternoon for Puerto Rico, where the entourage is due tomorrow morning.

U. S. Monetary Policies Draw Critical Fire

Public Affairs Institute Speakers Support Gold Standard.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Charlottesville, Va., July 5.—With the New Deal monetary policies being subjected to a running fire of criticism by contenders for restoration of a world-wide gold standard, and with discussions of Russian communism and Pan-American problems, the sessions of the Institute of Public Affairs today had a distinct international flavor.

Dr. Leo Pasvolsky, noted economist of the Brookings Institution, presented the case for an international gold standard, while Dr. E. A. Kincaid, of the University of Virginia, analyzed the present monetary silver situation. He argued that recent legislation had weakened this country's monetary position. Both speakers stressed the international aspects of the money problems.

Orestes Ferrera, former Cuban Ambassador to the United States, in a speech before the evening session of the institute, called for "economic disarmament" and proposed that the nations of the Western Hemisphere get together in an American economic conference to remove trade barriers.

Machinery for the pacific settlement of disputes in Latin America and the method of its operation were discussed by Francis White, former Assistant Secretary of State, and Dr. Warren Kelchner, an expert on Latin-American affairs in the State Department.

Efforts for international equality for women and the victory of women at the Pan-American conference at Montevideo were discussed by Miss Doris Stevens. Earlier in the day, Dr. Oakley Johnson, an orthodox Communist, explained the tenets of that political faith and urged it, as others have done, as the most perfect form of democracy. He thought it possible that communism may get a foothold in this country, probably in the next three to five years, depending on the turn of economic developments.

Ever since the discussions of the institute of public affairs opened last Monday, greater unanimity of opinion on the Roosevelt monetary policies and its "good neighbor attitude" toward Latin America has

Key West to Rival Bermuda If Receiver's Plan Succeeds

Key West, Fla., July 5 (AP).—This southernmost city in the United States tonight was in the hands of a receiver who hoped to overcome years of misfortune and make it a second Bermuda by reviving a lifeless tourist trade and pumping fresh blood into its stricken veins.

Julius F. Stone, jr., State Federal Emergency Relief administrator, today notified Gov. Sholtz he would take over the affairs of the stranded city and county and attempt to bring back the prosperity it once enjoyed.

Gov. Sholtz requested Stone to act after city and county officials, faced with a seemingly hopeless economic condition because of a shift of trade, called upon the State and Federal Governments, for a new deal.

Once the largest city in Florida, the town, situated on a tiny island only 90 miles from Havana, Cuba, gradually has lost its industries and tourist trade, the population dwindling away from 18,000 in 1920 to a few more than 12,000 in 1930. Today half of those left are on the Emergency Relief rolls.

Stone said the relief cost for the next five years would be $2,000,000, and, as a business proposition, it was better to put the population on its feet economically.

Faced with providing a living for the stranded people or moving them off the island, Stone quickly approved giving them a chance at home in favor of sending them to Tampa, Miami, or other cities.

Key West's population is largely made up of people of Latin origin who came here from Cuba, many of them to escape unsettled conditions in that country.

$60 Slayer Gets Life Term

Sentenced Less Than Day After Arrest; Woman Also Charged.

Jefferson, Wis., July 5 (AP).—Less than 24 hours after his arrest, Carl Church, 26-year-old Kansan, was en route tonight to serve a life sentence in Waupun Prison for the slaying of Earl Gentry, 47, one time bodyguard of a former Indiana Ku Klux Klan leader.

Accepting punishment for the crime he termed "a good job for society," Church stood calmly when Circuit Judge George Grimm, in a specially called sesion of court, pronounced sentence late today.

Immediately afterward, Sheriff Joseph T. Lange started off for Waupun with his prisoner, who had pleaded guilty to the charge of slaying Gentry, once bodyguard and close associate of D. C. Stephenson, in justice court earlier in the day.

Mrs. Carrie Gill, 59, a well to do widow who had won the sobriquet "sunshine lady" because of befriending Gentry, Church and other needy persons of the community, pleaded not guilty to a first degree murder charge. She was accused by authorities of plotting the death of Gentry and of paying Church $60 to kill him.

Her brother, Ferdinand Brobst, charged with being an accessory after the fact, also pleaded not guilty. He was accused of assisting Church to remove Gentry's body from Mrs. Gill's home.

Small Boat Overturns; 3 Drown, One Is Saved

Franklin City, Va., July 5 (AP).—Three men were drowned and a fourth rescued after a long swim when their small boat capsized near Chincoteague Island last night.

The dead were Howard Godwin, George Justice and John Marshall. Their bodies were found today by Coast Guards. Eddie Townsend, fourth member of the party, was picked up after he had almost reached the shore.

been obvious than on any other. The latter policy has been universally cheered, while the former policy, with one or two exceptions, has been denounced. So it was today.

Dr. Pasvolsky contended that restoration of the gold standard was necessary in operation of an international monetary system and that such a system is "indispensable to a proper functioning of trade and financial relations among nations."

He warned, however, that if the gold standard is to function "no important country should permit its basic economic policies to get substantially out of line with those pursued by other important countries." Abandonment of the gold standard, he explained, under present conditions, is tantamount to a decision in favor of economic nationalism. He made it clear that his sympahties were with an international approach to the money question.

Money Question.

"The theoretical advantages of freedom for national planning, made possible by nationalistic isolation, are far outweighed by advantages of international monetary organization," he maintained.

When Prof. James G. Smith, of Princeton University, suggested a bimetallic standard as preferable to a paper standard of nationalistic managed currency—he called the latter "the worst evil"—Dr. Pasvolsky dissented.

He contended that the silver world was unimportant, that this country now has sufficient gold to support a reasonable amount of currency and that if there were not in this country a well-organized agitation for silver coming from persons directly interested in the metal, silver might be a clamorous question, but it certainly would not be a politically important question."

Aspects of the silver question were dealt with in detail by Dr. Kincaid, who, after the Smith suggestion, said he thought bimetalism preferable to any paper standard, made it clear he preferred above all a return to gold and that he was opposed to monetary experimentation. He said he had little faith in the Administration's recovery efforts on the monetary side so far.

Value of Silver.

Dr. Kincaid, in explaining the recently enacted silver act, contended that silver will remain "a purely domestic and credit currency as long as the market value of silver is less than the legal tender value of the dollar coin," and that it would have no use in the settling of international balances. He added that as that burden must fall on gold, the yellow metal "constitutes the real reserve back of the new silver as well as all other forms of currency."

"The conclusion must be," he continued, "that the silver legislation enacted at Washington has weakened our own monetary system and has placed new obstacles in the way of a return to a sound international monetary system so essential to recovery here and elsewhere throughout the world.

"In essence, the entire silver program of the present Administration has been political rather than economic in character and is only remotely connected with problems of recovery which, as was stated at the beginning, can be worked out on a permanent satisfactory basis only to the extent that long-run international economic [illegible] being is made the objective. This statement depends for its soundness upon the assumption that the United States acting alone will not be able to raise the world price of silver to a level such that other nations will be able or willing to consider a program like our own.

"Moreover, who can say that the friends of silver and the inflationists will be satisfied with the gains so far achieved? In view of the fact that measures so far adopted are not likely to lead to inflation through silver, it is reasonable to suppose that the silver block will demand and possibly attain more drastic steps.

Price Level Drops.

"Indeed, the political fate of this Administration, or that which succeeds it, depends very considerably upon its ability to prevent a renewed downward trend in the price level."

Dr. Ferrera contended that "economic disarmament is more important than political disarmament."

"By a process of constant reciprocal aggressions, we have achieved at such confusion in finance, in currency, in quotas, in prohibitions of imports, in tariffs and in payments, that it appears inconceivable that at the present time there should still be commercial activities and some honest merchants.

"We have abandoned all the principles which constitute the only basis of honorable existence. We have gone so far as to consider each case only as to its immediate importance and from a view-point of appearances."

The former Cuban diplomat said that the people should realize from their past experience that "there can not be prosperity in one country and misery in another—that the laws of economics are universal and that nationalism can only be considered as though it were a straw grasped by a shipwrecked person in hope of delaying death for a few minutes."

"The countries which consider their own riches independently of the riches of other countries commit the same mistake as the medieval peer who took care of his own castle but did not bother about the hygienic conditions in the neighboring homes of his serfs," Dr. Ferrera said.

"The plague came and from the huts it spread to the castle and killed the dwellers of both."

Trail Now Hot.

Officials want to strike while the trail is hot, anxious to use every iota of the new powers granted them in the 17 unprecedented Federal crimes bills enacted last session.

Strengthening of the department, both in personnel and equipment, is essential, they point out, quoting from Prof. Raymond Moley's recent report.

"The passage of laws enlarging the police powers of the Federal Government and strengthening the position of the Federal Government in prosecutions, is not enough to meet the situation," wrote the Administration's former No. 1 brain-truster.

"Unless adequate additions are authorized the new powers will remain wholly unexercised, and the impressive record already made by the department will be heavily discounted by the hopeless effort to investigate cases too numerous for its personnel."

Moley insisted the investigative staff should be increased to not less than 1,000. Attorney General Cummings says this is impossible under greatly curtailed Congressional appropriations.

Snake Crawls in Bed And Bites Child, 4

Atlanta, July 5 (AP).—A rattlesnake crawled into bed with 4-year-old John Hill Vickers last night while the youngster was asleep and sank its fangs into his left hand.

Quick action by the boy's father, awakened by the child's screams, probably saved the child's life, physicians said. The father, John Hill Vickers, jr., applied a tourniquet and rushed to a hospital where antivenom serum was administered. Mr. Vickers shot the snake.

Reno Divorce Granted Mrs. George B. Trible

Reno, Nev., July 5 (AP).—George B. Trible, Washington, D. C., surgeon and a commander in the Naval Medical Corps, was divorced here today by Mrs. Nina A. Trible.

She charged extreme cruelty. The couple married December 8, 1916, at St. Charles, Mo.

Coulter Convicted By Court-Martial

Mrs. Alice Traylor Morgan, divorced wife of William F. Morgan, wealthy San Antonio oil man.

"I haven't a thing to say," Capt. Coulter said after the verdict.

The verdict was returned shortly after Mrs. Morgan and the captain's wife drove to the scene of the courtmartial at the staff post here today in the same automobile.

Hagood to Pass on Sentence.

The verdict was officially given out at the command of military authorities. It had been expected the verdict would be withheld unless Capt. Coulter chose to reveal it.

The sentence will have to be passed on by reviewing authorties and approved by President Roosevelt. Maj. Gen. Johnson Hagood, commander of the Eighth Corps Area, in this instance will be the reviewing authority.

The charges of which Capt. Coulter was found guilty were:

Intimacies with Mrs. Morgan January 1 and April 1, 1934, at Mrs. Morgan's home.

Intimacies with Mrs. Morgan at a Campbellton ranch February 1, 1934, and November 5, 1933.

Accused of Breaking Arrest.

Wrongfully caused Corpl. G. R. Perry and Private Been E. Creel to obtain pistols from the supply sergeant of their company and act as guards at Mrs. Morgan's home.

Failed and neglected to pay $480 due as house rent.

Breaking arrest after he had been restricted to the limits of San Antonio by going to Mrs. Morgan's home May 25.

Breaking arrest June 5 by going to Mrs. Morgan's home and remaining there until 2 a. m. June 6.

France Files Formal Denial Of Part in Reich Plot

among influential Germans, with whom he dines frequently.

Meanwhile, it was revealed by officials of the Nazi party that Chancellor Hitler's private army of 2,000,000 Storm Troopers, among whose leaders the shots of firing squads fell thickest, is doomed.

These officials confirmed reports that after the July vacation the place of storm troopers in German life will be greatly changed, indicating less than 20 per cent of the men will be retained.

Estimates heretofore have been that 80 per cent of the troopers would be retired.

The protest from France was only one of a number of harassments faced by the Hitler government which sought peaceful control at the cost of so many lives.

The nation was apprehensive as reports were heard of disturbances and dissatisfaction in the provinces —particularly in Bavaria and Silesa —and of new anti-Jewish movements.

Papen's Fate Uncertain.

The economic difficulties of German farmers is another source of possible difficulty.

The final fate of Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen, conservative non-Nazi friend of President Paul von Hindenburg, remained to be determined.

He still held his office. But there was semiofficial talk he would be demoted to lower rank in the cabinet, and would take a leave of absence.

Von Papen's office was dismantled, even the furniture being removed, and police last night searched his house again.

An all-Nazi staff will take over the work in the vice chancellory after alterations of the building, it was revealed, the new men replacing close aids of Von Papen who were shot to death in Hitler's "purge" last Saturday and Sunday.

Nazi chieftains prepared for a congress in Flensburg, Schleswig-Holstein, to discuss their position from all angles.

Joseph Goebbels, propaganda minister, and Adolf Wagner, Bavarian leader who took part in the first move sagainst the rebels, were there today awaiting Hitler.

Hindenburg Active.

President von Hindenburg, who protected Von Papen from harm through an order to the Reichswehr (regular army), and apparently prevented Hitler from dropping the vice chancellor from the cabinet, took active public part in the crisis today.

Using a cane and accompanied at all times by a physician, the 86-year-old president formally received the King and Queen of Siam at his country estate at Neudeck, East Prussia.

He appeared rather pale, but no visible marks were left by the stirring events of the last few days.

The pallor and the aged president's halting gait were attributed to an incurable infirmity from which men of his age frequently suffer.

The President, who left Berlin June 5 in precarious health, appered to have been aided materially by the bracing air of east Prussia.

In Vienna, the official Wiener Zeitung published unconfirmed reports that the aged President had taken a rejuvenation treatment.

Visitors Return.

The Von Papen family apparently were allowed freedom of movement, since Frau von Papen was seen on the street near her home. She was strolling alone, apparently in deep thought.

"You have had exciting times of late," said a correspondent.

"Yes, it wasn't exactly nice," she replied.

"We had visitors again last night," she said, after glancing up and down the street. "Not even the kitchen was spared.

"Naturally we would like a different 'watch' from the one now posted before our house. Of what good is a watch if it lets persons through?"

She hurried on after indicating she would say nothing further.

A government spokesman, in the midst of disturbing rumors, reiterated and emphasized that summary executions are ended and showed the clear desire of the government to have the public forget Hitler's ruthless methods.

"Everybody is tired," one official said. "We want to forget about the past and continue our constructive work for the future.

"All who figured in the week-end drama, from the chancellor down, are anxious that the vacation month (July), shall really be one of family life and recuperation.

"Whatever further consequences the treachery of a few leaders may draw in its wake can well be left for August and later.

Special Courts Closed.

"The special emergency courts which condemned the traitors to death have ceased to function. All further suspects have been handed over to the regular courts. There will be no further executions."

The number of those "handed over," like the number killed, remained unrevealed by official sources.

It became more and more evident the "official list" of those executed —said by the government to number "under 50," but placed much higher by others—may never be given out.

The post named as that to which Von Papen may be demoted was Saar commissioner, but the question arose in many minds as to whether this treatment of his protege will be acceptable to the aged President.

Hess Mentioned.

One of Von Papen's secretaries said the vice chancellor will remain in Berlin, but a Nazi spokesman insisted he will go elsewhere for his "leave of absence" because of "ill health."

Rudolph Hess, minister without portfolio, has been named by some party leaders as likely to succeed Von Papen, in event the latter's demotion is carried through.

Heretofore, Hermann Wilhelm Goering had been regarded as Hitler's choice for the place.

It was said by some spokesmen today that Goering, who holds a long list of offices, already has more power than any other man in Germany, except Hitler.

It Wasn't Illegal, So Four Go Free On Drunk Charge

Danville, Va., July 5 (Spl.).—A judicial construction that there was technically no law against drunken driving in Virginia between March 22 and June 7 brought liberty to four Danville men in the Corporation Court today.

The court held that, through an oversight, the new ABC act was not effective from its passage, yet the old law had been repealed. Hence an interregnum.

One of the four men dismissed was Harvey Kent, a former policeman dismissed from the force for drunken driving. He stood today as dismissed, however.

Hull Studies Germany Debt Protest Note

Agreement to Pay British Spurs Strong U. S. Objections.

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Hull yesterday began a study preliminary to drafting a strongly worded note to demand from Germany treatment equal to that accorded any other country in interest payments on Young and Dawes bonds.

Hull was out of Washington over July 4 when Great Britain and Germany reached an agreement providing for payment to British bondholders at the expense of other nationals. He returned late yesterday, and immediately gave his attention to the question of discrimination against Americans.

Undersecretary Phillips, in Hull's absence, informed newspapermen that Germany had not yet answered the last American note concerning the German moratorium. In that communication Hull rejected German excuses for the moratorium on all foreign obligations, and insisted particularly on equality of treatment for American bondholders.

Need Not Await Reply.

It would not be necessary, however, Phillips said, for the State Department to receive a reply before again calling the question to the attention of the German government.

Under the plan worked out by British and German committees in London, British investors, holding approximately $144,194,070 in Dawes and Young bonds (23.83 per cent of the outstanding total of both issues) will receive interest payments during the next six months.

Of that total, $87,115,140 (52.03 per cent) are Dawes bonds nd $56,988,930 (13.04 per cent) are Young bonds.

While British investors will be receiving interest on pound bonds, American investors in dollar bonds will be losing approximately $9,250,000 in interest annually. Interest losses on Young 5½ per cent bonds were estimated at $5,000,000, and on Dawes 7 per cent bonds at $4,250,000.

The latest available comparative figures were for last May. They showed that $604,638,102 in Young and Dawes bonds in all currencies were still outstanding. Of that grand total $437,241,045 were in Young bonds and $167,397,057 in Dawes bonds. In dollar bonds, there are $63,791,600 of Dawes and $91,305,600 of Young bonds.

$2,310,000 Redeemed.

Of the total of $63,791,600 in Dawes dollar bonds, $2,310,000 have been redeemed in this country by the German government during the last half fiscal year. No figures concerning any redemption of bonds issued in other currencies in other countries were available.

The United States is situated differently from Great Britain. Germany buys approximately twice as much from the United States as this country purchases from Germany, leaving a surplus of American funds in that country.

State Department officials have not, consequently, given any consideration to the establishment here of a clearing house which would impound German funds.

Great Britain and France both threatened to establish clearing houses to collect interest payments for their nationals.

Noted Woman Attorney Dies

Hope Keachie Thompson, Former Washingtonian, Ill Six Weeks.

Brantford, Ontario, July 5 (AP).—Hope Keachie Thompson, former New York and Washington attorney who held important posts on a number of U. S. Government tribunals and was widely known as a diplomat, died today after an illness of six weeks.

She was a granddaughter of Henry Yardington, one of the most prominent of Brantford's early pioneers.

Born in London, Ontario, she was educated largely in the United States, first at the Washington Law School and later at Columbia University.

For nearly 20 years Miss Thompson served in the counsellor's office of the United States Department of State.

She handled many international cases for the Washington Government and in 1914 was assistant to Walter Hines Page, United States Ambassador to the Court of St. James.

and county of San Francisco a State of tumult, riot, and other emergencies, or imminent danger thereof, and there are present therein tumultous, riotous and unlawful assembly with the intent to do violence to person and property therein, and to resist the laws of the State of California and of the United States of America:

"Now therefore I, Frank F. Merriman, Governor of the State of California and by virtue thereof commander-in-chief of the militia of the State of California, do hereby call and order, and authorize the adjutant general of the State of California to forthwith call and order into active service such portion of the active militia of the State of California as may be necessary to protect life and property, and to maintain peace and order in said city and county and said adjutant general is hereby authorized and ordered to forthwith take such action or actions as may be necessary for the proper protection and preservation of life and property and the maintainence of peace and order in said city and county of San Francisco."

Equipped With Powerful Gas.

Adjt. Gen. Seith E. Howard, who received orders to mobilize 2,000 of his guardsmen at their armories while the fighting was in progress, said the militia forces of seven cities would be concentrated in the strike-torn area.

Equipped with a new and powerful nauseating gas, as well as pistols, rifles, machine guns and automatic rifles, the guardsmen began mobilizing at the San Francisco Armory immediately.

The 159th Infantry, under Maj. David P. Barrow, veteran educator and Army officer, was ordered mobilized at Berkeley and the 143d Field Artillery was instructed to prepare for possible action. Both are California Guard units.

Col. R. E. Mittelstaedt, of the National Guard, warned the public that the Embarcadero, the State-owned thoroughfare paralleling the San Francisco piers, would not be a safe place for "persons whose reasons for being there are not sufficient to run the risk of serious injury."

"Our troops are officered by World War veterans and we propose to undertake the duty as soldiers in the same manner that we would undertake a war-time mission," he said.

Many strikers fell under police clubs and some of them were carried away by fellow unionists. The police shot gas bombs into a small hotel occupied by sailors, who came out, choking and cursing.

That raised the temper of the pickets and they cut loose with a barrage of cobblestones wrested from the street. The police replied, lowering their pistols and shotguns to get effective results from their fire. One by one the strikers fell and their ranks drew back, but they fought fiercely as they retreated and police cars bearing three machine guns rushed to the scene.

Strikers Driven Off.

Gradually the strikers gave way and the machine guns were not brought into action. Union men continued to linger, however, and the mopup squads went to work. In this phase of the battle the strikers were driven off the embarcadero and westward up Mission street.

Hot in pursuit, the police sent a gas bomb into the headquarters of the International Longshoremen's union nearby. Ralph Mallen, of the longshoremen's publicity committee, emerged from the building carrying a man stripped to the waist and blood smeared. The man had been shot through the shoulder. Mallen said two other men with bullet wounds were lying in the building, but the tear gas had prevented him from reaching them.

The police drive pressed the strikers northward up Steuart street to Market, scene of the preparedness day bomb explosion of 1916 in which 10 persons were killed and 40 injured. It was for that explosion that Tom Mooney and Warren K. Billings were convicted of murder and eventually sentenced to life imprisonment.

At Market street fighting was in full view of the homeward-bound commuters. They crowded onto the pedestrian viaduct crossing the embarcadero, between Market street and the ferry building. The structure became so packed with humanity that the police ordered it cleared, fearing an accident.

"Cleverest Detective" In France Faces Probe

Paris, July 5 (AP).—Inspector Bony, known as the "cleverest detective in France," was placed under investigation today by a parliamentary committee because of his mysterious activities in connection with the Stavisky affair.

Bony was commended by former Premier Albert Sarraut for recovering missing check stubs involved in the Scavisky case. The inspector had been criticized because of a meeting with a 'mysterious personality" before he recovered the stubs.

Darrow Board's Life Is Ended By Stroke of Roosevelt Pen

that the Administration has not been happy with the work of this board, which was set up in response to demands by Senators Borah and Nye of North Dakota, to investigate charges that NRA codes aided monopoly. It was created as a result of the clamor set up in the Senate and was regarded largely as a safety valve for critics of NRA.

NRA Criticism Grows.

The Administration is moving in an entirely different way to correct defects in the recovery program which are giving rise to increasing criticism. The first major action was the organization of the industrial emergency committee a few days ago with Donald R. Richberg as director. Subsequent inquiry has disclosed much more behind this move then appeared on the surface. President Roosevelt is in effect setting up a general staff of recovery under direction of Mr. Richberg, in the hope that under this even-tempered negotiator, who was one of the drafters of the recovery act and NRA general counsel for the last year, the recovery machinery can be made to run harmoniously and effectively.

Within the Administration it has been recognized that the principal recovery lieutenants were not working closely enough together. They were more like a group of opera stars without a director. Even the executive council and the emergency council, which were set up to pull heads of recovery agencies and regular Government departments together proved unwieldy. They are being continued under temporary direction of Mr. Richberg, in the absence of Frank C. Walker, who was executive secretary of both. But the real hope of action is now placed in the newer and smaller industrial emergency committee.

Big Four Members.

It consists of Secretary of the Interior Ickes (who also is public works administrator), Secretary of Labor Perkins, Recovery Administrator Johnson and Relief Administrator Hopkins, with Mr. Richberg as director and the channel through which the group will report to the President. The purpose here was to form a small, workable, compact committee of those whose activities in carrying out the industrial recovery program are most likely to conflict, and whose coordination is essential to balanced progress.

It is through this committee, and especially through Mr. Richberg as director, that the Administration hopes to resolve some of the conflicts which have grown up around big and little business and which have provided the basis for the monopoly charges of Senator Borah, Senator Nye and the Darrow board.

Gen. Johnson and the Federal Trade Commission are in direct conflict as to policy. Gen. Johnson's purpose is to bring industry into cooperation under Government supervision and to restrict competition within specified limits. Under this theory, he carried price-control devices into numerous codes and, contrary to earlier anti-trust laws, under certain codes it was made mandatory for business men to inform each other of the prices they were charging, so that there would be no undercutting. The Federal Trade Commission has attempted to follow the earlier anti-trust policy of forcing price competition.

Borah Off to Chicago.

Reconcilement of these conflicting policies will be one of Mr. Richberg's hardest jobs. One of the reasons he was selected was that he has worked closely with Gen. Johnson and has his confidence to an extent that it is expected he will be able to bring about changes of NRA policy more effectively than anyone who had not worked inside the organization. However, just how far he will move in the direction of revising NRA policy is yet to be disclosed.

But he is aware, as are many others in the Administration, that the tide of protest against some features of NRA is becoming too strong to resist indefinitely.

Senator Borah left yesterday for Chicago, where he will rest for several days before starting his speaking campaign. He said that he had received many invitations but had decided on no itinerary.

Meantime he received many messages of congratulation on his broadcast which warned that bureaucracy at Washington is menacing liberty and charging that while monopoly thrived under Administration measures his own party seemed unwilling to touch the issue.

But Senator James P. Pope (Democrat), the other Senator from Idaho, took issue with his colleague.

"The Senator made a strong address," he said. "He was at his best in criticizing certain phases of the Administration program.

"His attack upon bureaucracy in the abstract will meet with sympathetic response, but the people will continue to insist upon Government help in their problems.

"That the rank and file of the people are less interested in legislative concepts of liberty and are more interested in the practical measures which promote human welfare is very apparent to me.

"Mere criticism can never take the place of a constructive program to meet the practical needs of our people."

Representative Fred A. Britten (Republican), Chicago, said:

"Senator Borah's blast in the interest of the consumer is the first real appeal for the protection of the man who pays.

Another Silent Radio.

"Roosevelt policies have given birth to price-fixing monopolies, which in turn have sent prices up much faster than wages.

"The production of everything a man eats and wears should not be artificially suppressed when 10,000,000 adults are out of employment and 16,000,000 people are on the Federal relief rolls, with barely enough food to keep body and soul together."

Senator Borah received a message signed "F. S. Skinner" from Providence, R. I., stating that a radio station there had gone silent just before the address was due to begin. Senator Borah said he did not attach any importance to this and had no indicaton there was a plot to limit the scope of his broadcast. Last spring when he broadcast a criticism of NRA and AAA, he was cut off from a number of radio stations in the Northwest farm belt.

16 Anti-Fascists Given 2-to-10-Year Sentences

Rome, July 5 (AP).—A special tribunal for the defense of the state sentenced 16 alleged anti-Fascists, all from Bologna, to prison terms ranging from two to ten years today.

Dalife Mazza was sentenced to ten years as ringleader of the group which was said to be engaged in propaganda activities against the Black Shirt regime in recent months.

The fire was one of the worst in the history of St. Marys County.

Virginian Is Wounded Playing With Revolver

Danville, Va., July 5 (Spl.).—Gurney Nicks, 18, was brought to Memorial Hospital this evening, accidentally wounded in the head, while toying with a loaded revolver at the home of his uncle, William Wilson, at New Design, he said.

The bullet entered his right eye and emerged from his ear. His condition was grave.

PWA Providing Shopmen's Pay

20,000 Railroaders Get Equipment Work Through Loans.

Twenty thousand railway shopmen, employed by thirteen railways, are getting their wages indirectly from the PWA, as of May 15, Public Works Administrator Ickes revealed yesterday.

The wages are coming out of loans to the railways for repairing old cars and locomotives and for building new equipment. The loans total $51,923,343 out of the $199,607,800 alloted for railroad construction. The 20,000 shop employes, who were paid $792,474 between May 1 and 15, comprise 18 per cent of all shopmen employed by the thirteen companies.

Frank C. Wright, director of the division of transportation loans, said that many shops have been reopened and others kept open by PWA loans, and thousands of men have been put back to work in railroad towns.

Brother of Valentino To Become U. S. Citizen

Los Angeles, July 5 (AP).—Alberto Guglielmo Valentino, 42, brother of the late Rudolph Valentino, famous screen lover of the silent films, will arrive here next Monday to take out his first papers for American citizenship, his attorney said today.

With his wife, Ada, and son, Jean, 19, Valentino will live at Falcon Lair, the late Rudolph Valentino estate in Beverly Hills.

Hayes Attacks Pacifist Ideals As Red Menace

Legion Commander Chief Speaker to Educators in Session Here.

Edward A. Hayes, National commander of the American Legion, last night assailed peace propaganda, deplored the spread of pacifist sentiment in colleges and universities and urged the Nation's teachers to combine old-fashioned patriotism with their instruction.

Addressing the National Education Association, he expressed amazement at the argument teachers might get better pay if less money were spent on armies and navies.

"It is amazing to me that an educator," he said, "would advocate disarmament as a means of maintaining permanent peace. No organization on earth wants to perpetuate peace any more than does the Legion."

Hayes was the second American Legion speaker on the day's program. At the morning session, Russell Cook, director of the Legion's National Americanism Commission, told delegates and guests the classroom is no place to discuss new principles in government.

Sweet Also Speaks.

Wednesday the assembled teachers were urged to encourage their pupils to consider the latest developments in economics and government in an address by William E. Sweet, an aid to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson and former Governor of Colorado.

"Educators who cling to the patriotism of the founders of our Republic and who cast out the strange tenets of radical groups that are submersive to our system of government form the backbone of our future Americanism," Hayes said.

"Inversely, educators who implant subversive ideas in the minds of youths are doubly dangerous to the welfare of our country. Thank God, modern means of communication make it possible for every person to know with very little effort the purpose and motives behind every wave of radical thought."

Declaring he was shocked by the remark, overheard earlier, that the country would be better off if money spent on armaments were diverted to teachers' pay envelopes, the Legion commander stated his organization favors better pay for teachers, but an adequate defense is necessary to insure the continued existence of our schools.

Flays Pacifist Motives.

"If the United States of America is to keep out of another war it will be because we will have a navy that can adequately protect our shore lines and our shipping, and because we have the nucleus of an army of sufficient strength to send an efficient force into the field if necessary," he said.

Hailing the Reserve Officers Training Corps and Citizens Military Training Camps as a peace safeguard, Hayes launched into a tirade against students who rebel at military training and those who have pledged not to bear arms in event of war.

"It all interlocks beautifully," the convention was told, "with the propaganda of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace and the objective of trying to get Americans entangled in the League Court, with the further motive of cancellation of war debts."

He cited a dispute between students of Texas Christian University and the American Legion because an undergraduate leader advocated resistance to edicts of the War Department in case of National emergency.

"One of the professors," said Hayes, "of the university stated he would rather see his two hands cut off than be a member of the forces of any nation, including the United States of America, in the event of a war in the future."

Pleads for Old Loyalty.

He deplored the recent movement at Ohio State University against military training and was "astounded" by the action of several hundred Columbia students a few weeks ago, who resolved unconditionally not to comply with War Department orders in event of conflict.

"This same thing is going on over the country in various universities," the speaker declared. "It makes me realize all the more why we had better be exercising our intelligence to support rather than to undermine the old-fashioned patriotism, which we call Americanism."

Pacifist sentiment, likewise, is creeping into the churches, he said.

"I do not like to deride even by implication any denominational religious sect, but when the official publication of the Epworth League displays an article in black type, written by the secretary of the Methodist Federation for Social Service, advocating that the young Christian man join the Army in the event of war and destroy munitions, I believe it is time for the American people to know about it."

The article, he said, was published March 3 and recommended four choices to its young readers.

Four War Alternatives.

"No. 1 was called the honorable way of patriotism, and to be honorable, it was pointed out, one must be cannon fodder and be shot, dismembered or gassed.

"No. 2 pointed out that one could be a conscientious objector with what was called high courage.

"No. 3 advocated that the youth join the forces and after getting in to commit sabotage, to destroy machinery and not carry out orders.

"It stated," Hayes continued, "that if that appears against moral principles, if that is to lie and deceive, that youth need have no qualms of conscience because one lies or deceives if he engaged in any war."

The fourth choice "calls for sabotage but with a deliberate intent to get rid of the present system of which war is a part," Hayes said.

The American Legion looked in its "Red Network," a directory "in which are listed those people who have had connection with subversive movements and communism," and discovered it contained the name of Miss Winifred L. Chappell, who wrote the article.

Sees Radical Taint.

Hayes pledged the support of 11,003 legion posts in making schools guardians of good citizenship and, concluding, said:

"The advocates of communism have thrown a smoke screen of peace propaganda around their objective. Let us be alive to the possibility of communism attaining too great a grip on the educational channels of our Nation and to the danger of obliterating in the hearts of our citizens the love of that freedom, liberty and democracy which made possible this great republic of ours."

Establishment of a National bureau, to promote the expansion and greater use of libraries was advocated by Carl H. Milam, secretary of the American Library Association, who shared the speakers' platform with Hayes last night.

"A complete system of public and school libraries, which will make books and reading guidance easily available to every citizen, is a necessary part of the public equipment for civilized living under the New Deal," he said.

Dr. H. L. Smith Chosen to Head Teachers' Body

Dr. Henry Lester Smith, dean of the School of Education at Indiana University, was elected president of the National Education Association yesterday on the eve of the closing o. its seventy-second annual convention.

R. E. Offenhauer, superintendent of Lima, Ohio, schools, was elected treasurer for the ensuing year. Dr. Smith had three opponents, Offenhauer two. There were no contests in balloting for 11 vice presidents and 51 State directors.

Born 58 years ago in Bloomington, Ind., the seat of Indiana University, Dr. Smith's career has covered educational work in Minnesota, the Canal Zone and Pennsylvania, as well as in his native State.

He is the author of books and articles on education, schoolhouse planning, vocational guidance and other related subjects. During the past year he served as treasurer of the N. E. A. executive committee.

Other candidates for president were Joseph H. Saunders, of Newport News, Va.; Orville C. Pratt, of Spokane, Wash., and William H. Holmes, of Mount Vernon, N. Y.

Offenhauer defeated George W. Wannamaker, of Griffin, Ga., and William T. Longshore, of Kansas City, Mo.

Officials said campaigning and balloting were the most spirited in years. Voting took place between 8 a. m. and 6 p. m. yesterday at the registration booth in Washington Auditorium. Between 1,200 and 1,300 delegates voted.

GULF'S ANSWER TO THIS QUESTION:
"WHICH GASOLINE IS BEST?"

Is any one gasoline consistently better than others—or are all gasolines alike? In answer, Gulf tested 33 gasolines on well-known hills. Read the results, then decide for yourself this question—"Which gasoline is best?"

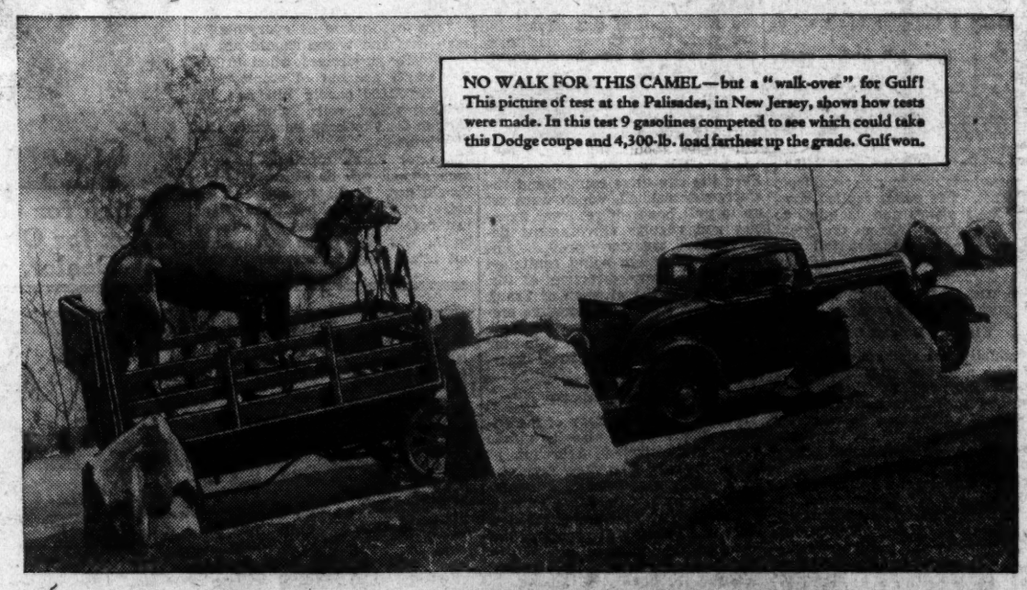
"ALL gasolines are alike," some people say. But the fact is—there's a big difference! Gulf has proved it!

Proved it in a long series of "power tests" on famous hills.

Yes, on 15 tough, mountain grades from Massachusetts to Georgia, tests were made of various gasolines—33 gasolines in all—including the well-known brands sold in each test area.

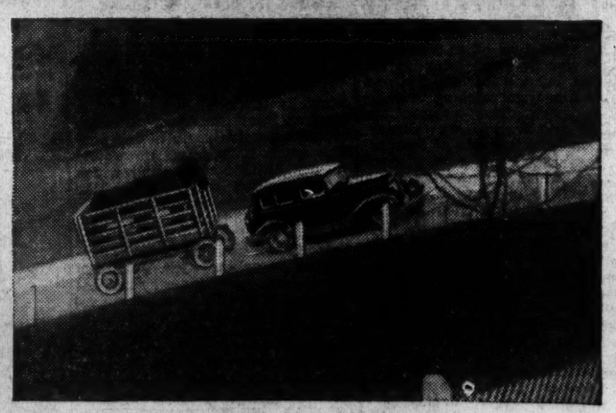
Each gasoline was tested to see which could pull a car and heavy load farthest up hill in "high" before the motor stalled.

Now Gulf presents the results of these tests. The plain results in black and white—certified by a Notary Public. Look at the chart below—then decide for yourself which gasoline will coax the most power from your motor.



NO WALK FOR THIS CAMEL—but a "walk-over" for Gulf! This picture of test at the Palisades, in New Jersey, shows how tests were made. In this test 9 gasolines competed to see which could take this Dodge coupe and 4,300-lb. load farthest up the grade. Gulf won.

"X" MARKS THE SPOT—where one gasoline gave up the fight in the Palisades test. Eight gasolines watched Gulf beat them!



GO 'LONG MULE!—another power test to find out which gasoline could haul this load farthest up Chimney Rock Hill, N. C. Eight gasolines tried it. And Gulf beat them all!

The NEW GULF wins more power tests than 32 other gasolines combined!

HOW 33 GASOLINES RANKED (IN ALL TESTS TO DATE)

*All gasolines tested, except a few "third grade" brands, sold for approximately the same price as That Good Gulf. Each brand is denoted by a letter.

U. S. Dictator Talk Nonsense, Says Richberg

Sees "New Courage, Hope" From Administration's Recovery Measures.

Fort Worth, Tex., July 5 (Spl.). Expansion of mass purchasing power has brought "new courage and hope" to America, Donald R. Richberg, NRA general counsel and executive director of the National Emergency Council, told the Texas Bar Association here tonight.

He termed President Roosevelt "the most courageous and democratic statesman of the modern world," insisted the New Deal had and would continue to uphold the Constitution and dismissed as "sheer nonsense" talk of a Presidential dictatorship.

More than 5,000,000 persons, Richberg said, have been reemployed in industry as a direct result of recovery measures. He reported the total pay roll of the Nation has doubled.

"Agricultural income," he added, "has been enormously increased. Several hundred thousand homes have been saved from foreclosure. Temporary work has been provided for as many as 4,000,000 people. Public projects of a more permanent character have furnished employment and direct relief payments have given subsistence to millions more.

Sees Great Gains.

"All this reemployment and relief expanded mass purchasing power and brought new courage and hope and great material gains through the field of private enterprise.

"The streams of public and private revenue that were drying up began to flow again. Public and private credit was reestablished. A National retreat was stopped. And a National march to victory began."

Richberg declared that alternatives to a recovery program of industrial self-government offered by ultra conservatives and ultra radicals would destroy the Constitution.

"The right wing reactionaries," he explained, "call upon us to abandon all effort to bring order and justice into our industrial civilization, to relapse into an anarchy of unrestrained self-seeking. They call upon us in the name of the Constitution to abandon the Constitution, to let the forces of disunion and injustice destroy the general welfare and to tolerate anarchy in the name of liberty.

"The left wing revolutionaries call upon us also to abandon the Constitution, to achieve economic order by denying to ourselves and to our posterity the blessings of liberty—to gain the material comforts of a machine-made civilization by the universal sacrifice of freedom.

He mentioned the German revolution by innuendo when he remarked:

"But let us at the same time thank God that when the hour struck and the leader came the American people could be mobilized for public service without any restraint upon freedom of speech or the freedom of the press, and without being forced to change their clothes or their ambitions or to swallow new ideas emulsified in castor oil. Nor was it necessary to seize or to maintain political control by the wholesale murder of political opponents."

Americans, the speaker warned, should remember how nearly they approached "the abyss of National disaster" 18 months ago.

"Let us not forget the lessons of our own experiences and those of every other modern nation," he cautioned.

Government Needed.

"The rigorous control of industries and labor in Russia, Italy and Germany has not proceeded from a mere desire to apply a political creed, but from the economic necessity of establishing some form of government in industry, without which no political government could endure.

"Here in America we have sought a solution more in keeping with our democratic institutions than a Fascist dictatorship in behalf of property or a Communist dictatorship in behalf of labor.

"This is the great adventure of the NRA—the effort to establish within the terms of our Constitution and in harmony with our political institutions a machinery of cooperation within industries and between industries and the Government by which the principles of self-government may be extended to bring order and security into modern industrial operations."

Richberg said "two grave dangers" faced NRA, including:

"1. If public regulation goes too far, individual freedom and the incentives of private gain may be restricted to an extent comparable with the disheartening tyrannies of state socialism.

"2. On the other hand, if public regulation is so weak that business combinations are granted an unrestricted license to govern themselves without responsibility to the public interest, then we may subject the masses of the people to exploitation for the benefit of a privileged few."

Sewerage Plant For Chestertown

Health Board Wins Long Row With Council.

Chestertown, Md., July 5 (Spl.). After a controversy lasting more than a year between the State board of health and the city council here the latter bowed to the law and the wishes of health authorities concerning the construction of a sewage disposal plant here.

In a public resolution it was stated that Mayor Charles N. Satterfield and council approve and sanction the order of the State board of health of October 2, 1933, which requires the town to build and maintain a sewage disposal plant and necessary appurtenances.

Formal application for funds necessary to built the plant will be made to the Public Works Administration.

Because of opposition on the part of numerous citizens, the civic body, it has been declared, did not formerly feel justified in sanctioning the erection of the $45,000 plant over the heads of citizens. A group of other citizens, living near the Chester River water front, have backed the plant proposal.

Jail Breakers Face Charge of Murder

Juries Asked to Try Three for Killing Guard.

Sutton, W. Va., July 5 (Spl.).—Announcement was made today by James E. Cutlip, prosecuting attorney of Braxton County, that he will ask Judge Jake Fisher, of Circuit Court, to call special grand and petit juries about July 10 for the purpose of trying three prisoners who recently escaped from the county jail after killing Earl Bland, the jailer.

All three defendants are now being held in the Kanawha County Jail at Charleston, where they were taken immediately following their recapture in a patch of woods near the town of Herold after being surrounded by a posse. They are Camden O. Roode, 34; Elliott Keener, 19, and Raymond Mace, 27.

The prisoners admit Bland was mortally wounded when they fled from the jail. Roode continues to charge Keener with the actual slaying while Keener and Mace assert that Roode struck the jailer over the head with an iron rod taken from a jail bed.

Wine Strength Plea Wins Case

Court Rules Virginia Did Not Prove Car Fatality Drink Illegal.

Fredericksburg, Va., July 5 (Spl.). The burden of proof lies on the Commonwealth that wine or beer allegedly sold in violation of the alcoholic beverage control act contains more that 3.2 per cent of alcohol by weight, it was established today when Justice B. Wyatt Walker, of King George County, dismissed charges of illegal sale against former Justice of the Peace Lee J. Graves.

The case was the outgrowth of a fatal accident June 16, when Dan Henderson, admittedly drunk on wine assertedly purchased from Graves, struck and killed two men with his automobile.

The decision marks the first time since the institution of the trial justice system in Virginia that the necessity of the State proving the alcoholic content of wine or beer sold has been considered.

Graves did not deny today having sold the wine, although he had previously stated he had not done so. Through his attorney, S. Bernard Coleman, he made a motion for dismissal on the grounds that the Commonwealth had not proven that the wine sold by him exceeded the 3.2 limit. Justice Walker sustained the motion.

Education Group To Hold Parleys

Charlottesville Slated to Get Conference.

Charlottesville, July 5 (AP).—The Cooperative Education Association will hold a series of round-table conferences here, July 9 to 14, on work of leagues and parent-teacher associations. It will constitute a brief training course for local workers.

The daily meetings in Clark Memorial Law Building at 3 p. m. will be devoted to fundamentals in work of the local organizations.

Objectives, activities, organization, program building, sources of helps, developing leadership and publicity are among topics to be considered. Attendance at sessions and the round table on education at the Institute of Public Affairs is a basis of ward of a certificate of attendance.

Miner Hangs Himself; Note Denies Assault

Morgantown, W. Va., July 5 (Spl.). The body of Peter Grabiak, 36, World War veteran and Barracksville miner, was found today in a jail cell here hanging from a noose of wire and belt.

He left a note declaring his innocence of the charge of criminal assault on a 19-year-old girl, for which he was arrested a week ago.

Checkers Complete Postoffice Count

Figures to Be Given U. S. in Valuation Fight.

Cumberland, Md., July 5 (Spl.).—The official count of persons entering the postoffice was completed when final reports were filed by the two checkers with Chief of Police Oscar A. Eyerman.

The report was forwarded today to Representative David J. Lewis in Washington, to be presented to Treasury officials to strengthen the city's claim that real estate values on Liberty street have decreased and the valuation of the old postoffice site is not as high as that set by condemnation commissioners. The city seeks to obtain the postoffice for a public safety building.

In the week's count, a total of 16,429 persons were checked. The count was ordered by city officials after a conference with Representative Lewis, who believed an accurate check would convince the Government of the decreased valuation of the old building. Assisting Chief Eyerman was Postmaster George C. Young, who also is working on another proposition with Commissioner Harry Irvine.

Lineman Dies in Crash.

Farmville, Va., July 5 (AP).—Thomas B. Blount, lineman for the Potomac Electric Co., was instantly killed today near Jetersville, when his automobile was sidewiped by another car.

Woodmont Rod and Gun Club Hosts to Five Presidents, Hundreds of Notables

These scenes were taken at the Woodmont Rod and Gun Club, the huntsmen's paradise near Hancock, Md., where five Presidents and hundreds of other National notables have found relaxation. Left to right, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Henry D. Roosevelt is casting for brook trout in Lake Nesbit, located on the hunting preserves. The President's chair of Woodmont is 64 years old. James A. Garfield, Chester A. Arthur, Benjamin Harrison, Grover Cleveland and Herbert Hoover have sat in the chair; President Roosevelt will be the sixth Chief Executive to use the chair if he makes a proposed visit in the fall; metal plates bearing the names of the Presidents who have rested in the chair are on one of the arms. A view of the clubhouse, with Henry P. Bridges, secretary-treasurer, and two of his hunting dogs, seated nearby. The wild turkeys in the pen are used for breeding; young turkeys are sent to game preserves all over the United States. President Roosevelt is expected to visit the club, located about 80 miles from Washington, in the fall.

Anne Arundel Officials Win In Trial Tilt

Two Indictments Killed By Court Ruling; Others Stick.

Annapolis, Md., July 5 (Spl.).—Counsel for six of the seven county commissioners of Anne Arundel County and County Engineer John A. Bromley, indicted by the grand jury on charges of malfeasance and misfeasance, scored in preliminary skirmishes when their cases were called for trial in the County Circuit Court today. Two of the indictments were squashed, after several hours argument.

The dismissed indictments charged the commissioners with having expended unlawfully $7,420 in purchase of a power shovel and charged the road engineer with not making proper report of the transaction.

The commissioners now will go to trial for alleged failure to require police magistrates to submit quarterly returns from fines under oath. Bromley will be tried on a conspiracy charge, having been indicted with Zach Johnson, chairman of the county delegations in the Lower House of the State Legislature in connection with purchase of the power shovel. The court overruled demurrers interposed in these instances.

Defense counsel attacked all indictments. Of those quashed, the court upheld a plea of limitation, on the charges involving the commissioners. As to the charge against Bromley, the court stated that the manner in which the indictment was prepared was "vicious."

When demurrers in the other cases were overruled, defense counsel filed pleas of abatement, stressing alleged violation of secrecy of the grand jury room in one plea. The court announced that the conspiracy charges against Bromley and Johnson will be tried first.

The commissioners involved in the charges are Elmer E. Parkinson, president of the board; C. Addison Hodges, Severn K. Arnold, Lewis F. Kelly, F. Guy Kelly and J. Edwin Wilson.

Counsel for the defendants includes Benjamin Michaelson, counsel to the board; State Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer, Prince Georges County; Eugene P. Childs, Annapolis; L. Wethered Barroll and Wilmer Driver, of Baltimore.

Tobacco Growers Given Fresh Hope

Chatham, Va., July 5 (Spl.).—The "little fellow" in tobacco farming—the man who for the past nine years "has worked more and more and received less and less" was promised fresh hope under the New Deal here yesterday when J. B. Hutson, head of the Tobacco Division of the AAA addressed growers in a Fourth of July celebration.

Buie Brice, head of the Pittsylvania Erosion Project and Representative Thomas G. Burch related the aid the Congress has given the farmers. J. L. Hutcheson, of Virginia Polytchnic Institute, also spoke.

The exercises were interrupted by a violent thunder shower. The crowd, disappointing in size, ranged from 1,500 to 2,000 persons.

Hagerstown Scouts To Visit Baltimore

Hagerstown, Md., July 5 (Spl.).—The last of a series of educational and industrial tours by the Boy Scouts of Hagerstown and Washington County will be made Tuesday, when several hundred Scouts will go to Baltimore to visit industrial plants.

The scouts visited Washington earlier in the year. The tour is under leadership of Fred P. Entler, scoutmaster.

Virginia Guard Head Asks New Armories

Richmond, July 5 (Spl.).—Describing many of the buildings used as armories by Virginia National Guard units as "uninviting, unsightly and insecure," Brig. Gen. S. Gardner Waller, adjutant general of Virginia, declared that there is an imperative need now for State-owned armories, in his annual report for the past year, released today.

Blast Throws Man 100 Feet, but His Injuries Are Slight

Harrisonburg, Va., July 5 (Spl.).—Although hurled 100 feet through the air by a dynamite charge, Valentine Green, 25, of Fries, Grayson County, is living to tell the tale and, most remarkable, his injuries are not regarded as serious, the Rockingham Memorial Hospital reported tonight.

Green is suffering from burns about his face and body bruises.

Green was working on the Pendleton highway, 15 miles west of here. One dynamite charge in a rock ledge failed to go off. After a brief wait, Green went to investigate. Just as he stood over the dynamite-filled hole the charge exploded. Green was hurled down the mountain side. Experienced dynamite men are unable to account for his escape from death.

Election Held By Dominion Postmasters

E. S. Moore Is Renamed President and Barrett Secretary-Treasurer.

Fredericksburg, Va., July 5 (Spl.).—E. S. Moore, of Stafford, Va., and Waverly S. Barrett, of Dendron, Va., were reelected president and secretary-treasurer of the Virginia branch of the National League of District Postmasters at its annual convention today in the Stratford Hotel here.

Business sessions began yesterday with addresses of welcome by city officials and preliminary discussions by convention officers. Today speakers were Clyde W. Saunders, Walter D. Melton, Elmore S. Redwood, all of the Richmond postoffice; Will H. Wright, special canvasser, and A. M. Simpson, postoffice inspector.

Election of district vice presidents and delegates to the National convention of the league in Columbus, Ohio, October 16, 17 and 18 took place this afternoon.

District vice presidents are: First District, I. P. Weston, Jonesville; Second District, E. C. Quillin, Hilton; Third District, Thomas E. Simmerman, Max Meadows; fourth District, Carolyn C. Bryant, Independence; Fifth District, Fannie T. Field, Rockbridge Bath; Sixth District, H. S. Cline, Mount Sidney; Seventh District, M. A. Price, New Market; Eighth District, Lulu L. Griffis, Widewater; Ninth District, Eloise C. Hay, Madison; Tenth District, Mrs. Emily B. Chinn, Hague; Eleventh District, Mrs. Lucy R. Griffis, Pribble; Twelfth District, Eleanor R. Smith, Ladysmith; Thirteenth District, J. T. Amory, Jeffs; Fourteenth District, Annie R. B. Knight, Whaleyville; Fifteenth District, W. H. Holloway, Prudy; Sixteenth District, Mrs. Mary J. Vaughan, Randolph; Seventeenth District, Philip W. Cowherd, Columbia; Eighteenth District, G. T. Lackey, Covesville; Nineteenth District, George W. Mitchell, Gladys; Twentieth District, Lucy Dixon, Kiptopeake.

Delegates named to the National convention are L. R. Christian, Point Eastern; H. Luckett, Luckett; Mrs. Mary A. Vaughan, Randolph; Mrs. Emily B. Chinn, Hague; W. S. Barrett, Dendron; Gladys Freeman, Index; I. P. Weston, Jonesville; G. T. Lackey, Covesville; Eloise C. Hay, Madison; George Mitchell, Gladys; George H. Kent, Kents Stone; Mrs. Florence Priest, Scottsburg, and Lucy Dixon, Kiptopeake.

Next year's district conference will be held in Winchester.

Strike Leader Denies Strong Arm Methods

Textile Union Also Flays Use of Armed Guards in Hopewell.

Hopewell, Va., July 5 (Spl.).—Protesting against "the parading of private armed guards" in Hopewell, George E. Moorehouse, organizer of the United Textile Workers of America, told representatives of Governor Peery today that he challenges the statement of Plant Manager Raymond S. Burrows that Tubize Chatillon Corporation workers are being intimidated in efforts to make them join the union.

"I challenge the statement of Mr. Burrows in reference to any intimidations with reference to new members coming into the union at this time," Mr. Moorehouse said.

The leader of the strike, which had kept 1,900 workers unemployed since Friday, said that no one but duly accredited city and State police should be allowed to carry arms on public thoroughfares.

Pickets Must Wear Insignia.

He said official pickets of the union are to be designated by a proper insignia, so that responsibility for any possible law violation can be fixed.

State officials were assured that the members of the union will "cooperate in every way with the city and State authorities in preserving law and order" and that no disorder has occurred within the past 24 hours, or would occur in the near future.

Meanwhile, the strike was creating a serious problem of emergency relief, as families which have lost income through the shutdown faced destitution.

Some of the strikers are returning to farms, but more than 800 families are reported to have no place to go and may be dependent upon local or Federal relief allotments if the plant remains closed.

One More Pay Due.

Workers were given pay checks for the wek of June 23 Saturday, and are due one more check before their income ends. The company has not held up its pay roll on account of the strike, and the pickets have admitted the paymaster to the plant without protest.

State headquarters of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration said today that no special request has come through the Hopewell office, headed by Mrs. Elizabeth Pirkle.

Resources of the United Textile Workers of America, to which the striking workers belong, thus far have not been tested by the Hopewell situation, and the ability of the war chest to finance the strike is still unknown.

Workers Receive Help.

The union has been offered help, however, from several Hopewell business firm and individuals. Other unions in sympathy with the strikers are expected to provide assistance.

Thus far the company has made no move to evict workers from plant-owned residential property and the maintenance of the homes and utilities is being continued.

Nurse Takes Own Life.

Weston, W. Va., July 5 (Spl.).—Leaving a note that she had worked hard all her life and had no home, Mrs. Effie Gum, 40, nurse at the State Hospital, ended her life last night at her home at Camden, near here, by drinking poison. She is believed to have been temporarily deranged.

Thousands See D. C. Regiment Put on Antiaircraft Show

Waynesboro, Va., July 5 (Spl.).—Several thousand persons witnessed a spectacular anti-aircraft demonstration here tonight staged by the 260th Coast Artillerry Regiment of the District of Columbia National Guard, which is encamped in Lithia Park here.

Giant searchlights, throwing a beam of light 8,000 feet into the air, anti-aircraft guns and machine guns were used in the display of the latest methods of battling against aircraft. One searchlight measures 5 feet across. It was mounted high in the Blue Ridge Mountains near here and its beam was visible 75 miles.

The Washington unit, numbering 200 men and 20 officers under the command of Maj. Walter Burns, arrived here this morning by trucks from Charlottesville and will leave tomorrow for Harrisonburg to continue two weeks of maneuvers in the Shenandoah Valley. The regiment left Washington Sunday and will return July 15.

The training period has been successful thus far, Maj. Burns said, with no mishaps or serious sickness among the men to mar the trip.

Five Presidents Were Guests Of Famed Rod and Gun Club

By J. E. Hager.

Hagerstown, Md., July 5.—Only a few miles from the beaten path, a few hours' ride by train or auto from the Nation's Capital, is located an institution which occupies a unique place in conservation of game life.

It is a private institution which provides a place for some of the country's wealthiest men to find a few days' respite from business care and is engaged in propagation of wild life which is sent over the world so others may enjoy a day's hunting.

The institution is the Woodmont Rod and Gun Club, located near Hancock, in the western part of Washington County, Md., where five presidents of the United States have spent many a happy day following the trail or fishing for black bass. It was there that the late President Grover Cleveland went many times each year when he sought respite from official cares. Presidents Garfield, Arthur, Harrison and Hoover also found the club an ideal place to relax, following trails of deer, wild turkey and other game.

Founding of Club.

The club was founded in 1870 by a noted naval officer, "Fighting Bob" Evans. The club's wide preserve was then only a place for prominent Washingtonians to hunt and fish. Each fall found notables following the trail by day and sitting around the fire at night in the little clubhouse.

But it was for Henry P. Bridges, the "Sage of Woodmont," secretary-treasurer of the club, to develop the club as a rich man's hunting paradise and a place where the thought of preserving the wild life for future generations predominates.

It was through Mr. Bridges' efforts that the present handsome clubhouse, declared to be one of the finest hunting lodges in the world, was erected a few years ago. The old clubhouse was converted into a hatchery to raise Mutant and Reeves pheasants, American quail, wild Mallard ducks and many other species of small game.

Woodmont's sage also is a leading authority on the propagation of wild turkeys. Hundreds of his birds have been sent to conservation departments in almost every State in the Union and many foreign countries. Mr. Bridges started in 1908 with two pairs of wild turkeys. Now his brood stock, a flock numbering 200 hens and 30 gobblers, produce annually thousands of wild turkeys. Some of these brood turkeys are valued at $100.

500 Deer on Preserve.

About 500 deer, of the native and white tail Michigan breeds, roam the 6,000 acres of the preserve. And each year the herd is increasing despite the large number that fall before the hunter's gun each fall. The herd has become so large that many have been released in the surrounding mountains, while others have been sent to other States as breeding stock.

One thing that most impresses the visitor at Woodmont is the new clubhouse, which overlooks the Potomac River. Stepping from the wide veranda, one enters a broad reception hall paneled in hardwood. Above the huge fireplaces are massive buffalo heads. There is the dining room almost identical in size. In the rear of the reception room is the writing room, library and card rooms, where is found the famous President's chair. From the walls of each of these rooms hang hundreds of heads of animals, mounted fish and fowl, prints and etchings of the hunt. Beautifully mounted antlered deer appear as if ready to spring from the corners, while stuffed wild turkeys look like they are ready to strut.

There are many rare pieces in the club, collected from far corners of the world. There is one of the few known Thomas gazelle, heads of the sacred bull of India and caribou.

Fiddlers Entertain.

When one goes to Woodmont, he is almost cut off from the outside world. For a while, no telephone was permitted and a radio never has been a part of the equipment. The only music is supplied by fiddlers. When Woodmont has guests, Harvey Van Goshen, a fixture of the club, is called in with his fiddlers to provide the entertainment. Van Goshen and his fiddle appeared at the White House before President Wilson some years ago.

So famous has Woodmont's hospitality become that an invitation, often extended to friends, is a thing to be cherished. To sit down to one of Woodmont's renowned meals is something not to be forgotten.

After the evening meal during the hunting season, members and guests sit around the great fireplace and discuss events of the day.

Woodmont also has provided some real fishing for its members and friends. During the trout season an artificial lake, builit by Mr. Bridges by damming a ravine through which passed a mountain stream, will be found teeming with speckled beauties weighing from 1 to 2 pounds. In the summer, fine fishing can be had in the Potomac. Trout from Woodmont graced the White House table this spring, caught by Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt.

G. O. P. to Seek Somerset Vote

Meetings Scheduled for 2 Eastern Shore Towns; France to Speak.

Princess Anne, Md., July 5 (Spl.).—Republican gubernatorial candidates are making a bid for the Somerset County vote in the approaching primaries.

H. Webster Smith, Baltimore, has announced two meetings in the county for this week—both on Saturday. The first will be held in Princess Anne, at the courthouse, at 7:30 p. m. The second at the firehouse in Crisfield at 8:30 p. m.

Mr. Smith will be accompanied by Dr. J. Harry Schad, of the Young Republican League, Baltimore; Helen Elizabeth Brown, of Baltimore, and former Senator Joseph I. France, of Port Deposit. Mr. France is a candidate for the United States Senate.

Tuesday afternoon, July 12, Harry W. Nice, Baltimore, will speak at the courthouse here, and Wednesday evening he will address a Republican rally at Crisfield. He will be accompanied on his second shore trip by Mrs. Nice and Dealey K. Nice.

Child, 3, Is Killed Playing With Gun

Culpeper, Va., July 5 (Spl.).—Florence Jenkins, 3-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jenkins, of Berryville, was killed here yesterday when a pistol with which she was playing accidentally discharged.

The child found the revolver in a dresser drawer in the home of Reynolds Jenkins, brother of Charles, whom the family was visiting.

Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins returned to Berryville today. The funeral will be held tomorrow at White Post, near Berryville.

Virginia Cities To Open Round Table Parley

Charlottesville Conference on Public Affairs Starts Today.

Charlottesville, Va., July 5 (AP).—The third annual round table of the League of Vrginia Municipalities, held in connection with the Institute of Public Affairs at the University of Virginia, will be held here tomorrow and Saturday.

The program will open with a dinner to visiting officials, at which Harold Buttenheim, editor of the American City Magazine, will speak on "Federal Relationships of the Municipalities."

Saturday morning will be devoted to "Housing as an Opportunity Afforded to Virginia Cities and Towns." Mr. Lawrence V. Smith, secretary, State board of housing, Wilmington, Del., an authority on this subject, will explain the new Federal housing law and its effect on municipalities.

During the afternoon the round table will consider the question of relief under the leadership of William A. Smith, director of the Virginia Emergency Relief Administration.

Already a number of officials have made reservations for the meeting, including Seth Burnley, city manager, Charlottesville; L. B. Dutrow, town manager, Front Royal; W. Guy Ancell, city manager, Hopewell; R. W. B. Hart, city manager, Lynchburg; H. A. Yancey, city manager, Petersburg; W. P. Hunter, city manager, Roanoke; C. L. Watkins, city engineer, Roanoke; J. C. Ruff, city manager, Staunton; C. K. Brown, councilman, Staunton; I. G. Vass, city manager, Waynesboro; Dr. Charles R. Anderson, Mayor, Winchester; Lawrence C. Hollis, councilman, Winchester; P. P. Pilcher, city manager, Winchester; J. H. Fletcher, town manager, Appalachia, H. I. Sullivan, town clerk, Appalachia.

About 100 cities and towns of Virginia will be represented at the meeting.

New Arson Trial Due for Attorney

Clarksburg, W. Va., July 5 (Spl.).—Biagio Merendino, local attorney and formerly Spanish and Italian vice counsel for West Virginia, is to be tried again on arson charges, according to announcement by J. Philip Clifford, Harrison County prosecuting attorney. The new trial is to be held at the November term of the criminal court.

Merendino was tried in the court last week on charges of aiding and abetting in the burning of a three-story apartment and store building on East Pike street, Kelley Hill, and defrauding insurance companies in the collection of insurance money, but the jury failed to agree, and was discharged by Judge Arlos J. Harbert.

Grover C. Worrell, of Charleston, an attorney for the State fire marshal's office, which brought up the case, will aid the State's attorney in the second trial, Clifford states.

20 Passengers Escape As Bus Leaves Road

Hagerstown, Md., July 5 (Spl.).—Twenty passengers on a Pittsburgh to Washington bus of the Blue Ridge Transportation Co. narrowly escaped injury early today when a tire blew out, causing the bus to leave the National highway and sideswipe a pole several miles west of here.

Several passengers received slight lacerations from flying glass.

Dog, Joyful to See His Master Again, Proves Ownership

Danville, Va., July 5 (Spl.).—A white collie dog today proved to police that it had been stolen, and it was restored to Charles Daniel, of Lynchburg, who said the pet was taken eight months ago and that he set high value on him. The dog was found in possession of Ella May Davis, colored, when she was arrested by police for having diamonds valued at $2,000 in her possession.

When Daniel brought a picture of his pet to identify it, the dog became so overjoyed that there was no question of ownership.

Maj. R. C. Kent Wants Speedy Slaying Trial

Suspect Permits Police to Take Photograph to Check Moves.

Roanoke, Va., July 5 (AP).—Maj. Robert C. Kent said today that he was eager for an early hearing of charges that he killed Mrs. Mary Jane Hastings, operator of the Blue Ridge Springs Hotel.

In noticeably better spirits, Kent donned a new shirt and permitted police to take a photograph which they intend to use to trace his movements on his journey to Washington. Mrs. Hastings, who accompanied him to Washington, was not heard from again. Her body was discovered at Stroudsburg, Pa.

Discussing the investigation of Federal authorities, Kent said "Let 'em go to it. The sooner they're going to give me a hearing, the better."

He still continued to discuss the elaborate Independence Day pageant here. Told by reporters that 500 persons had attended Mrs. Hastings' funeral yesterday, he changed the tide of conversation to ask, "How many were at the pageant?"

Danville Studies New Power Plans

May Construct Station at Pinnacles.

Danville, Va., July 5.—Undismayed by reports that PWA might have to be parsimonious with Virginia loans, Danville citizens interested in a major hydro-electric station at the Pinnacles, in Patrick County, met tonight and asked the city council to appoint a fact-finding commission.

A few months ago voters rejected a $3,000,000 loan and grant. Since then, the utilities manager has announced Danville must soon provide larger power facilities.

The finance committee of the council has before it now a resolution authorizing a study by engineers on three plans; buying power from another company, developing the Pinnacles or building a new steam plant.

Burial Slated Today For John Chamblin, 60

Charles Town, W. Va., July 5 (Spl.).—John Chamblin, 60, died at his home, four miles east of here, today. Funeral services will be held in the Murrill Hill Southern Methodist Church with the pastor, the Rev. J. D. Hendrick, officiating. Interment will be made in the churchyard.

Loudoun County Horse Show And Fair Set for September

Purcellville, Va., July 5 (Spl.).—The Loudoun County Fair and Horse Show, on the Fair Grounds in Purcellville, will be held the first week in September the management has announced. The committee in charge includes D. C. Sands, R. T. McCray, C. M. Warner, J. D. Dillon, F. H. James, E. E. Nichols and Dan Wine.

Free admission, which brought large crowds last year, will feature the event again this year. Winners will again receive as prizes a percentage of the entry fee.

The chief attraction of the fair will be the horse show, which will include classes for heavy drafts, hunters and ponies. Departments for domestic science, domestic art, field crops, fruits and flowers have been listed, while other attractions will be named later as plans develop.

The fair was revived last year after a lapse of two years. It is promised that the same features which attracted large crowds last year will be in force again this fall, with a number of added attractions.

Slayer Claims Self-Defense in Ax Haft Killing

War Veteran Attacked Him Twice After Party, Says Barnhouse.

Leesburg, Va., July 5 (Spl.).—Claiming self-defense, Clarence Barnhouse, 45, in a statement made to Commonwealth Attorney John Gallagher today when questioned in the murder of Basil Brown, 44, World War veteran, whose hacked and beaten body was found in a ravine on the farm of Richard Cooper, near Lucketts, Monday morning, said he killed Brown after the latter tried to choke him to death.

Barnhouse claimed that when he refused to go with Brown for more liquor, the latter attacked him and he picked up the death instrument, an ax handle, to defend himself. He later hid from Brown and went to sleep in the underbrush, he said. Brown attacked him again and it was then that he dealt the death blow, he asserted. The man denied he robbed Brown. Barnhouse is held in jail.

Cleveland Harper, who was also at the Cooper home on Saturday night, said he knew nothing of the affair. Richard Cooper and his wife were questioned previously and allowed to go home. Authorities this afternoon conducted a further investigation in the Ketoctin Mountains where those involved in the affair live. Barnhouse surrendered at the Leesburg Jail yesterday while an all-night searching party combed the mountains.

The funeral of Brown was held here this morning, conducted by the Rev. H. B. Jennings, of the Leesburg Baptist Church.

Railroads Plan Motor Trains

Virginia, Carolina Roads Hope to Compete With Bus Travel.

Norfolk, Va., July 5 (Spl.).—With the continuance of reduced passenger fares authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission, railroads in the Virginia-Carolina territory are planning further aggressive methods to regain and hold passenger traffic.

Investigations are being made of the use of gasoline-propelled passenger cars capable of being operated at low cost to compete with buses. More frequent schedules would thus be permitted and fares would be as low or lower than those on buses.

The Seaboard Air Line has been experimenting with gas motor cars. The line has used motor cars in North Carolina and results have been satisfactory. That it will end the service is unlikely.

The Norfolk Southern, also in receivership, has been authorized by Federal Judge Luther B. Way, in whose court the railroad is being administered, to purchase equipment of the same character for use on lines where the receivers feel that service will be given a fair test.

Two Fined for Having Fish of Illegal Size

Cumberland, Md., July 5 (Spl.).—Found guilty of having an illegal size of fish in his possession, E. J. Naughton, of this city, was fined $13 yesterday by Justice of the Peace Paul, of Springfield, W. Va., following his arrest by Deputy Game Wardens J. F. Hughes and Walter Hansell.

Paul Wolfegele, of Piedmont, W. Va., was found guilty of having two undersized fish and was fined $27 by Justice of the Peace A. P. Purnell at Romney, W. Va., yesterday. Wolfegele was taken in custody by Game Wardens Hughes and Hansell.

He Demanded Service.

Fredericksburg, Va., July 5 (Spl.).—Edward Scott, colored, was fined $50 today in police court, and sentenced to 12 months in jail for assaulting Frank Newton and Robert Eubanks. Scott is alleged to have attacked the two men, who were selling crabs from a truck, because their merchandise was exhausted when he desired to make a purchase.

Va. Democrats Pass Around Political Jobs

Republican Office Holders All Displaced Save for Few Postmasters.

Richmond, July 5 (Spl.).—Working smoothly in patronage matters, the Democratic organization of Virginia has now displaced Republican Federal officeholders throughout the State with Democrats. A few postmasters are the sole exceptions.

The change from a Republican to a Democratic administration has resulted in the appointment of the following to the Virginia Federal offices which are usually regarded as the real political plums:

I. Walke Truxtun, collector of customs of the port of Norfolk; N. B. Early, jr., collector of the internal revenue; Sterling Hutcheson, United States attorney for the Eastern District of Virginia; Robert L. Ailworth, marshal for the Eastern District; Joseph H. Chitwood, United States attorney for the Western District of Virginia; and John White Stuart, marshal for the Western District.

The clerks of the Federal courts are apponted by the judges of those courts, and, therefore, there is no change where they are concerned.

New Posts Created.

Although the foregoing constitutes the main offices subject to Presidential appointment, the NRA has created a number of new Federal offices, some of which are more lucrative than the old ones.

For instance, Henry Gilmer, former member of the State highway commission, is directing Reconstruction Finance, an office which E. R. Combs relinquished to resume his position of State comptroller.

D. R. Hunt, who lost the office of commissioner of the revenue of Roanoke to Judge John M. Hart, was more than compensated by being appointed State director of the National Emergency Council, which has charge of the NRA enforcement in the State.

Further Action Awaited.

Various other Democrats are filling positions created by the NRA movement and Col. Daniel Porter is holding down a good place in the tax division.

Complaint is made in some quarters that Republican postmasters are not being turned out as fast as might be the case.

Action in this regard may be taken shortly, as incumbent Congressmen are without opposition within the Democratic party.

Hike Sunday Offers Unusual Scenes for Camera Fanciers

Party Will Leave Post Building at 11 A. M.; Return 7 P. M.

Wanderbird photographers will have their field day on a trip Sunday to the Great Falls of the Potomac and along the gorge of Difficult Run. This three-mile hike includes swimming in one of the best swimming holes about Washington. Club members and Post readers interested in this trip will meet at 11 a. m. in front of The Washington Post Building. The fare will be only 40 cents for the round trip, the bus returning by 7 p. m.

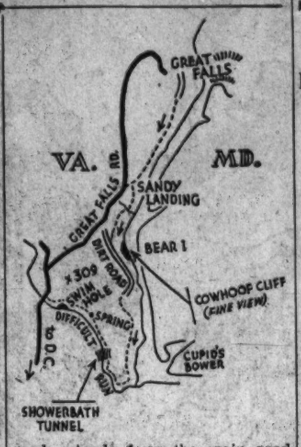
The club will lunch at the falls and visit the ruins of George Washington's old mill. The cameras will record the beauties of our little Niagara. About 2 p. m., the trip along the bluff trail will begin. The group will follow the road back to Sandy Landing. A trail entering the woods at the left will be followed a short distance to another path which parallels the river. The trail leads for about one-quarter mile before making a detour up a run. The party then will follow the first trail to the left. This path goes uphill for about two city blocks, the trail dividing into three near the crest of the hill. The club will take the center trail, which soon leads into an old dirt road that will be followed all the way to Difficult Run.

This bluff trail, about 250 feet above the river, affords an excellent view of the river valley. It once was a wagon road over which plodded heavy wheeled lumber carts. A second growth forest covers this area today, consisting for the most part of hardwoods beneath which lies a luxuriant growth of forest herbage. The Virginia snakeroot, a tall, striking drug plant, is now in flower in moist places along the trail. On dry hillsides, the goat's rue, an attractive member of the pea family, is now in flower. The New Jersey tea also is abundant throughout the woods.

Squirrels and cottontail rabbits frolic about, the former more abundant here than in our public parks. The rabbits are timid, leaping off into the brush on the approach of strangers. The hawks and owls and a few animals prey upon the rabbits, keeping their numbers in check.

An excellent trail follows the right bank of Difficult Run for the mile between the mouth and the Leesburg road. There are about four swimming holes along this portion of the run, that near the highway being the largest and most free of rocks.

Here the group will go for a swim. Boulders and logs will have to serve as "bathhouses." A dirt road extends from the main road to the swimming hole, making it an easy five minute walk to the bus after the swim. Those who do not plan to take a swim may follow the run for about a mile up, along a good trail.



The bus leaves the Difficult Run bridge at 6 p. m. for the return trip to the Post Building. Hikers are again asked to phone in reservations at National 4200. Club emblems and cards will be distributed members who have not already received theirs. These beautiful triangular emblems were obtained through courtesy of the Washington Post, which sponsors the club.

Fredericksburg Liquor Sale Legal

ABC Store Will Be Opened for Operation Today.

Fredericksburg, Va., July 5 (Spl.). Legal sale of liquor will begin here tomorrow when the Fredericksburg dispensary of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board is opened under management of Charles F. Bauman.

Opening of the store will terminate a 25-year drought for thirsty residents.

Hours of sale will be from 11 a. m. to 8 p. m. No definite closing hours will be observed during the expected first rush of buyers.

Mrs. John W. McCall Dies at Bluefield

Bluefield, Va., July 5 (AP).—Mrs. John W. McCall, a native of Halifax County, Va., died here yesterday. Her widower, two daughters and four sons survive, among whom is Herbert McCall, wealthy hotel and theatrical mar in Chicago.

170 Are Ready For Fort Myer Training Camp

Preparations to Care for "Civilian Soldiers" Now Complete.

Doffing mufti and donning kahki, 170 young men, who will comprise the 1934 Citizens Military Training Corps at Fort Myer, Va., will begin their summer training July 10.

The "civilian soldiers" will reach the fort on the appointed date by varied means—by train, by limousine, by truck and by hitch-hiking. They have been recruited from the District, Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York.

Plans for the reception and training of the youths nave been completed. Col. Kenyon Joyce, U. S. A., will be commandant of the camp, which has been named Camp Guy V. Henry, in honor of Gen. Henry, father of the former chief of Cavalry.

Transformation from civil to military life will be swift, with a minimum of lost motion and time. The men will arrive, be examined, issued clothing and equipment, paid their traveling expenses and fed heartily by the staff of officers and men, who are directed by Maj. A. D. Surles, camp executive officer.

The Fort Myer C. M. T. C. camp is for Cavalry only, and open to young men who have attended a previous basic camp. The enrollment further is limited to those civilian soldiers who are fond of horses and riding.

The Army Probe.

The investigation into Army procurement methods is being pursued with both vigor and discretion. With a determination to learn the whole story behind the payment of fees to Army officials and behind attempts to change specifications so as to favor private bidders seeking Government contracts, the committee is collecting a mass of evidence. It is scrutinizing the activities of several officers to determine whether they have illegally accepted fees from corporations doing business with the Government. At the same time, there seems to be no disposition to persecute any official who may be involved in the inquiry.

A recent statement by Representative Kvale, acting chairman of the investigating group, absolved Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois and other aviation officials of any charges of "financial dishonesty." It was taken for granted by those who know Gen. Foulois that he had not profited personally from transactions he has conducted for the Air Corps. By centering its attention upon mistakes of judgment and deficiencies of the Army's procurement system, instead of trying to create sensations or to persecute individuals, the committee should be able to render a real public service.

This does not mean, of course, that illegal conduct should be condoned. Punishment for actual offenses against the public welfare is an essential concomitant of democratic government. But the important thing is to establish safeguards that will discourage fraud, if not make it impossible.

Madame Curie.

The scene was the White House, the occasion a reception in honor of a distinguished foreigner. Two Washingtonians were looking about them. One indicated a shrinking, diminutive person in black, a few wisps of gray hair straggling from under a careless hat, the simplest among all present.

"Who's the little old lady?" inquired the first Washingtonian.

"She is the distinguished scientist we have been asked here to meet," the second Washingtonian replied. "She is Mme. Curie."

Marie Sklodowska, Polish widow of French Pierre Curie—with whom she discovered radium and after whose death she carried on alone—lived for science. Now, its first great feminine figure, she has died for it.

Although she gave the world so much, through such researches as those resulting in the radium-treatment for cancer, she expected and received but little. A shy ascetic, she passed all her real life in a tiny laboratory provided by the French Government. Her income was inconsiderable. She toiled ten hours a day, eating laboratory lunches warmed above a Bunsen burner. When she "rested" it was to read technical tomes. At 66, warned that this sort of thing could not go on any longer without fatal results, she imperturbably continued it.

Mme. Curie's manner of life provided a perfect example of how wholeheartedly—with what a passion of exclusive devotion—women can give themselves to any professional career. Her achievements provide an example, equally notable, of what such devotion may accomplish.

Safe And Sane.

The long campaign for a safe and sane Fourth met with good results this year, as far as deaths from explosives are concerned. Out of 115 fatalities reported by the newspapers throughout the Nation, only 1 was the result of carelessness with fireworks. But 115 deaths, however caused, are far too many, and the toll saddens the celebration of the country's birthday.

Drownings caused the most deaths and automobiles came a close second. In a majority of cases, it is fair to assume, the tragedies might have been avoided by the exercise of due caution. This undoubtedly is especially true in the case of the traffic accidents. Holiday speeding and the crowding of the roads by reckless drivers, as well as the innate selfishness that overwhelms so many people when they take to the wheel, bring totally needless death and injury to many.

The Fourth of July used to see hundreds of deaths throughout the country from the use of fireworks. A campaign of education, coupled with the passage of laws restricting the type of legal firecrackers, has almost eliminated this toll. It shows what can be done by the educative method. Is it not possible that automobile accidents can similarly be reduced?

There are laws enough to protect both au[illegible] But both need to [illegible] have continually dinned into their consciousness the necessity for caution and respect for the rights of others. The campaign for a safe-and-sane Fourth might well be extended to the high roads for every summer week-end.

Mr. Borah's Contribution.

In his Fourth of July radio address Senator Borah gave a brilliant and forceful exposition of the growing menace of arbitrary power. It is a painful commentary upon the disordered state of the public mind that he should consider it necessary to emphasize the importance of Constitutional government, and of the Constitution of the United States in particular, as a means of protecting personal rights and liberties. Liberty is indeed "on the defensive" when time must be spent in elaborating these once axiomatic truths.

However, in an era of political upheaval, when representative institutions are everywhere giving place to autocratic rule, it is well to be reminded that Constitutional government alone can guarantee individual freedom. "It was the practice of Augustus Caesar," says Senator Borah, "when preparing to take over some new block of power, to deliver a eulogy on the virtues of the republic and announce his deep solicitude for the liberties and happiness of the people."

Senator Borah's general indictment of the bureaucratic trend which steals liberty in the name of public interest, and stifles individual initiative, while it professes solicitude for the common man, is a timely and eloquent warning which should be read carefully by the average American, to whom it is addressed. His views are less convincing, however, when he proceeds from the general to the specific. The recommendations are too negative, and the criticisms too undiscriminating.

For instance, the attack is directed almost exclusively against the growth of monopoly and the encouragement given to monopoly by governmental policies. Senator Borah charges the party in power with responsibility for strengthening the ruthless power of combinations by suspending the antitrust laws under the NRA. He further asserts that leaders of both parties wish to smother this issue.

At this point the address loses force and power by its failure to distinguish between monopolistic oppression, and agreements which regulate competition without completely destroying it. The Senator does not visualize what would be involved in a return to a regime of forced competition under the antitrust laws, with its wasteful and often socially harmful results. Furthermore, such a return would not rid us of bureaucratic control over industry. It would, on the contrary, very likely necessitate a peculiarly inquisitorial kind of interference in private affairs.

Elimination of monopolistic exploitation may be achieved without abandonment of the gains that come from regulation of competitive practices, under governmental supervision. Small business is not destroyed by such methods. It is more apt to be swept away under a system of uncompromizing laissez faire. That form of State aggrandizement which menaces individual rights should not be confused with a restricted public supervision and control. The latter may well be necessary to preserve the rights of the majority against the aggressions of a powerful minority which can oppress as much as any Augustus Caesar.

Sauce For The Goose.

There is a delightful irony in the incident of the summons served on the Secretary of Agriculture as a train bearing him to Chautauqua stopped at the little Maryland town of Odenton the other night. Mr. Wallace had been "expecting some kind of nutty performance"—he should know one when he sees it—and in high dudgeon, according to the United States marshal, he threw the papers back in that officer's face. As the Secretary explains it now, "I informed him he was invading the privacy of my domicile."

What Mr. Wallace appears to ignore is that by contention of the Government's own attorneys, under a case against the AAA pending in Baltimore, he as Secretary of Agriculture is an indispensable party to the suit. It was to meet this point that the papers were served on him as he passed through Maryland, coming within the jurisdiction of the Federal Court where the case on constitutionality, filed by a Baltimore dairy, has had its initial hearing.

The marshal, in other words, was doing his simple duty. And for an official as much implicated as is Mr. Wallace in the extension of Federal probing and prying, this display of resentment was both inconsistent and unfortunate. Also it is a dubious precedent to set the farmers. What will the Secretary be able to say when some warm-blooded son of the soil becomes exasperated in his turn over Federal interference? For the invasion of the Secretary's privacy in his Pullman berth was a small matter compared with the encroachments on individual liberty sponsored by the AAA.

Mr. Wallace should talk the incident over with his new Undersecretary, with that frankness which is difficult to obtain in a public Senate hearing. Then he would doubtless realize that the privacy of the domicile (whether stationary or on wheels) is a very minor matter compared with that public welfare which the Administration seeks to achieve by expansion of State authority. It is impossible to believe that Prof. Tugwell would mind so small a matter as the midnight intrusion of a minor bureaucrat, if it were demanded in behalf of the more abundant life.

And yet we find much that is comforting in this episode of the Secretary and the marshal. Under the veneer of his official position, particularly when stimulated by a stifling night on a sleeper, the old American spirit still sizzles in the veins of Henry Agard Wallace. The exigencies of the New Deal may force him to issue orders to millions of farmers. But, by gosh, to be himself waked from a slumber by a U. S. deputy marshal at the dawn of July 4—that's carrying National Planning a little too far!

Propaganda In The Schools.

One of the most important issues in the entire field of education was raised before the National Education Association in session here yesterday. Should the schools by their teaching undertake to prepare the way for a new social order?

Considerable disagreement among the speakers is reported. In other words, the leaders in educational circles who have been called upon to instruct teachers assembled from all parts of the country, are themselves at variance on this vital point. Some favored "interpretive teaching," and others insisted that the schools should confine their efforts to the dissemination of factual data.

It is strange that any modern educator should favor propaganda in the schools, even when it is disguised in less objectional terms. If a "new social order" is to be taught there will be inevitable tendency to advocate the particular "ism" which appears to hold current public favor. This has been amply demonstrated in the schools of Russia, Italy and Germany.

But shrewd observers of the educational scene will realize that this demand has arisen from a tendency in some parts of the country to avoid modern problems and current history in the school curricula. In some respects this policy is as great a departure from true education as the outright intrusion of propaganda would be. This is an age not merely of rapid change, but also of much constructive thinking in the fields of both social and physical science. Unless children are given a background of information and understanding of actual issues of the day they will be a debit rather than an asset when their turn comes to confront the problems of society.

Neglect of novel trends of thought, the latest forms of government, and the growth of new institutions, is in itself a negative form of propaganda. It implies that current developments are unimportant and should not be considered as an influence in contemporary life. This sort of censorship in the school room can not be tolerated. Students have a right to expect class-room consideration of all significant events and all points of view, entirely regardless of the teacher's personal attitude. Their education will be warped unless they are able to view the momentous issues of the day with unbiased as well as informed understanding.

The problem is, therefore, to lift the schools above the rather narrow scholasticism to which many of them still adhere. In doing so there is no excuse whatever for resort to propaganda, either of commission or omission. If young people are honestly taught unbiased reality, and encouraged to think for themselves, we may expect a much more intelligent approach to national problems than could ever be secured through attempts at intellectual regimentation, whether positive or negative.

The Fourth In Moscow.

An Englishman away from home is supposed to thrill whenever the band plays "God Save the King" or when he sees the Union Jack fluttering in the breeze of a foreign port. The American is perhaps less prone to such emotions But if away from his native land on the Fourth of July no amount of world-weariness or cynicism will prevent him from wishing he were back in the old home town setting off firecrackers and eating watermelon.

In Russia, Ambassador Bullitt succumbed to the boyish urge to celebrate the Glorious Fourth. In the morning there was a ball game between teams composed of correspondents and the attaches of the Embassy. According to the dispatches it was for all the world like a game between the men's choir and the visiting firemen. Thus Russia saw what we Americans are like on holidays, better than they could get it in any book by their favorite American, Upton Sinclair.

Later there was a reception at the Embassy. This was featured by the playing of "The Star-Spangled Banner," the orchestra's score being copied from a scratchy phonograph record which was interspersed with the crooning of a saxophone and the interpolation of such Americanisms as "Hey nonny nonny and a hotcha cha!"

Just what the Soviets thought of this first Fourth of July in Moscow is discreetly hidden, but from all accounts they witnessed the Americans at their gayest. There's something about the Fourth that sets it apart from any other day. The fundamental childishness of this young country springs forth. Ambassador Bullitt appears to have carried off his part nobly. He even made a double play unassisted at the ball game. One out as Ambassador Extraordinary, no doubt; and the other as Envoy Plenipotentiary.

A radio comic, accused of lifting gags, pleaded "unconscious plagiarism." The "unconscious" part sounds reasonable.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY.

SENATORS BORAH, Burton and Kenyon were leading figures in the fight to prevent the passage of the river and harbor appropriation bill, which carried about $53,000,000, with the possibility of additional future expenditures of $40,000,000.

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY.

THE DEMOCRATIC National convention at Madison Square Garden in its sixth day of balloting, took the seventy-seventh ballot. McAdoo was leading with 513, Smith second with 367 and J. W. Wavis third with 76½. The candidates' envoys, who were torn by bitterness, conferred to break the deadlock. Leaders insisted that McAdoo should retire.

AFTER INDORSING Robert M. La Follette as a Presidential candidate and providing for the organization of a new political party next January, the conference for progressive political action wound up its convention at Cleveland, Ohio.

Constitutional Changes.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Referring to the discussion in your columns about pocket vetoes, it is hard to see why vetoes at the end of a session should be more conclusive than those in the middle of a session. The Constitution ought to be changed in this respect so that if the President should see fit to veto a bill after Congress has adjourned, he would still have to return it with his reasons, to the next session, even a new Congress; so that Congress might overrule the veto even then.

It is hard enough to get measures through Congress, and when they have been put through they ought not to be lost by being slipped into the President's coat pocket. I agree with the statements in The Post that it is to the credit of President Roosevelt that he is not following this permitted evasion of responsibility.

This is not the only amendment that should be made. The Constitution should be corrected on the basis of experience, the same as statutes are. The theory of our Government is that the Constitution should be carefully changed as need arises.

Yet we do not need a Constitutional convention, as is sometimes proposed. Such a convention would mean a general upset, with a lot of harm. We should have an investigating commission from the two houses of Congress, or expert political scientists selected by Congress, would be beneficial, frame amendments accordingly, and recommend them to Congress for action. Its report should remain before Congress, by a special rule, as unfinished business from session to session, until action could be taken on each amendment recommended. W. C. L.

"Exposing the New Deal."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: How refreshing to read in the columns of The Post, "Final Darrow Blast Backs Little Man Against Code," and more so to read in the next column a news item by C. B. Carr, "Sawmill Closes, Blaming Code; Hill Town Hit."

When my eye caught the first words I began wondering if it was a mill in southern Maryland from where I had a similar story confidentially grapevined. No doubt the woods are full of just such stories, but of course folks have to be careful how they talk in boycott days.

The public should give Clarence Darrow a rising vote of thanks for so ably exposing the New Deal, which so soon became a rotten deal.

Thank You, Mr. Duhamel!

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: While your readers are throwing bouquets at the new Post and its improved features let me venture to sing my praises of the beautiful pen work of your artist, Davis. His portraits are certainly art of the highest type in this line of work and it is rare that one sees their equal.

Let me also put in a hopeful word for your genealogical section with the wish that it be more liberally patronized by your readers, and that your philatelic columns continue the upgrade and maintain their popularity with the stamp collectors.

Those with hobbies can certainly appreciate the efforts of your management to please us all.

The Boycott.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The proposed boycott of unclean films will work if determinedly used. The boycott is a weapon of the weak against the strong; but the "terrible meek" always overcome the strong.

Weak China's boycott of Japanese goods did more harm to Japan than Japanese guns did to China. The boycott is a terrible weapon. It places a bar sinister upon the escutcheon, puts the boycotted person or thing outside the pale of humanity, and makes him or it a pariah—unclean, untouchable, taboo.

As Loyola said, no man can stand complete ostracism by his fellowmen. The most effective boycott proceeds from the heart and conscience. When we boycott evil persons and evil things, the heavens will begin to smile upon us.

Advice to the Motorist.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why is it that when an ordinarily prudent individual gets behind the wheel of an automobile he seems to be suddenly transformed into a demon? There are very few exceptions to this rule, although most of us don't seem to realize it. You ask a person for twenty-five cents for this or that and he will hesitate and take his time before he gives it to you, yet he will pay $1,000 for an automobile and then risk his investment by driving it like a crazy man, jeopardizing his own safety, those who happen to be in his car, people in other automobiles, as well as pedestrians, school children, little tots who occasionally throw a ball out into the street and run after it, and others, all because the very devil in a person seems to assert itself when he gets behind the wheel of a car.

Speed, speed, speed—too much speed, and all so unecessary. Let's cut out all of this foolishness and take things easy. Take a little more time and get there safely—consider your passengers at least and give them a comfortable ride, instead of nervous indigestion, heart failure and upset stomach. Use your brakes more and your horn less; you can't stop your car with your horn. Keep your car under full control at all times; it pays in the end. Being sorry after something happens won't help matters much. And above all train yourself to be considerate and patient when you get behind the wheel of your car.

Pioneers in Alley Fight.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The following citizens and residents were pioneers and voluntary workers in the cause of alley slum elimination, and now that this vexing local problem seems so near a final and practical solution, may I suggest their names, among others, to whom much credit is due for their patriotic endeavors? Ten of these passed away before they saw success crown their unselfish labors. Some of these citizens have worked for over 20 years for this great civic betterment movement:

Best of Two.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: From a recent letter appearing in your columns under the heading, "The Marriage Ruling" and signed "Ensign 33," I quote the following: "Academically we were the best fitted half to receive commissions." By this statement your correspondent casts grave doubt on his right to have received a commission when he did. As between two of anything, including halves of classes, the comparative better is used, not best.

LIEUTENANT 17.

Washington, July 2.

Germany.

Events of the last few days in Germany — offering high sacrifice to dictatorship — bring to a concerned world a poignant sense of the gravity of the problem which the people of the Reich are attempting to solve.

A year and a half ago, in the turbulent days preceding Hitler's accession to power, it was abundantly apparent that more was involved than mere political strife. Then, as now, Germany was laboring to devise a workable form of government. A monarchy had collapsed. A republic, born of expediency rather than conviction, was becoming unequal to the strain. Amid economic distress and deep social unrest, there was a cry for stability and order.

There has been concern, fear, even disgust, over the road which Germany has followed in pursuit of solution. Yet no nation, absorbed in its own difficulties or satisfied with its own security, can fail to perceive the consuming character of the fire with which the Germans are being tried.

Hitler's ruthless crushing of those who sought his overthrow gives perspective to a consideration that weighs heavily in the choice of governmental method. It discloses again that the final reliance of a dictatorship must be upon force. It may be questioned whether this outcome was visible to many Germans during the initial stages of abrogation of popular sovereignty. Certainly there can today remain little doubt of the severity of the measures by which the National Socialist regime believes it necessary to consolidate its position.

Summary execution of Hitler opposition raises the important question of whether any moderations of domestic policy will follow with the dictator's position more firmly established. He has swept out a radical element within his party ranks. He has defended conservative elements which are working to turn the Reich into a less extreme economic and social course.

The purging of the party's semi-military Storm Troops silences a group that desired the carrying out of extremist socialistic experiments. It ends opposition to possible reconstruction of the Brown Shirts and halts schemes which would have turned the party's private army into a dominant section of the Reichswehr with resultant foreign complications.

The second aspect, affecting the conservatives, is less clear. Hitler made short shrift of those—reputedly headed by the former chancellor, Gen. Kurt von Schleicher, who desired to overthrow the National Socialists and, if not establishing a monarchy, to substitute a dictatorship of the old aristocracy. But there is a far more influential section of these old Nationalists and East Elban on land owners. They were represented on the original coalition which brought Hitler to the chancellery. And it is not surprising if events of the last eighteen months have dimmed the fact that their original plan was to use the virile Hitler movement to their own end. This failed. Will they continue to exert any of the modyfing influence which has been theirs in recent months?

The refusal of Der Fuhrer to permit his more radical followers to completely "liquidate" the Steel Helmets is indeed a victory for the conservatives who at one time considered this veterans' organization as their own "private army."

Meanwhile the difficulties of Hitler's position extend to his conflicts with the Evangelical and Roman Catholic churches, to disagreements in the fields of labor and industry and to admitted concern over the tenuous position of the mark and the diminishing trade balance. Abroad, the National Socialists have gained scant victories to compensate for a tactical retreat from Austria at Mussolini's request and the estrangement of former friends, so that Germany again faces a diplomatic encirclement.

Epilogues are not to be read with ink still wet in the middle of the second act. Immediate outcomes may differ from final solutions, but these last will require the ultimate moral sanction of the German people, who now, if ever, are in need of patient understanding.

"Beauty Doth Varnish Age."

Postoffice, Friday.

HERE'S this old Turk again in the egregious news columns: the fellow that says he is 160 years old, or 180, or something like that—it is never the same for 12 months on end. He is now talking of divorcing an aged wife of 30—or of marrying a new one, aged 16. Anyhow, he pestiferously keeps on living, and so he helps to keep alive the interest of everybody else in continuing upon the hither side of the grave.

Each time his first-rate press agent gets him into the papers—which is about once a month—people write letters to the editor wanting to know how life can be made to begin at 70. We have personally investigated 62 out of 63 such cases. The 62 were all in their late sixties and had reputations as complainers against life's severities. The sixty-third had died just before we reached him, but he had been a defender of the dole, and he died unwillingly.

Well, there are two questions to be asked concerning long life. It seems significant to us that always the first of them asked is:

"What produces it?"

Certainly this question has no end of answers.

Only the other day came one in that well-known newspaper, La Gazette, of Dijon, France, ancient capital of Charles the Bold, who had to be bold to have his capital in the center of the Burgundy district. La Gazette tells us that in one small town of its Medoc countryside, where the Medoc wine comes from, 225 couples have, in the last year, celebrated their golden wedding anniversaries, 30 their dismond.

It was perhaps to be expected that La Gazette should add:

"It is wine which makes the dismond weddings."

But is it?

A writer in the London Morning Post, apropos of the Medoc phenomena, declares:

"All these people are drinkers of claret."

Of course, they aren't. Did you ever try to buy "claret" in Burgundy? It can't be done. There isn't any. Those Medoc husbands and wives are drinkers of Burgundy.

What the English call "claret"—what we Americans are again beginning to call claret, in our painful process of vinous re-education—is the comparatively mild red wine of the Bordeaux country, all the way across France from those eastern fields where grow the vines producing that brave Burgundy which, despite its strength, is, at its best, the King of Wines.

Has The Morning Post forgotten "The Three Musketeers?" There was a day when a real war was waged, and men died in battle, to prove that Burgundy was a better win than champagne. Until Prohibition came, American connoisseurs called Burgundy "the wine for a gentleman." Until the World War came, the English considered "claret" a pleasant colored water; they rightly depended upon a life of overindulgence in Burgundy to give an oldish squire the alcoholic accolade—which is to say the gout.

What produces long life?

Odd as it may sound for us to make such an admission, we don't know.

We have been, as you must have been, acquainted with certified nonagenarians who ascribed their longevity to an abundant use of alcohol, and with certified nonagenarians who, with equal certainty, ascribed theirs to total abstinence therefrom. You've known old men who said that tobacco kept them alive, and old men who said they owed their antiquity to a detestation of nicotine.

There are the aged who tell you they are aged because they have always eaten plenty of everything they "craved." There are the aged who aver that they have outmaneuvered "a naturally delicate constitution" by never having eaten anything they liked. Old Amos Lennig, up in Pennsylvania, lived to be a hundred through daily physical exercise; his neighbor, Abner Hungetogler, survived to 101 because he had always avoided all sorts of exertion—including the mental sort.

Englishmen would, of course, take the question of long life seriously. A British correspondent writes:

"Speculation upon the causes of longevity has been aroused by announcements that Bulgaria has 158 inhabitants who claim to be over 100 years old, and that there are 20 centenarians among the 400 inhabitants of the village of Verbasz, in Macedonia. May I suggest a reason? Both the Bulgarians and the Macedonians are blessed with a clear atmosphere; the former regard a visibility of 20 miles as nothing out of the way."

Of course, it's only 20 miles out of the way, when you come to count it. Yet, the Britisher continues: "Among us, on the other hand, it is noticeable that a fog causes an immediate rise in the death rate."

Who knows? A pessimist might say that the more visibility you have in this life, the more desirous you are to quit it for the next—which would be a noble compliment to the Christian fortitude of those aged Bulgarians and Macedonians. On the other hand, a Bulgarian would declare that the existence of so many Macedonian centenarians is proof positive against the Macedonians' charges that they are forever being massacred by the Bulgars, while the Macedonians would retort in kind.

* * *

Thus do we reach the other question about long life—the question that is always, or almost always, asked as an afterthought: "Is quantity more important than quality—the length of life more important than the kind?"

But we're only asking it. You'll have to answer it for yourself.

Along the Potomac

With

Carlisle Bargeron

The Coordinator.

I'LL bet that back in Donald Richberg's home town they are saying he is certainly getting places in the New Deal down at Washington. Only the other day, they must say proudly, the papers told of another promotion. And this along with the receipt of their crop reduction checks probably makes them all feel very pert.

BARGERON

His rise will constitute one of the fascinating chapters of our bureaucracy, I think. He was around here in the early days of the revolution, looking, presumably, after the interests of his clients, the railroad brotherhoods. It was largely at his instance that the famous section 7a was written into the NRA act.

Then when the NRA was set up he was called in as general counsel to interpret this section along with the rest of the act. I know of no better interpreter who could have been obtained, either, notwithstanding the fact that, as it turns out, section 7a means hardly anything. Workers always had the inalienable right to organize and be represented by men of their choosing. The employers also had the right to fire them. That seems to be pretty much the situation under section 7a.

* * * *

The most accepted story of Richberg's recent "elevation" is that he was tiring of the NRA, that he and the General were not hitting it off very well. So he was given Frank Walker's job as executive secretary of the Emergency Council and to make it look even bigger another council was created over this council of which he was made director. My book on bureaucracy tells me that this means he is to execute the old council of Frank Walker's and direct the new one. It looks as though the very able gentleman has gone out to annex a lot of titles. The next edition of Who's Who will be too heavy to lift from the shelf—I mean with all the additional titles around here it will have to list.

The arrangement is being cited by Mr. Roosevelt's friends as another example of how he so cleverly holds onto his talent, how when they get in a jam or get restless in one place he puts them somewhere else. There was the fight of the young Liberals versus George Peek. An import-export bank or something was created for Peek, satisfying everybody except, I am inclined to believe, Peek. Or a more accurate statement would probably be that he is uncertain as to whether he is dissatisfied or not.

* * * *

In trying to explain just what he will do as executive secretary and director, Richberg has hit upon the happy word "coordinate." That is what he is to do. He is to coordinate. He is, as I understand it, to coordinate until September. I am sure it doesn't make any difference but it would be a lot of fun if he made a report at that time showing just what he coordinated. We would appreciate, I am sure, the lesson in coordination that it would afford.

The reports of some zealous porters that he would be an acting President while Mr. Roosevelt is away are said to have embarrassed him. I should think they would. They indicate to me that the multiplicity of titles together with the heat here is going to the reporters' heads. It is my guess that Mr. Richberg had far more to do in the New Deal as general counsel of the NRA than he will have as executive secretary-director-coordinator. The probable fact is that the set-up was created to give him a well-earned rest, and of course, to keep him on tap. Mr. Roosevelt is setting a record in keeping his original talent with him. Under other Presidents many have gone in much shorter time.

* * * *

There is one good lesson in coordination in this arrangement, however. As a general counsel of the NRA Richberg insisted he could not make the sacrifice for less than $12,000 a year, the highest salary by far over there, $6,000 more than Johnson himself.

This $12,000 a year comes from Mr. Ickes' public works' funds. The new coordinating job is not provided for by statute, so it carries no pay. Richberg will, therefore, be on leave from the NRA and get his $12,000.

It's the coordination of a triple-play: From Ickes to the NRA to the coordinator.

Crash Victim Dead From Broken Neck

Danville, Va., July 5 (Spl.).—Mrs. James H. Chesson, of this city, died today in Duke University, Durham, N. C., from a broken neck.

The injury was sustained near Durham early this week while her husband was driving her to the bedside of her ailing father. The car, in a downpour, struck a place where mud had swept across the road near Durham and the car turned over. She will be buried here tomorrow.

Roanoke to Decide On Relief Measures

Roanoke, Va., July 5 (Spl.).—Whether Roanoke is to have a community fund campaign this fall is expected to be decided at a meeting of the fund's board of trustees Monday night.

To attract attention to the work of private relief agencies, the community fund is conducting a series of broadcasts. The broadcasts will be twice weekly throughout July and August. Dr. Hugh Trout is general chairman of the fund.

When the Herd Stampedes Bulls Forget Their Bravery

By Robert Quillen

Dickens once stood on the upper deck of a ship in American waters, looking down on a company of pauper immigrants, and marveled that none disturbed the unguarded property of his neighbors.

"If these poor are honest despite their needs," he mused, "how much more honorable the well-to-do should be!"

In that day and later it was commonly taken for granted that necessity was the mother of dishonesty. If a man didn't steal it was because he could get what he needed without it. The hero of any popular novel was "poor, but honest."

We like to think that ordinary people of our day are naturally too decent to be dishonest, but experience in recent years has shown that honesty needs the support of good times and universal custom.

Our veneer of decency is very thin. Each child must learn ethics as it learns to walk and speak, and the ethical way is forgotten when hard necessity suggests return to the ways of the jungle.

That is the most bitter lesson we have learned from the collapse of the boom. As the war taught decent men to justify lying, theft, and murder, so the depression and the threat of ruination prompted many honest men to sacrifice honor for the sake of property.

One of the shrewdest commentators on English manners and morals recently said that gentlemen who live by their wits and stoop to any infamy to get money, though rare in England before the war, are now so numerous that they seem typical.

If that is true, it is easier to understand why statesmen, newspapers and rabble cheered the government's decision to default on the debt to America.

Deliberate repudiation of a debt would have shamed every man in England 30 years ago. Today, made desperate by poverty and taxation, men of all classes adjust their morals to fit their needs, and cheer dishonor.

The tragedy of it lies in the power of example. Every man who breaks his word makes it easier for another to do the same. Thus civilization slips back 500 years, and land years of prosperity will be needed before honesty is again taken for granted.

The Once Over

What? No Waggle!

(Henry Cotton, winner of the British Open, never waggles or hesitates before hitting his ball.—News item.)

I.

Oh, a wreath to Henry Cotton,
Now the British Open champ!
Not so easily forgotten
Is a golfer of his stamp,
For it seems he doesn't waggle,
Fuss or fiddle e'er he swings
And we're not disposed to haggle
As we crown him king of kings.

II.

To his type we are unswaying—
Our devotion it is blind,
For no matter where we're playing
We so seldom see his kind;
With no waggle whatsoever
And no fidgeting about
He just says, "It's now or never,"
As he ups and socks it out!

III.

To the golf game he's a blessing
It has needed quite a while;
There is nothing that's distressing
In his simple, speedy style;
Oh, he gives our nerves no beating
As he sets himself to swing—
Realizing time is fleeting,
He just up and socks it—bing!

IV.

Oh, the Dulwich star's a wonder
And a rarity as well;
He tears precedent asunder
And we think the man is swell.
When his ball awaits a journey
He occasions no delay;
In a private game or tourney
He just speeds it on its way!

V.

Never does he change his stances
And he doesn't shift his feet;
'Round the ball he never prances
As if crazy from the heat;
Not a dance step does he do, sir,
As he shifts from pose to pose;
He just says, "Hello! It's you, sir!"
And he socks it on the nose!

VI.

So, a toast to Henry Cotton,
Golfing stylist, tall and slim!
Golf games wouldn't be so rotten
If we took a tip from him;
For a golf ball has a mission—
I'll explain it, if I may—
To be smacked from its position
With the minimum delay.

Assaying Mr. Cotton.

"Although quiet and not inclined to get boisterous at any time, Cotton is extremely popular in England."—Associated Press. Why the "although?"

You can get some idea of Hitler's mind from the fact that he thinks it possible to keep German military leaders from overeating and overdrinking.

Attorney General Cummins has offered $10,000 reward for the arrest of Dillinger, but has omitted the "dead or alive" clause. This sounds like prolonging things for the pictures again.

Admiral Byrd has completed four months in complete isolation in Antartica. That's nothing; look at Vice President Garner and Herb Hoover!

A man played nine holes of golf in New York and finished the other nine in Chicago the other day. Phooey! We have often played nine holes in New York and finished the last nine in another world.

Delegates Picked To Fire Conclave

Fredericksburg, Va., July 5 (Spl.). Delegates to the State fire convention in Suffolk, Va., in August have been named by the Fredericksburg Volunteer Fire Department.

Representatives will be A. H. Stone, Broaddus Heflin, Arthur Burton and Samuel Perry. Alternates are James R. Freeman, Lem W. Houston and Stansbury Sullivan.

A city-wide campaign for funds to send delegates to the convention will be started soon, according to Fire Chief S. B. Perry.

Virginia Nurses Hold Conference

Fredericksburg, Va., July 5 (Spl.).—Nurses from 15 Virginia counties met at the city hall today in the second of a series of conferences to discuss mental hygiene.

"Objectives of Mental Hygiene," "Mental Hygiene in Family Relations" and "Mental Hygiene Guide Posts in the Habits of Children" were among topics discussed.

The conference was in charge of Miss Mary Andrews, Fredericksburg community nurse. Luncheon was served at the Mansfield Hall Country Club.

Quaint Questions.

WHAT with the heat and the humidity (as some unsung pundit had it), I was wondering last night how many book-titles contained the names of animals. No other explanation is offered.

THEO. HALL.

But from that grave problem, it was only a matter of wandering curiosity until I had hit on some others. So pressing these seemed that I thought I could do but one thing—hand them on to those ornaments of local, nay National life, the readers of this column. You'll find them below. Aside from the first, a pretty tough assortment they are. The faithful assailers of this literary Matterhorn (not to mention the skeptics) will discover the answers in this cozy nook tomorrow.

* * * *

1. Find book-titles which contain, in turn, each of the following words: Red, blue, purple, mauve, brown, scarlet, green, black, and white. But the next is not so easy.

2. Name six writers (newspaper men included) who are as well if not better known by mere initials (of their names or pseudonyms) than they are by their full names spelled out.

3. Name a novel dealing largely with—hotel-keeping; with the battle of Gettysburg; with a psychiatric hospital; with the Gloucester fishermen; with Capri; and with the meat-packing industry.

4. What author's last name is a synonym (puns are not conspicuous by their absence) for—an urban thoroughfare;
strong, resolute, enduring;
a unit of weight equal to 7,000 grains;
small American coins chiefly used for tipping bootblacks;
brave, pertaining to war;
succor, assistance;
gaunt, wasted looking;
an incredulous or deprecating exclamation;
an inflamed and suppurating disturbance, usually at the back of the neck;
a casual comment or statement.

5. Name two novels each of which has five words in the title. This constitutes a brief rest before the following juggernaut.

* * * *

6. Name, and give the author, of novels or books of short stories, poems or humor, which in turn have the following words in the title: Monkey, apes, wasps, nightingale, dove, serpent, kangaroo, sheep, bull, pigeon, blackbird, colt, tiger, wolf, leopard, rats and centaur.

7. What writer's last name is likewise the name of—a candy-bar, a stove, a machine gun, a brand of canned milk, a brand of vanilla extract, a cigar, a cigarette (two of these, as a matter of fact), an automobile (two of these, also).

8. But here's the grand-daddy of them all! Give the title of five books, not plays, poems, histories, biographies or studies, each of which contains the name of an American President.

* * * *

Battered but dauntless survivors of the above, as well as those who went through it like a hot knife through butter, will find some more quaint questions in this column before long—if only they will first be good enough to write me how they got on with this batch.

If, as the politicians say, "the voice of the people announces its approval," it might be a pleasant idea to cook up a stiff questionnaire, hold a contest and give prizes. Shall we do that?

Hogs Bring Fine To Former Mayor

$5 and Costs Are Assessed

Winchester, Va., Man.

Winchester, Va., July 5 (Spl.).—Former Mayor F. Amos Shryock was fined $5 and costs today on a charge of keeping more than four hogs within the city limits for commercial purposes.

Shryock was taken before Justice Donald L. Weems on Monday. He contended the city ordinance, which was passed when he was mayor, was not intended to apply against abattoirs such as he operates.

Justice Weems commented that the court took knowledge of the fact that the violation had been going on for some time within the knowledge of city officials, and, in view of this laxity in enforcing the ordinance, the minimum penalty only would be imposed.

Road Condemnations Net Owners $1,675

Stafford Courthouse, Va., July 5 (Spl.).—Condemnation for public roads of property here netted total awards of $1,675 in three suits tried this week.

The W. T. Dent property on Route 1 was ordered purchased for $150, with $550 awarded for damages. Regester Memorial Chapel received $100 for its land and $150 for damages. The Methodist parsonage property brought $175 for the land and $500 damages.

'Great Drought of '34' Goes Into History

Its Force Spent, but Midwest Damage Is Done; Benefit Seen in Impetus Toward Water Conservation, Land Abandonment.

By Hilding Sivertsen
(Special Correspondent of The Post).

Des Moines, Iowa.

"FOR lo there is drought in the Western land and the plains and the meadows of the upland are parched."

Thus, Thomas Mann, in his new novel, "Joseph and His Brethren," revives dusty legends which have persisted through history and have been terrifyingly applicable to the Mississippi Valley in what probably will go down in Midwest annals as the Great Spring Drought of 1934.

As this is written it seems that the drought has been broken. Heavy rains have fallen in Minnesota. There was a flood at Sioux City. Kansas, which always persists in being different, had good rains even earlier. It will be possible in a very large midland region to raise a fair crop of corn, and heavy yields of sorghums, kaffir corn and other rough feed which will serve the cattle. Pastures will spring into rich life and perhaps by August there will be no trace of the grim terror except in greatly reduced yields of wheat and other small grains. So now it can be told without being harmfully and futilely pessimistic.

Not since the establishment of weather bureaus has there been such a long-drawn period of baleful, searing, dessicating heat in the midst of a growing season. Sixty-year-old heat records were demolished, one after another. The mercury in May rose past the 100-degree mark day after day. The dry soil, even during the winter and early spring, blew in drifts like snow and piled up, some times two or three feet deep, in the fencerows.

The high prairies in the western parts of the Dakotas, Nebraska, Kansas and the "Panhandle" were scourged, and vast clouds of dust were swept eastward, even out of the Mississippi Valley. Winter wheat and early sown oats in many cases did not even sprout, and if they did, were blown out of the ground.

Large Towns Scourged; Business Morale Lowered.

EVEN the larger towns felt the scourge, not only in ruined gardens, but in business morale. In a Minneapolis department store a shopgirl talks to another of the crops, lamenting over the damage to business. In Kansas City the golfers on the country club courses pant and shave dry divots out of the cracked sod, and then in the locker-rooms bathe their burning faces and talk of the damage to the wheat.

City real estate business started out briskly in the early spring, but the morale dropped, and buying sloped off quickly as successive hot days burned out the enthusiasm of garden-conscious homemakers.

Large trees, in some places, died as they stood. By the end of May the cattle in wide areas began to die from lack of feed. In some localities sheriffs were asked by owners to shoot starving cattle. The pastures were dried up and gnawed down to the grass roots. Even weeds died. In some cases farmers used tree leaves in a last desperate effort to furnish fodder to their starving animals. Wells were exhausted and there were cases where farmers were forced to drive to some neighboring town to buy water for their cattle. Many hogs died of starvation and were hauled in trucks to burial pits.

In the midst of such a bewildering and devastating phenomenon, it was natural that many people attributed the drought to the displeasure of Divine Providence due to the presumptuousness of man in seeking to curtail agricultural production by destroying or segregating crops. Sermons were preached on this subject and in one place a large church conference discussed it as a matter for serious consideration. On the other hand, many religious services were held for the purpose of praying for rain.

Even in the midst of tragedy there is humor, and the story once told by William Allen White, of Kansas, was revived. It concerned the case of an old Methodist preacher at Emporia, who, when importuned to pray for rain, said, shaking his head, "Brethren, 'tain't no use to pray for rain when the wind's in the southwest."

Dust Even Turns Rain Into Showers of Mud.

IT is readily understood, therefore, why a long and severe drought is a peculiarly depressing phenomenon. On some of the prairie lands there have been clouds of dust arising from dry river beds, and upon several occasions there have been light showers in which dust created drops of mud, followed by dry dust storms, so that dust got between the teeth and in the nostrils and lungs of the populace.

There has been much talk in the midlands about the lowering of the water table, presumably caused by drainage of sloughs and the facilitating of run-off to the Mississippi, the cutting of timberlands, and failure to hold surface water where it gathers. One beneficent effect of great spring drought of 1934 will be an impetus to the movement to construct artificial lakes, dam the draws and terrace the hillsides to conserve the precious fluid, too often taken for granted. In some cases great sloughs will be allowed to go back to the primitive. Redwing blackbirds, snipe, wild ducks and the booming thunder-pumpers will again occupy the land once used for farming in the flush decades centering about the World War era.

The weather men say that plenteous and compensatory rains will come again, in the mysterious cycles of climate, and in the midlands, even now, the meadows are growing green.

Probably by autumn, except in the semiarid belt, the drought will be only a memory, for nature has a marvelous recuperative power and her scars are soon healed.

"Next year we will have good crops."

That is the valiant formula of the Midwest farmer in reply to any calamity.

Baptists Open Parley Today

Maryland and District Churchmen Meet at Frederick.

Frederick, Md., July 5 (Spl.).—The eighteenth annual Maryland and District of Columbia Baptist summer assembly will open at Braddock Heights tomorrow and continue until July 13. Between 500 and 600 delegates are expected.

The Baptist Young People's Union will hold its convention from tomorrow until Sunday. The Maryland-District of Columbia pastors' conference will be held July 9-13. The training school for Sunday school workers and the B. Y. P. U. culture courses will occur at the same time. Platform addresses will be held each day from July 8-13. The Maryland Woman's Missionary Union will meet July 9-13.

Registration of delegates for the young people's convention will begin tomorrow. A sunset service will be held, conducted by the Rev. J. P. Gulley, Crozet, Va., followed by opening of the conference by Dr. Wilfred C. Tyler, Annapolis, president. Dr. John L. Hill, Nashville, Tenn., will speak on "Christ, Our Authority." A social hour will follow.

The Rev. William C. Royal, this city, is president of the assembly; the Rev. H. W. O. Millington, Washington, advisory director, and the Rev. Joseph T. Watts, Baltimore, general director.

Daily Talk About Books and Authors

College Instructors' List of Reading.

Prof. Atwood Townsend, of New York University, has directed a survey of 33 colleges to discover which books in English literature are most widely recommended to undergraduates. The result is decidedly interesting.

The book that leads all the rest is Jane Austen's novel, "Pride and Prejudice." It had 29 of the 33 who sent in lists. This is a very good choice, I think, but how astounded Jane herself would have been could she have been told that more than 100 years after her death her novel would lead a carefully selected list, made by professional teachers of literature.

The first 25, with the number of votes each received, are as follows:

"Pride and Prejudice," 29; Hardy's "The Return of the Native," 25; Thackeray's "Henry Esmond," 25; Hawthorne's "The Scarlet Letter," 24; Meredith's "The Ordeal of Richard Feverell," 24; Thackeray's "Vanity Fair," 24; Bennett's "Old Wives' Tale," 22; G. Eliot's "Adam Bede," 22; Dickens' "David Copperfield," 21; G. Eliot's "Mill on the Floss," 21; Lytton Strachey's "Queen Victoria," 21; S. Butler's "The Way of All Flesh," 20; Conrad's "Lord Jim," 20; Dickens' "Pickwick Papers," 20; Hardy's "Tess of the D'Urbervilles," 20; Howell's "The Rise of Silas Lapham," 20; C. Bronte's "Jane Eyre," 19; G. Eliot's "Romola," 19; Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer," 19; Kipling's "Kim," 19; Blackmore's "Lorna Doone," 18; Boswell's "Life of Johnson," 18; Hudson's "Far Away and Long Ago," 18; Reade's "The Cloister and the Hearth," 18; Scott's "The Heart of Midlothian," 18; Stevenson's "Kidnaped," 18; E. Wharton's "Ethan Frome," 18.

Mark Twain's "Huck Finn" got 17 votes and "Tom Sawyer" the same. The list on the whole is a good one, but it seems, with the exception of some recent names like Bennett and Butler and Conrad, as if it had been made out 20 years ago. Thus it is a little surprising to see George Eliot score three times in the leading 25, for it is certain that she is not as much read now as she was at the turn of the century. The preference given to Thackeray over Dickens is also rather contrary to contemporary taste; and I am mildly astonished to see Meredith stand so high on the list, and also Howells, though it is perhaps a good sign. It is rather curious that nothing of Henry James appears, not even on the first 72 books that were reported.

Of these 72, there are 58 by English authors, 13 by Americans and one (Cellini) by a Continental. There are 40 books from the nineteenth century, 23 from the twentieth and only three previous to 1700.

Resorts at Capital's Doorstep Run Scale of Vacation Joys From Mountains to Sea

Overnight Rail or Boat Trips Lead to Summer Playgrounds

Virginia Retreats Offer Smart Society Centers or Secluded Nooks, Sports in Endless Variety, Ideal Climate and Historical Interest.

Somewhere in an old book there is a legend of a man who left his home early one morning to seek mushrooms. After hours of tramping through faraway fields and dells, he returned to his little hut empty-handed and weary, only to find that, during his absence, thousands of mushrooms had sprung up around his doorway.

Similarly, when you plan your vacation don't overlook the vacation opportunities awaiting you nearby. For, because of a kind nature and the wisdom of Virginians, the Old Dominion is an ideal vacation land—whether you desire mountains, sea breezes, golf, yachting, deep or fresh water fishing, or historic scenes, you'll find them there, and when you return to your home, you'll be able to look back to a perfect holiday.

The nearby location of Virginia's vacation-land, close to Washington and the centers of Eastern population, makes her many mountain and seashore resorts available by an overnight rail or boat trip, or from Washington, only a few hours by automobile. In the mountains are many famous mineral springs around which resorts have sprung up that annually attract many thousands of exacting vacationists.

Summer Weather Ideal.

The climate is ideal, free from extremes of heat and cold at all seasons of the year, and those who go for their summer holidays lose forever their belief that Virginia is to be classed as a hot Southern State, so far as summer temperature is concerned. In the mountain resorts, blankets are necessary at night, and even at the seashore they will be comfortable.

If your vacation is incomplete, if your favorite rod and reel isn't with you, your fondest dreams will come true and not only will you be able to brag about the one that got away, but you'll be able to bring photographic proof of the big ones which didn't escape. There's marvelous fishing whether you like to cast your line in a mountain stream, a freshwater lake, a mill-pond or a salt-water bay or even in the ocean.

Virginia's scenic beauty is one of her chief attractions, with an excellent system of new, hard-surfaced highways leading the automobile tourist to hundreds of interesting and historic places. Many developed and safe caverns and other natural wonders such as the Natural Bridge of Virginia, 14 miles from Lynchburg, the Natural Tunnel and the Luray Caverns are exhibits of the beauty and grandeur nature has bestowed upon Virginia.

Seashore Resorts.

But let's examine some of these vacation opportunities in more detail: For instance, the seashore resorts.

There's Virginia Beach, near historic Norfolk, Newport News, and Portsmouth, the leading ocean resort in Virginia. Here are more than a score of excellent hotels and cottages, and over 30 miles of white sandy beath beckons to the bather. There's surf bathing and protected bathing in beautiful salt-water pools. When swimming palls, you may find amusement at any one of the nearby golf courses, riding clubs, or casinos, and you'll never worry about the summer heat. Virginia Beach has the reputation of never being without a cool breeze.

Other seashore vacation points are Cape Henry, adjoining Virginia Beach on the north; Ocean Park, Chesapeake Beach, Old Point Comfort, Colonial Beach, Buckroe Beach, and, on the Eastern Shore, Wachapreague, Chincoteague Island, both in Accomack County, and Cape Charles in Northampton County.

It's an ill wind, they say, which blows no good, but the ill winds accompanying the storm of late 1933 blew much good to the seashore vacationist, for the storm-ravaged properties along the waterfronts have been replaced with finer and more modern resorts, including a new $65,000 beach club at Virginia Beach, and hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent renovating cottages, hotels and casinos.

Naval Show Place.

Great military and naval pageants will interest visitors this summer. The advance units of the United States fleet are now stationed in Hampton Roads, and during July and August, will come the battle fleet, the scout fleet, and the auxiliary fleet. Mighty battleships, fast and powerful cruisers, slim destroyers, elusive submarines, and naval airplanes from aircraft carriers will be seen at Hampton Roads and in maneuvers off the Virginia Capes.

Sporting events planned for this summer include motorboat races, skeet shoots and tennis, and there is dancing.

Perhaps you'd rather take to the cool mountains for your holiday. The magnificent views in the Shenandoah National Park, covering 250 square miles, may interest you more than the fashion parades on the beach. Well, your mountains are waiting for you, mountains unexcelled for scenic beauty, historic interest, and popularity. Mountain climbing, horseback riding and motoring await you there.

Shenandoah National Park, which includes a part of eight counties: Rappahannock, Madison, Greene and Albemarle lying on the eastern slopes of the Blue Ridge, and Warren, Page, Rockingham and Augusta on the western slopes, is being made even more beautiful and accessible by the Federal Government. Skyland, the famous resort on top of the Blue Ridge, is one of the most famous resorts of its kind in the country.

Trout-Stocked Streams.

In 1931, 700,000 trout—brook and rainbow—were carefully distributed in Virginia streams, and in the following year, 300,000 legal-sized trout, 7 inches or longer, were placed in selected waters. Virginia has baited her streams to attract the tourist-angler. Miles of well-stocked brooks, tumbling down from the mountains, await the fly fisherman, and numerous freshwater lakes, with lily-pad growth where the big ones hide, provide interest for the "plugger." Deep-sea fishermen are at home along the entire coast line, and the many salt-water bays contain many of the larger members of the finny tribe. The license fee for nonresident fishermen is low.

Points popular with the deep-sea fishermen are Sharps, Wharton Grove, Irvington, Weems and Whitestone, along the Rappahannock; Walnut Point, Lewisetta, Sandy Point, Colonial Beach and Potomac Beach along the Potomac; Reedsville, Chesapeake Beach and Westland, on Chesapeake Bay.

The historical significance of the Old Dominion is not to be forgotten. Battlefields where campaigns of three wars were waged are to be seen. Richmond had her beginnings when the country was in its swaddling clothes, and has since been cast in important roles in virtually every drama affecting the life of the Nation. There's historic Jamestown, where Capt. John Smith settled in 1609; Appomatox, where, on April 9, 1865, the gallant Lee surrendered his sword to Gen. U. S. Grant after four years of heroic struggle in the war between the States, and Monticello, the home of Thomas Jefferson, and nearby, Ash Lawn, the home of James Monroe.

Yorktown, known to every student of American history as the site of Cornwallis' surrender to Gen. Washington, is 15 miles east of Williamsburg, which, because of its historic buildings, will always be a mecca for visitors. Williamsburg, now being restored to its Colonial glory, is particularly interesting to the holiday tourist. Scores of early American dwellings there are examples of the architecture of the past. Here is located the College of William and Mary, the second oldest in the United States.

After a visit to Virginia, the holiday seeker will know the truth of Capt. John Smith's observation, 300 years ago: "Heaven and earth never agreed better to frame a place for man's habitation than in Tidewater Virginia."

Move Launched to Cool All of Senate Offices

A move to have the Senate Office Building completely air-conditioned has been launched by Senators whose offices are in the old section of the building and whose duties have compelled them to remain in the National Capital during the hot spell.

The new section of the office building is air-cooled. The air-cooled section comprises just one wing—one-fourth of the building. The difference in the temperature and quality of the atmosphere is marked. Funds for the air-conditioning the old part of the building have not been found, but it is believed they will be provided at the next session of the Senate.

High Awards Court Set.

The next court of awards for the presentation of life, star and eagle badges will be held September 22. All candidates for eagle rank will file applications by September 8, and those for life and star rank will file applications by September 15.

Four courts of award will be held each year instead of three as in the past. Applications for eagle rank are to be filed two weeks before the court, and those for life and star rank, one week.

Camp Wilson.

Sunday morning found Camp Wilson recovering from the storm of the night before, which put the pipe line and the telephone out of commission blew down a few tents, but in no wise dampened the ardor of the "gang" which appeared for the barbecue. Though the outside festivities were interfered with, the beef was served in the commissary and everyone got a double portion.

The camp publication, the Camper, appeared for the first time on Saturday and contains interesting information concerning Director Loftis who, it appears, is a former Texan, a former cowboy, and the Scoutmaster of Troop 212, besides being the pastor of the Silver Spring Baptist Church. Carleton (Bud) Wahl, the activities director, is revealed as a Kentuckian with the bearing of a colonel.

The pool was found to be a swirling torrent of muddy water but under the leadership of Frenchy and his pal, Tim, every Scout dived in and enjoyed the cooling tinge to an otherwise hot skin.

Sunday school was largely attended, with Frenchy, assisted by some of the boys, leading the devotions. Mr. Grening of Troop 43 brought the lesson on "service." The lively singing was accompanied by two cornets.

The vesper service was conducted by the director and the Rev. Ralph Smith, of the Woodside Methodist Church, spoke. Many adult visitors were present. These services will be held every Sunday evening throughout the summer by church groups.

Druggists to Meet At Hot Springs, Va.

Hot Springs, Va., July 5 (Spl.).—James M. Lea, of Schoolfield, president of the Virginia Pharmaceutical Association, will preside over the fifty-third annual meeting of the association here July 9, 10 and 11.

Among those who will address the pharmacists are J. W. Ballentine, of New York, and Frederick J. Nichols, of Dayton, Ohio. Dr. Harold W. Miller, of Woodstock, is scheduled to read a paper on "The Physician and the Pharmacist."

Culbertson on Bridge

Bridge in Scandinavia.

Outside of the United States and Great Britain there is probably no place on the globe where there is so much interest in bridge as in the Scandinavian countries, Norway, Sweden and Denmark. So keen is interest there that one of the leading newspapers annually conducts a tournament at which attendance in the finals far outdistances all records made by American events of this type. The Scandinavian people, profiting perhaps from their long winter nights, specialize in the deeper problems both of bidding and play.

Recently a nation-wide problem-composing competition was conducted in Norway, and first prize was given to Gustav Devold, whose entry was the following:

In double-dummy problems the question of bidding is immaterial. A certain contract is assumed and the question is how either the Declarer or the defense can take a certain number of tricks. In the hand above, hearts are trump, with East as Declarer. South is the dealer, and North and South are required to win four tricks against any line of play followed by the holders of the East and West hands.

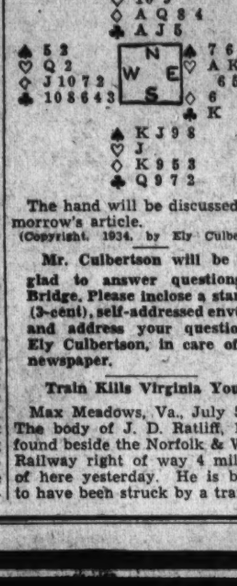
A study of the hands shows three tricks as practically certain—one trick in clubs, one in trumps and one in diamonds. The means by which the fourth trick can be attained is not so apparent. In the following solution the line of play followed by East is assumed. The possible variations are left to the reader's imagination.

The Opening lead is the club King, which is won by the Ace in Dummy, and the return is a small spade, which East wins with the King. East now leads the diamond six and finesses the Jack in Dummy, which North allows to hold; and the next lead, the diamond King, drops South's Queen and is taken by North's Ace. South is now given an opportunity to cash his club trick, and after that Dummy's lone Ace of trumps is removed. Then East ruffs a small diamond with the heart Ten, South discarding a spade. And when East returns the heart Queen, South wins with the King and returns the spade Queen, removing the entry in Dummy for the established diamonds. Now no matter what play is made by Declarer, South can cash his heart nine.

It will be observed that a trump lead at the beginning will serve no useful purpose in holding the defending side to three tricks, as the diamonds can not be established and South must win one spade trick. The hand presents many interesting problems in play.

Tomorrow's Hand.

East, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.



The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Train Kills Virginia Youth.

Max Meadows, Va., July 5 (AP).—The body of J. D. Ratliff, 17, was found beside the Norfolk & Western Railway right of way 4 miles east of here yesterday. He is believed to have been struck by a train.

Souder's Body Taken From Potomac River

The body of Boyd Souder, 27, of 2030 North Capitol street, was recovered yesterday from the Potomac River near Three Sister Islands. Souder was drowned Tuesday when his canoe capsized below Chain Bridge.

F. W. Hetfield, of 1233 Lawrence street northeast, found the body as he fished from one of the islands. Miss Oma Smith, of Grafton, W. Va., and Eugene Barnard, of 57 Randolph street, northwest, with Souder when the canoe upset, swam to shore.

Valley Airport Gets $1,000 FERA Budget

Waynesboro, Va., July 5 (Spl.).—The Valley Airport here has been allotted $1,000 by the FERA to complete CWA improvement projects. This sum will provide, in addition to labor, money for one foreman and rental of equipment.

City Manager I. G. Vass said the work will require about six days.

Three Church Schools To Picnic Tomorrow

The annual church school outing of the Church of the Ascension, Silver Spring, Md., will be held in conjunction with those of All Saints Episcopal Church, of Benning, and St. Matthew's Catholic Church, at Glen Echo Park, tomorrow.

Radio Waves and Ripples

MOST of yesterday afternoon we spent in the company of one or two radio scribes, theater managers, &c., with the Voice of Experience. Your good man of radio, who gets more fan mail than anyone else.

We and the radio scribes wanted very much to take this man apart and see what makes him work. Our vivisectional desires probably weren't particularly to be admired, because we had been asked there to lunch.

The Voice, whom you should know by this time as M. Sayle Taylor, Ph. D., spoke often and said much. He spoke of broken lives, weirdly and fantastically, often quite accidentally, mended. We gathered that the Voice was three or four men, or should be. And we learned much.

We learned, for example, that you may, with impunity, tell the Voice about the time you forgot to come back from the store with a pint of cream and change from a $2 bill and went to the ball game instead, giving your right name and address. It will be all right. He won't tell anyone, even radio editors. And there's a codicil in his will which provides that a trunk in which he keeps all mail like that shall be burned, contents and all, at his death.

The Voice is such a combination of factors as we have seldom been privileged to see in any man. He is, in a sense, the man who used to come around to your high school and tell the boys and girls separately—about the facts of life. And he belongs as properly in the category in which he likes to see himself—"somewhere between the preacher and the country doctor."

The voice is also a good man, as good as you think he is. He has to be. It wouldn't help his business to be otherwise.

"I never go to night clubs," he said. "I never go out in public anywhere, except to boxing matches."

One slip—poof!

Getting Personal.

David Ross, recalls Columbia's publicity department, once was awarded the medal of the American Academy of Arts and Letters for good radio diction. Quite a number of people, it points out, like the way David —we really ought to be calling him Dave by now—reads poetry on his "Poet's Gold" broadcast. Well, the other day, according to the C. B. S. publicity men, a lady called . . . she said she could tell by the way Dave talked that he simply was not following the proper diet . . . so much for the American Academy of Arts and Letters . . . Babe Ryan, who sings with Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians, is part Cherokee . . . her real name is Redwine . . . Ted Fiorito has written 72 song hits, including, "No, No, Nora," "Laugh, Clown, Laugh," "King for a Day," "I Never Knew" and "Now That You're Gone" . . . but he prefers Jerome Kern's "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes" . . . Kate Smith is an expert swimmer, a Red Cross life saver . . . and dives well . . . also rides an aquaplane . . . well, a sort of aquaplane . . . when Boake Carter went to school in England he was expelled for inattention and generally being a nuisance. Aside from being an interlocutor, reader, singer, announcer, continuity writer and producer of songs and hymns, Gene Arnold does practically nothing.

After several days over a hot microphone—or a stove—a lady does like to get out. Here are Rosemary Lane and Babs Ryan, cooling; Babs in the water, Rosemary in the sun.

In The Post's "meet the people who serve the public" interview series on WJSV this morning will come Margaret Cregar to face the questioning of Interviewer John Heiney.

Margaret serves the public across the counter of a downtown restaurant. The time is still 11:15 a. m.

Mrs. Eliza Dolgarn, 82, Taken by Death

Charles Town, W. Va., July 5 (Spl.).—Mrs. Eliza Jane Shughart Dolgarn, widow of the late S. S. Dolgarn, died yesterday at the home of her son, S. S. Dolgarn, near here.

Mrs. Dolgarn, 82, had been in ill health for almost a year.

The deceased was born in Shepherdstown. Surviving are one son, S. S. Dolgarn, and a daughter, Mrs. Edward Burns, of Charles Town.

The funeral will be held in the Presbyterian Church, with Dr. G. D. Sydnor, the pastor, in charge, at 4 p. m. Saturday. Interment will be made in Edge Hill Cemetery.

Shallow Dive Proves Fatal to Taxi Driver

Annapolis, Md., July 5 (Spl.).—Injuries sustained by Kenneth Ford, 24, taxi driver, Annapolis, when he dived yesterday into shallow water at Sand Caves, near the head of Severn River, proved fatal today.

Ford was bathing with friends when he made the dive. His spine was severely injured. He died in Emergency Hospital here. He is survived by his widow.

Stafford Clinics Report on Work

Fredericksburg, Va., July 5 (Spl.). Ninety-four patients were examined at the Stafford Health Department's tuberculosis clinic here during the month of June, according to figures in the monthly report of Miss Mary Andrews, community nurse.

The nurse made 195 visits for home nursing and hygiene, welfare, doctors' conferences and business purposes.

The orthopedic clinic operated by Dr. H. Graham treated 42 persons. Two children had tonsils removed.

5 Hurst in Maryland Auto-Truck Collision

Hagerstown, Md., July 5 (Spl.).—Mrs. George Lashley, Hancock, is in the Washington County Hospital with several fractured ribs and head injuries, and four others, Gladys and John Unger, Mrs. Nellie Unger and Ethel Shriver, Hancock, were less seriously hurt, when the automobile driven by George Fuss, Hancock, in which they were riding, and the truck driven by H. C. Mauck, Maugansville, collided.

The Fuss car caught fire after the crash.

Beckley Man to Head W. Va. Postal Clerks

Charleston, W. Va., July 5 (Spl.).—E. A. Kidd, of Beckley, will head the West Virginia branch of the National Federalation of Postal Clerks for the year. He succeeds Charles Young, of Charleston, elected secretary-treasurer at the clerks' annual meeting here.

Other officers are Cecil C. McDonald, Fairmont, reelected first vice president; Shirley S. Stalnaker, Morgantown, second vice president, and Arley C. Ramsey, Welch, third vice president.

Kump Rebukes Speaker For 'Rally' on July 4

Webster Springs, W. Va., July 5 (Spl.).—After Van Bittner, State head of United Mine Workers, had urged the nomination of a candidate for the U. S. Senate, Gov. H. G. Kump, another Independence Day speaker, declared it "inappropriate to endeavor to turn a patriotic meeting into a political rally."

Bittner had urged the nomination of Rush D. Holt, of Weston.

Big Bass Landed With Paddle Blow

Lumberport, W. Va., July 5 (Spl.). If you don't know how to land a good bass, learn the technique of Ray Shreve, local fisherman.

Shreve was paddling a skiff in the West Fork River, near Good Hope, when he was startled by an 11-inch bass, which flopped out of the water beside his boat. He seized an oar and struck the fish, landing it in the bottom of the boat.

There are two witnesses ready to make affidavits, namely, Albert, a brother of Ray, and his brother-in-law, Charles Beall, of Mannington, who were in the boat.

Wheeling Relief Office To Distribute Potatoes

Wheeling, W. Va., July 5 (Spl.). Word has been received here by J. D. Corcoran, commodity distributor for the Ohio County Emergency Relief Administration, that 100 carloads of potatoes will be shipped into the State from North Carolina within the next ten days.

Mr. Corcoran stated that this is the largest shipment ever to be received by the relief organization. Several weeks ago 60 carloads were distributed.

Duel Victim Dies.

Fredericksburg, Va., July 5 (Spl.).—Bernard Lee, 50-year-old colored man, injured in a pistol duel last night with Charlie Willie Allen, also colored, died today at the Mary Washington Hospital, while Allen was still in a critical condition tonight. The men engaged in a gun battle over a colored girl, officers said.

Two Women End Own Lives by Gas

Norfolk, Va., July 5 (Spl.).—Mrs. Elsie Virginia Etheridge, 22, and Miss Ida May Land, 19, ended their lives last night with gas.

Mrs. Etheridge and her 4-year-old son, with two neighbors, started for the seashore yesterday. When they reached the home of friends in Brambleton, Mrs. Etheridge complained of being tired, and returned to her home here. Some time later neighbors heard the boy crying, and when they investigated they found the mother dead in the kitchen. Gas was escaping from the stove.

Miss Land ended her life at the home of her sister, Mrs. J. F. Maunder, Portsmouth. She was a daughter of the late Capt. William M. Land, of the Portsmouth Police Department. Despondency is said to be the only possible motive.

Nelson County Bars Married Teachers

Waynesboro, Va., July 5 (Spl.).—Women school teachers who are married will not be employed in Nelson County public schools, the Nelson County School Board rules, effective for the 1934-35 session. Married teachers who taught last session will be reemployed, however.

The ruling also provides that if a woman teacher marries during the school term this action constitutes an immediate resignation from her position.

Federal Bids to Be Opened.

Chatham, Va., July 5 (Spl.—Bids for the site of a new Federal building here to cost about $80,000 will be opened July 16. Several pieces of property are being offered.

"Dead Cats and the New Deal."

"But make no mistake about it: by virtue of Government meddling, if you please, we were saved from a bottomless abyss. We have eaten. Some six millions of us have got jobs again; we have ceased to worry about the safety of our money in the bank; trade is picking up; public confidence is improved, and after four intolerable years, there is at least a little hope of security.

"Business is better. Agreed. But is business in a position to underwrite the whole community as the Government has been forced to do? Can it give jobs to ten or even six millions? Above all, can it function in the form of an automatic, self-regulating system as it did, after a fashion, prior to 1929? It can not."

STUART CHASE has made it his business to be curious about the world. In 1929, before the crash, he wrote a book questioning the basis of prosperity and prophesying its collapse . . .

IN 1932 he wrote "A New Deal" and soon the Democrats were using the slogan . . .

HIS broad knowledge of economic affairs is reflected in his book, "Mexico; a Study of Two Americas!"

Homes Give Travel Index Of Society

Vacationists' Roll Call Found in List of Closed Homes.

Elite's Residence Area Dozes in Summer Interlude.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

Out Massachusetts avenue way there is a group of very handsome homes which, like all the really handsome residences in town, have been closed for the last week or two. The newest of these is the home of the distinguished diplomat-author, Mr. Alanson B. Houghton, former United States Ambassador to the Court of St. James. Mr. and Mrs. Houghton and their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Houghton, have just spent the first season in their new home, which was completed last fall, and now they have gone to their summer home, the Meadows, at South Dartmouth, Mass.

For several years the Houghtons maintained an apartment at 1785 Massachusetts avenue, which they occupied on occasional visits to the Capital. Until they decided to make Washington their home they called Corning, N. Y., their permanent residence.

The news that they were to settle here was received with enthusiasm by their many friends, and in selecting a site in the vicinity of the British Embassy they found themselves near several of their close friends.

The Ambassador and Lady Lindsay have long been friends of Mr. and Mrs. Houghton. The Embassy, home of the Lindsays, although it is not really closed, since the activities of the chancery continue the year around, still gives the appearance of summer quiet, with the Ambassador in England and Lady Lindsay established for the summer months at Seal Harbor, Me.

Davis Home Still open.

Across Massachusettes avenue is the home of Senator and Mrs. James J. Davis, one of the most comfortable and homelike in that neighborhood. The Davis house is still open and passers-by may frequently see the four daughters of Senator and Mrs. Davis climbing into their smart little car with their governess, dark curls and braids flying, headed for the Chevy Chase Club, where they like to swim each day. The Davises have not made their plans for the summer yet, but probably will leave town early in August.

The house of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Davies, below the Houghtons on the avenue, has only one occupant now. Mr. Davies is remaining in town and spending occasional week-ends with Mrs. Davies, who is at Watch Hill, R. I.

With Mrs. Davies is her daughter, Miss Emlen Knight Davies, who returned several weeks ago from her studies at Vassar College, and another daughter, Mrs. Aldace Walker, of New York, the former Miss Rahel Davies. Young Mr. Walker joins them for week-ends, and another son-in-law and daughetr of Mr. and Mrs. Davies, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Patton Cheeseborough, jr., are also frequent visitors, motoring from their home in Greenwich, Conn., with their two young children, Jo and Alice Connolly.

The former Hungarion legation, next to the Davies' has been occupied by the Undersecretary of State and Mrs. William Phillips during the past season. Mrs. Phillips with her debutante daughter, Miss Beatrice Phillips, and the younger members of the family, have gone to their summer home at Beverley Farms, Mass., where Mr. Phillips spends as much time with them as he can spare from his duties in the State Department.

Mrs. Hicks and Son Sail.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Davidge, whose home is situated near the Phillpis, have gone to their summer place, Mount Prospect, at Lancaster, N. H., to rest themselves for the busy winter they will have when they return to Washington. For on the day after Thanksgiving they will present their daughter, Miss Martha Davidge to society at an afternoon reception, and after that their days and nights will be filled with parties for the debutante, most of which they will attend with her as chaperones.

Another lovely home near the Davidges' is that of Mrs. Frederick C. Hicks. Mrs. Hicks has closed her house, and last week, accompanied by her young son, Frederick, sailed for Europe. She will spend several weeks in England.

Lady Chilton Pays Visits in America

Daughter Accompanies Her From England.

Lady Chilton, wife of Sir Henry Getty Chilton, British Ambassador to Chile, arrived in New York Wednesday from England, for her annual visit to the United States. Heretofore Lady Chilton has been accompanied on her trips to America by her two daughters, Mrs. Desmond Dreyer, the former Miss Betty Chilton, and Miss Anne Chilton. This year, however, Mrs. Dreyer, whose wedding took place last winter in England, is remaining with her husband in England. Miss Anne Chilton accompanied Lady Chilton on the voyage.

Lady Chilton will make a series of visits with her many close friends at summer resorts, later going to her former home in Grand Rapids, Mich., to spend some time with relatives.

Before she sails for Chile the end of the summer to join her husband, she probably will pay a short visit to Washington, where Sir Henry was commercial counselor of the British Embassy for several years, before he went as Minister of Great Britain to Vatican City, following which tour of duty he was appointed Ambassador to Chile.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Blair Yonker and Miss Mary Kathryn Spinks were hosts to a group of Washington's younger set at dinner on the Shoreham terrace last evening, in honor of Miss Margart English and her fiance, Mr. Richard Longstreet Poor, who are to be married July 12. Mr. Yonker and the former Miss Elizabeth Kitt were married in Washington last April 4.

The guests last evening included Mr. and Mrs. George A. Berry, Miss Betty West, Miss Mildred English, Miss Peggy Poor, of Annapolis, Md.; Miss Anna Randell, of Dallas, Tex.; Miss Madeline Yonker, Mr. Winton Elliott, Mr. Merton A. English, jr., Mr. Robert Snyder, Mr. Fergus Lloyd, Mr. Bradford Swope and Mr. John English.

Koepler-Blackwell Engagement Told

Alexandria Attorney Will Wed Bluefield Girl.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Letitia Koepler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. E. Koepler, of Bluefield, W. Va., and Mr. Carey Howard Blackwell, Alexandria, Va., the ceremony to be performed on the evening of August 25, at Christ Episcopal Church, in Bluefield.

Miss Koepler attended Greenbrier School, Lewisburg, W. Va., for two years, being a member of the executive committee and president of the class. She also served as president of the graduating class at Arlington Hall, in Washington, last year. She was a member of Delta Beta, honorary dramatic fraternity, and secretary and treasurer of the Arlington Athletic Association. Miss Koepler was appointed princess of the Elkins forest festival by Senator A. W. Reynolds, jr., last year. During the past winter she attended the Katherine Gibbs School in New York, graduating in June.

Mr. Blackwell, a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Blackwell, of Alexandria, was graduated from the University of Virginia and attended George Washington University. He is at present associated with the firm of J. S. Blackwell & Sons, in Alexandria.

The marriage of Miss Eno to the Third Secretary of the British Embassy, Mr. Hopkinson, took place several years ago, and since then they have been making their home sometimes in London, and at the various posts of Mr. Hopkinson.

Mrs. Hopkinson is now visiting Mrs. William T. Carter at Bryn Mawr, Pa., and later will go to Saugatuck, Conn.

Miss Bellows Becomes Bride In Minneapolis

Wed to Philip Pillsbury at Congregational Church Rites.

Of interest to Washington is the wedding which took place yesterday afternoon in the Plymouth Congregational Church in Minneapolis, when Miss Eleanor Bellows, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Adams Bellows, of Washington, became the bride of Mr. Philip Winston Pillsbury, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Pillsbury, of Minneapolis. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Harry P. Dewey.

The church was decorated with greens and white flowers. Tall poplar trees lined the choir loft walls, and below them were masses of cybotium ferns. On the altar tall tapers in handsome candelabra lighted the scene.

The procession to the altar was headed by the ushers, who included the bride's brother, Mr. Charles Bellows, and Mr. Pillsbury's brothers-in-law, Mr. John Austin Becker, jr., of Albany, N. Y., and Mr. Oswald Bates Lord, and Mr. Elliott Bates McKee, of New York City.

Attendants in White.

Gowns of white mousseline de soie and hats to match, were worn by the bride's attendants, Miss Louise Marckwald, of Short Hills, N. J., maid of honor; and the bridesmaids, Miss Harriet Sexton, of Grand Rapids, Mich., and Miss Beatrice Wells, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart W. Wells, of Minneapolis. Their gowns had square neck lines, huge shoulder puffs, and were made with flaring skirts. Green velvet was the only trimming on their poke bonnet hats, and they had slippers to match. Their bouquets of maidenhair fern were tied with green organdy.

Three brides in the Pillsbury family had previously worn the Patou gown of ivory white panne velvet and the veil which Miss Bellows chose to wear at her marriage.

Those young women are Mrs. Lord (Mary Pillsbury), who was married in Minneapolis in December, 1929; Mrs. McKee (Katherine Pillsbury), whose marriage took place in Paris in May, 1930, and Mrs. Becker, a bride of September, 1932, in Plymouth Church. The gown was fashioned on extremely simple princess lines with long sleeves edged with pearls. Brussels lace edged the train, which hung six yards in length from the waistline.

Heirloom Collar.

For an added remembrance she wore the bertha collar of duchess lace which had elaborated the gown of her mother, and Mrs. Bellows' mother, the late Mrs. C. R. Sanger, of Cambridge, Mass. The veil of rosepoint appliqué lace was fastened beneath a fitted cap caught at the sides with orange blossoms. White orchids and lilies of the valley formed the bride's bouquet. Miss Bellows was escorted to the altar by her father and they were met there by Mr. Pillsbury and his best man, Mr. Robert Watson Pomeroy, of Camden, S. C.

Members of the two families, the bridal party, and out-of-town guests at the wedding reception followed the ceremony at the William P. Hallowell home at Ferndale, Lake Minnetonka, where Mr. and Mrs. Bellows have been spending most of the summer. Garden flowers formed the decorations there. Mrs. Bellows, who received with the bridal couple, wore a brown and dusky printed gown and a brown hat. Her flowers were pansies. Mrs. Pillsbury wore gray chiffon and her large black horsehair hat was trimmed with red roses. Violets formed her bouquet.

Mr. Pillsbury and his bride plan to go East on their wedding trip and will make their home in Chicago upon their return. For traveling the bride wore a blue and white checked ensemble with a small blue hat.

Hughes Set Out On Journey North

Travel to New Hampshire From New York.

The Chief Justice and Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, who have been in New York for some time, stopping at the Plaza while they visited their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William T. Gossett, have gone to Bretton Woods, N. H.

The Chief Justice and Mrs. Hughes made no statement of their summer plans, but their starting route indicates they may travel as they did last year, when they motored to Canada and returned by a different route, stopping wherever fancy dictated for as long as the chosen places pleased them.

Admiral and Mrs. Bass Sojourn in Chevy Chase

Rear Admiral and Mrs. Ivan E. Bass have arrived in Washington for a visit after three years of duty in the Orient, and are at 3909 Jocelyn street, Chevy Chase. They returned to this country by way of Europe, and before coming to the Capital Admiral Bass visited members of his family in Louisiana and Mississippi, while Mrs. Bass visited her family at Cambridge, Mass.

Admiral and Mrs. Bass will remain here for two weeks, after which they will go to Newport News, Va., where the former has been assigned to duty.

Miss Veverka, Soon to Depart, Feted at Party

Miss Harris Entertains for Czechoslovakian Envoy's Daughter.

Pretty Nella Veverka, debutante daughter of the Minister of Czechoslovakia and Mme. Veverka, has had a glorious time during the past winter and spring. After her debut, her time was occupied with numerous parties every day and every evening, and now with the spring and early summer behind her, Miss Veverka with her family is about to leave the Capital for six months.

Yesterday afternoon Miss Florence Harris, a sister debutante and close friend of Miss Veverka, entertained at a large cocktail party in her honor.

Miss Veverka, who is tall and blonde with a beautiful beige suntan which fashion dictates this season instead of the deep mahogany tones of last year, received with her hostess who is equally tall and brunette.

Depart Tomorrow.

They made a striking couple, Miss Veverka in a white semisports silk trimmed with a navy blue anchor, and Miss Harris in a simple but smart white linen. Mrs. Russell-Bennett, mother of Miss Harris, wore a black chiffon printed with large figures of orange and green, and fashioned with a brief jacket.

The Minister and Mme. Veverka, with their daughter and their son, Mr. Ferdinand Veverka, will leave early tomorrow morning by motor for Moosehead Lake, Me., where they will spend several weeks, sailing the end of August for Europe.

They will go to Prague to remain about four months, and during their stay Miss Veverka will be presented to society in her own country.

Sports Devotees.

The Veverkas have been seen frequently at the Chevy Chase Club this summer. Father and son, both splendid tennis players, spend much time on the courts.

Mme. Veverka, looking scarcely older than her daughter, and Miss Veverka have favored swimming as a diversion. Mme. Veverka wears a smart rubber suit of brown with a halter-neck top of brown and white plaid. Miss Veverka also chooses a rubber suit of soft jade green or white.

The Minister of Austria and Mme. Prochnik and their young daughter, Miss Valerie Prochnik, have been seen frequently at the club playing tennis and swimming. They will leave the first of next week for Rehoboth Beach, Del., where they will open their cottage for the remainder of the season.

Coolidges End Visit With Woodrings Here

Senator and Mrs. Marcus A. Coolidge are now at their home in Fitchburg, Mass., after spending some time with their son-in-law and daughter, the Assistant Secretary of War and Mrs. Harry H. Woodring, and the Woodrings' infant son, who has been named for his grandfather, Marcus Coolidge Woodring.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodring will spend the summer at His Lordship's Kindness, the estate of Mrs. Chandler Hale, at Upper Marlboro, Md., which they leased early in the season.

Miss Meushaw Weds Monday

Marriage to James Perry Will Be at Kenwood Country Club.

Miss Helen Elise Meushaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Conklin Meushaw, will become the bride of Mr. Marlow Perry, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Sidney Perry, of Nashville, Tenn., on Monday evening at 8 o'clock at the Kenwood Country Club. The Rev. Michael J. Riordan will officiate.

The bride will have as her attendants Miss Margaret Estey, as maid of honor, and these bridesmaids: Miss Betty Parker, Miss Phebe Gale, Miss Mildred Sullivan and Miss Clara Belle Armstrong.

Mr. Perry will have as his best man Mr. Claiborne Armstrong, and the ushers will be Mr. Edwin Hutchinson, Mr. Henry Whiting, Mr. DeWitt Hyde, and Mr. Donald Bittinger, all of Washington; and Mr. Ronald Levy and Mr. Lorne Guild, of Baltimore. A reception will follow the ceremony.

Mr. Durham will entertain at a dinner Sunday evening in Warrenton, Va., for the bride and bridegroom-elect and the members of the wedding party, following the rehearsal.

Technique of Personality Consists of Small Mannerisms Executed With Naturalness

N. E. A. Meet To Hold Final Session Today

Nu Alpha, Kappa Delta Pi Chapter, Announces New Officers.

THE final business session of the seventy-second annual meeting of the National Education Association will be held at 8:30 o'clock this morning in the Washington Auditorium, with Miss Jessie Gray, president, presiding.

After musical selections by the United States Navy Band, under the leadership of Lieut. Charles Benter, and the invocation by the Rev. Gove Griffith Johnson, unfinished business of the previous sessions will be discussed.

Thomas E. Benner, dean, College of Education, University of Illinois, will speak on "Democracy in Education," and Armand J. Gerson, associate superintendent of schools, Philadelphia, will talk on "Culture for Democracy."

The following committees will make reports: Board of directors, board of trustees, budget committee, election committee and committee on resolutions.

A business discussion will follow the introduction of the new president.

Newly elected officers of Nu Alpha Chapter, Kappa Delta Phi Sorority, are Miss Laney Payne Sadler, president; Miss Jewell Robinson, vice president; Miss Dorothy B. Cox, secretary; Miss Maud Ecton, treasurer; Miss Pearl Henry, mistress of ceremonies; Miss Pauline Aker, historian; Miss Ola Perry, guard, and Miss Alma Gerstner, monitor.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Prince Georges County Volunteer Firemen's Association met last night at Tuxedo, Md., for the nomination of officers for next year. The election will be held at the organization's annual convention, August 11 at Branchville, Md.

A dinner will be given by the Col. Tench Tilghman Chapter of the D. A. R. in honor of the regent, Mrs. William Chase, and the newly elected officers at 7 o'clock tonight at the Congressional Country Club.

Among those who will attend are: Mrs. Henry Zoller, jr., vice president general; Mrs. Arthur Shanklin, Maryland State regent; Mrs. Wilbur B. Blakeslee, Maryland vice regent, and Miss Adelphine Hall, Maryland State librarian.

The following delegates will represent Gamma Chapter of Chi Sigma Sorority at its National convention which opened yesterday at Little Rock, Ark.: Miss Lois Mertz, president of Gamma Chapter; Miss Louise Leach, National secretary, and Miss Mary Wood, Alpha Province president.

A special meeting will be held by the chapter on July 24 at the home of Miss Lois Mertz.

The District Chapter of the Daughters of America will hold a meeting this afternoon at the Raleigh Hotel.

Strictly Speaking

Can You Answer These?

1. How is Czechoslovakia pronounced? Who is the president of Czechoslovakia?
2. What is the correct pronunciation for library?
3. Is the accent in address on the first or second syllable?
4. What is the widely used word meaning "easy to teach" or "easily managed?"
5. What is the best synonym for the adjective learned? How is it pronounced?

Check Answers Here.

1. Czechoslovakia is pronounced CHEK-o-slo-VAK-ia. The president of this country is Masaryk, called MAW-sa-reek.
2. Library is properly pronounced LIE-bray-ri, not LIE-bri. All three syllables should be enunciated.
3. Both the verb address and the noun address are pronounced ad-DRESS, not AD-dress.
4. Docile—pronounced either DOS-il or DO-sile. In this country the first is in common use while the second is heard more often in England.
5. Erudite is the best synonym for learned. It is pronounced ER-u-dite.

SAID TO HAVE the most magnetism of any woman in Hollywood, the gifted and fascinating Miriam Hopkins, stage and screen actress pictured below, candidly advises women to develop a technique of personality expression. Frances Starr, right, famous Belasco star, who in private life is Mrs. Golden Donaldson, of Washington, gives much the same advice. "Listen with your eyes and hear with your heart," is one of her formulas for registering gracious attentiveness.

The French Know How to Listen; Do It With Charming Intensity

Sympathy and Kindness Ingredients That Make Any Personality Delightful; Carried to the Point of Laughing at Flat Jokes They Create a Sure Success.

There is no one in all the world who can't have personality. But simply wishing for it isn't going to turn the trick. It takes developing one's natural attributes, and cultivating others. This is the fifth article in a series dealing with the how and why of personality.

By Frances Mangum.

TECHNIQUE has long been associated with playing the piano and doing water colors, but only recently with personality.

And even now there are those who deny that attaining a personality technique is at all possible. There are those who insist that it is something that springs from within like kindness, sympathy, understanding. And right they are.

But what of the attractive little mannerisms that make one woman more appealing than another? What of graceful gestures? Disarming smiles? Knowing when to talk, and when not to? And above all, how to listen?

Miriam Hopkins, one of our leading movie stars selected as possessing most of that thing called charm, confessed hers was partly a matter of borrowed tricks wisely used.

Actresses carry over their stage tricks into life. Witness Frances Starr, in private life Mrs. R. G. Donaldson, who for years has studied the characters she portrays so well on the stage.

She says: "There is certainly a technique of listening! Before the footlights a good actress is going to show her audience that she is listening, actually listening to the speech of other actors. Only the poor actress seems to be merely waiting for her cue. It is that way in everyday life, too!

Tricks from France.

"A woman can develop the power of listening interestedly," she continued. "Take the French women for example. They have the art of literally hanging upon a person's words, with lips slightly parted as though they couldn't wait to hear what was coming, their eyes alight with real response. Call it a trick if you will, but it can become natural if cultivated. And it's always effective!"

Miss Starr advocates "listening with your eyes and hearing with your heart."

"That was the advice given to me by Mr. Belasco once, and I've never forgotten it. It takes in so much. In the first place one encourages the speaker by showing one is listening. And one hears sympathetically!

"After all sympathy is the prime ingredient of personality. It is the basis of almost all attractive mannerisms. And after sympathy, kindness. The two go hand in hand.

When Mrs. Kendrick Phillips, manager of a Washington "charm school," was consulted on the subject of personality technique she had no trouble counting off on her fingers a number of things to do—and not to do.

"When a woman enters a room she should always pause first," said Mrs. Phillips. "Either just outside the door to assure her mental balance, and get her breath so to speak, or immediately within the doorway. Here, if she's dressed attractively and sure of her appearance, she can find a flattering frame. At any rate, she must never go stalking into a room. Just a little pause at the entrance gives her infinitely more poise.

As Mrs. Phillips continued to list the things a woman should keep in mind and develop, or guard against, she spoke of standing and walking with one's head up and chest out.

"Inevitably it wins you respect and admiration," she declared. "If there was only some way of stressing these things so women would really heed them!

"And then the voice. A beautifully modulated voice enhances any story and is undeniably an offspring of culture!

"As for the use of the eyes, I believe that's an individual problem. Some women use theirs admirably. Short women can frequently make themselves more feminine by cultivating a soft glance upward. Tall women must remember to look straight into a person's eyes.

The use of the hands can be easily overdone, Mrs. Phillips believes.

"Just like make-up," she said, "too much detracts, and a little is attractive. Particularly if a woman has pretty hands. Then an expressive gesture now and then is, of course, advisable. But beware of the theatrical. There's nothing worse than affectation along these lines!"

Mrs. Phillips agrees with Miss Starr that intent listening is a most important thing to be developed.

"It's flattering, it's encouraging and it's kind to look sympathetic, amused and interested in one's vis a vis.

Actresses Know How.

Successful actresses frequently study their good features and stress them in order to bring out their personality, in the opinion of S. E. Cochran, manager of the National Theater.

"Right off I can think of Leona Powers," said Mr. Cochran. "She has beautiful, graceful hands—and she uses them. And then Leneta Lane, a girl with a million-dollar figure. And what does she do? She dresses to show it off! She has flair style, and whenever her parts allow she wears striking costumes which bring this out.

"It's necessary for actresses to learn to walk well, to stand well, to sit down gracefully. If they used the things they learned on the stage, off, they'd possess a rare degree of poise," he declared.

Is the purely intellectual woman more attractive than the pretty dumb dora? Or is there a well-rounded kind of intelligence that's better than either? Find the answer in tomorrow's Post in the sixth article of this series.

Paris and Film Stylists Have No Common Goal

Hollywood Designers Curbed by Necessity for Enhancing Individual Star; Travis Banton Admits They Are Forced to Stray From Taste.

Probably there always will be a Paris-Hollywood style controversy. Here the real distinction between the work of Paris and Hollywood stylists is pointed out. This is the second of three articles on Hollywood fashions and style creations.

HOLLYWOOD, July 5 (AP).—There is really little comparison between the calling of the movie style designer and the Paris couturier.

Every design created in Hollywood must not only enhance the beauty and smartness of the star for whom it is made, but it must also emphasize the individuality of the character she is to play.

Hollywood gowns must act as the player herself acts; they must be dramatic, as one designer put it, in a dramatic way.

"When adaptations spring from a costume picture such as 'The Scarlet Empress,'" says Travis Banton, "in which Marlene Dietrich wears many costumes from which smartly dressed women are bound to capture inspiration, we are delighted. The influence provoked by Adrian's designs for Garbo in 'Queen Christina' interested and pleased Hollywood tremendously.

"But it seems grossly unfair for Parisian designers to point to certain adaptations of our costume designs in these period pictures and call them 'Hollywood Fashions.' Naturally we have no control over what hundreds of manufacturers desire to do with their conceptions of what we have originally created with authentic sincerity.

"It is by the same token Hollywood shakes its head regretfully when unwise and would-be smart women copy the wrong things from a picture which offers a choice of smart costumes.

"The Parisian stylist, on the other hand, never needs to create or to attach his famous label to anything but the smartest, most impeccable design. He knows his patrons and he never strays from the straight and narrow path of utter good taste. Unfortunately we are not able to do this in Hollywood."

THE CREATIONS OF HOLLYWOOD designers would be better accepted by the smart world, these stylists feel, if they were not so indiscriminately copied by screen fans. Few women, for instance, can wear coque feathers as fetchingly as Marlene Deitrich, above.

What Today Means

"Cancer."

If July 6 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m., from 3:30 to 5:30 p. m., and from 8:30 to 10:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:30 to 9:30 a. m., from 12:30 to 2:30 p. m., and from 6:30 to 8:30 p. m.

This July 6 probably may bring a number of agreeable surprises. You possibly will meet a very "finicky" type of individual in a business way. It might be advisable to cater to his idiosyncrasies, as it may later mean money in your pocket. Business, on the whole, might prove a little slow, but what is done should prove highly profitable. Many people will have their thoughts absorbed with plans for social activities over the week-end, and it may prove difficult to make them concentrate on the more practical issues of life.

If a woman and July 6 is your natal day, it might be advisable if you practiced the art of self-expression. As a rule, women born on this date are inclined to crawl into their shell too much. Nature endowed you with feelings so as to give you a means of expression. Giving vent to them may often afford unexpected relief and make you feel much better than if you suppressed them. You are naturally of a very affectionate disposition, and by giving free rein to your sentiments your family and friends will have the chance to realize it, which will be productive of a great deal of happiness. In business, any line of work, requiring a regular routine to be followed, might prove the most satisfactory for one of your type.

The child born on July 6, as it grows up, may show a tendency not to talk very much. This will be due to a certain amount of timidity and can be easily overcome by inculcating self-confidence. Encourage this child to participate in the family's general conversations and discussions by requesting it to express an opinion on various subjects.

If a man and born on July 6, you are energetic and capable enough to succeed in any undertaking, providing you do not hesitate to express your opinions with enough vigor to cause them to carry weight. You should have an extremely happy family life, and plenty of money.

PILLAR TO POST

Coloradoans Take It.

YOU'D think, wouldn't you, people from Colorado who are spending their first summer in Washington would be haunted by the cool rushing sound of Fern Falls, by the wild flowers and snowbanks near Timberline, by the Grand Mesa with its trout lakes, and other invigorating beauty spots of their native State. When they toss and turn on their hot mattress here wouldn't you think they'd long for those cool midsummer nights when blankets are needed on the beds?

They seem to be stoics, however.

"Heat is only a state of mind," said Legal Light Paul D. Shriver, late of Denver. "Keep busy as we do here in the Interior Department, and you won't have time to think of the heat." As he gave this sage advice a blazing afternoon sun made his office windows look like the yawning door of a steel furnace, and his red curly hair actually seemed to flame.

• • • •

John Pershing, of Denver, another young lawyer in the Interior Department, whose grandfather and Gen. Pershing's father were brothers, gave voice to similar sentiments.

And Assistant Secretary Arthur Chapman, who has not been long from "Out Where the West Begins," (he wrote that famous poem), when questioned about the heat, said:

"Fine! Fine!" and smiled. Then he walked into his private office and called up the company who installed the air conditioning system there and gave them fits because it broke down in the middle of the recent hot spell.

Cultural Movies Urged For Sake of Children

A PLEA that motion pictures be used as a means of developing the cultural attitude of the Nation was made by Dr. W. W. Charters, director of the Bureau of Educational Research of Ohio State University, in his address to members of the National Education Association at the National Academy of Science yesterday afternoon.

"The American imagination has never realized the power the motion pictures have to influence the cultural interests and tastes of the people," said Dr. Charters.

"Extensive research by psychologists, sociologists and educators has revealed the child not only retains the facts he learns from motion pictures but remembers them much longer than is ordinarily supposed. Often a test given a child six weeks after he has seen a pictures shows that he remembers more facts than the day after he saw it.

"Moreover, the child is prone to accept as truth the facts he sees on the screen. His attitude is influenced by pictures, and the effect of exposure on attitude is cumulative. For instance, children who see one picture depicting the Chinese as amiable, peace-loving people, will believe it. They will believe it more strongly if they see other pictures with the same theme."

Dr. Charters then expressed his regret that educators had failed to make use of educational pictures in schoolrooms.

Couple Handy With Needles Invades Town

Designed in New York for Years With Great Names in Clientele.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

FORTY-THREE years ago a young couple in Louisville, Ky., started out on two ventures. One was matrimony; the other, dressmaking.

From Louisville they moved to New York, where they set up business on Fifth avenue. It wasn't long before their skilled workmanship, both in designing and sewing, won for them the most select clientele in the city. The Goulds, the Morgans, the Guggenheims and numerous other families known the length and breadth of the land patronized the young couple.

But came hard times and their business, like many others, felt the crash of 1929. Recently they left New York and came to Washington.

It seems that their reputation preceded them, for no sooner were they settled than women anxious to find both designer and dressmaker who could create the unusual and render it in "a number one" fashion began calling.

No one can deny it is infinitely satisfactory to put one's wardrobe in the hands of responsible people. It's such a relief to merely select the material. Of course, one calls first and chooses the pattern from their book of French designs. Sometimes one takes the sleeves from one dress and combines them with the body of another. This dressmaking couple are adept at making any number of combinations or simply drawing on thin air for their inspiration.

When they've finished, the workmanship is exquisite. Lace, handwhipped on fine, invisible little stitches, ant the cut vying with that of French countries. As for tailoring, that's all in the day's work for them. They can turn out a suit expertly.

Portable Cocktail Tray.

There's a Connecticut avenue shop that is worth every one's while to visit. It sells novelties, all kinds of china and glassware, and innumerable useful and attractive garnishings for the home.

One of the best sellers is a folding wrought-iron frame and a large Russian peasant tray. It can be set up in the garden, on the terrace, or used anywhere around the house for cocktails, tea or beer. Few things could be more convenient than this portable idea. The tray is proof against heat, water and alcohol. And while it costs little, it will last for a long time.

As fat as its ornamental value is concerned, there's no arguing about that. A bouquet of assorted flowers lends color to the dark background.

• • • •

Slipper Chair.

First glance at a slipper chair is entirely unsatisfactory. It looks like an ordinary boudoir chair, slightly smaller than most of them. But closer inspection reveals a trick or two. The chair bottom lifts up and disloses a roomy interior to accommodate shoes, hose, handkerchiefs and what-not. If the chair is put in the nursery this space is a marvelous place for tucking away small toys.

The chair is covered in flowered chintz that will adapt it to the color scheme of almost any room. Price, only $1.99.

For Home Wading.

With the park policeman patrolling fountains and pools around town children find it difficult to do their wading close to home. If parents want to avoid the trouble of escorting them away for an afternoon and waiting while the fun goes on, they have an easy solution.

That downtown store we refer to so frequently as being in the run with new things of all kinds now has portable wading pools. And although cute is an overworked word, these are cute!

They're four square feet of metal, surrounded with a canvas wall, and include a shower. While the youngsters are splashing around they can enjoy a miniature rain storm. Naturally they love it, and the funny part is, so do adults! There have already been a couple of rather sheepish inquiries as to whether these aren't available in larger sizes.

Don't worry about the price. They're amazingly inexpensive.

• • • •

Cocktail Shakers.

Some time ago an F street shop was featuring some cocktail shakers, of hand-beaten chrome which sold for $2.50. They're the ideal size for a family of two as they shake up a goodly pint and no more. They're unusually sleek looking, with trim, graceful lines. The small cover that fits over the spout is held in place with a chain.

Thanks to a summer clearance sale these shakers have come down to $1.25.

• • • •

Another Price Crash.

Another summer sale has brought a general price crash. In a Connecticut avenue shop any number of things are selling for less than half what they used to. For instance, a grapefruit juice extractor of heavy glass, going now for 10 cents.

Call Ruth Anne Davis, of The Washington Post, National 4200, extension 105, for further information. Or write, inclosing samped, addressed envelope.

For Hot Evenings Men Wear Black and White

Collegians Started This Informal, Comfortable Fashion.

By Amos Parrish.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Black-and-white. That's a rule most generally observed where well-dressed men are gathering for semiformal affairs these warm summer evenings.

The idea was first introduced by college men. The younger business man saw how good-looking and cool-feeling these outfits were. So he copied the boys.

Now the older man is catching on and finding it easier to last out the long dances.

Three Outfits.

There are three different black-and-white outfits chosen by these comfort-seeking men.

First is the one illustrated . . . the double-breasted dinner suit consisting of white coat and black trousers.

The coat has shawl lapels and is made of gabardine, linen or tropical-weight cloths. Because the coat is worn closed, a vest or sash is unecessary. The trousers have a satin stripe down the sides.

Single-Breasted.

The second outfit is a single-breasted dinner suit, similar to the double-breasted one except for the fact that the coat has a one-button opening.

This coat is usually worn open and needs either a vest or a sash beneath it. Vests are generally of the same fabric as the coat.

Those men, however, who like the very newest things are wearing a claret-colored cummerbund sash or claret-colored vest.

Incidentally, most of the vests have open backs. Which means that they consist of nothing but the visible part and straps over the small of the neck and the back.

Mess Jackets.

Men who have a youthful, military figure still wear the mess jacket. Usually this has peaked lapels and is worn with very high rise trousers and cummerbund sash and vest which matches the jacket.

Several cool evening accessories have been developed to carry on the good work of the suits. Notable are collar-attached shirts in very cool, lightweight fabrics with pleated bosoms and folded collars.

Many of the ties for this summer are adjustable. And that means that much of the perspiration expended in getting the tie to look and feel right is avoided. Ties are tending to longer points and straight ends.

Lightweight Shoes.

Socks are mostly plain black silk and shoes are lightweight affairs of dull calf with straight toes or patent leathers with plain toes.

If the evening is cool and you are traveling by motor, a polo coat makes the most appropriate topcoat. Soft crush felt, straw or panama hats are correct.

Jewelry worn with these black-and-white outfits is the same as is worn the year round.

Men's wear of the type described may be found in Washington in all the better haberdasheries and department stores.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Irving S. Cutler.

Encephalitis—An Epidemic Disease.

Encephalitis, popularly but erroneously called sleeping sickness, is probably a relatively new disease, at least in many of its manifestations.

Cases of encephalitis are frequently puzzling to the attending physician because, at the outset, the symptoms may be familiar to or even identical with many other disease conditions. The attending physician of necessity must study the case carefully before arriving at a positive diagnosis. At first there is fever and a marked sense of weakness. Headache, nausea, vomiting, or pain in the abdomen may be present at the very outset or appear in a few days.

Early recognition on the part of physicians of the nature of encephalitis will do much toward lessening the death rate and preventing the spread of the disease. While the specific cause has not been discovered, it is known to be a filterable virus and it has been found that the blood of patients who have recovered contains a neutralizing substance against the virus itself.

CAPITAL KITCHEN

By Susan Mills.

ROAST pork is always associated with apple sauce, but that delicious combination isn't the only meat-fruit team. The added tang of fruit almost takes away the heaviness from summer meats. Since we must eat them, at least let them be appetizing.

A few suggestions:

Ham With Orange Sauce.

Panbroil a center slice of ham. For a slice cut ½ to ¾ inch thick, allow 20 minutes for cooking. When done remove to a hot platter and surround with slices of peeled oranges. Measure 2 tablespoons of fat from the ham, add 2 tablespoons flour and cook until lightly browned. Add 1 cup orange juice and blend well to avoid lumps. Cook for 5 minutes. Pour sauce over ham.

Baked Ham With Apples and Raisins.

1 thick slice ham
¾ cup warm water
1 teaspoon dry mustard
6 apples
½ cup raisins
2 tablespoons vinegar

Trim some of the fat from the ham. Cut the fat into bits. Place the ham in the bottom of a roaster. Place the bits of fat on top of the ham. Cover and place the pan in the oven and bake at 400 degrees F., for one hour. Soak raisins in water for one hour. Drain. Heat ¼ cup water drained from raisins, add vinegar and mustard.

Wash the apples, then remove the core, but do not cut clear through the apple. Place some of the raisins in the cavities in the apples. Remove the cover from the roaster, arrange the apples around the slice of ham. Pour the vinegar and mustard mixture over the ham together with the rest of the soaked raisins. Cover and return to the oven and continue baking until the apples are tender.

Apricot Sauce.

As a change from mint sauce or mint jelly, apricot sauce is just fine with lamb.

Take 2 cups cooked apricot juice and fruit. Rub some of the apricots through a sieve, but reserve a few halves for garnish. Add ¾ cup sugar, put on the stove and cook slowly. Baste the roast lamb with this and use a sauce at the table. Put in the halves of the fruit and let cook with the sauce.

SLANDER

By Arthur Somers Roche

THE car stopped before the hotel. They entered. A bellboy, excited at the late hours, showed them to their rooms on the second floor. Outside her door Cranston lingered.

"Martha, there's an early train to New York in the morning. I'd rather, if you don't mind, not see you tomorrow. You see, my dear, you haven't cured my hurt, and the more I see of you the less chance there is of it being cured. The car will be waiting to take you back to Blairsport. The man is paid. You know where I live. If you ever want me—good-by, my dear."

Martha entered her room, to fling herself face down upon the bed, to weep as she had never wept before. But even through her sobs there was something of exultation in her heart. Tomorrow, this morning rather, she would see Pete again.

Answer Came Clearly.

The sunlight streaming through the window awakened her. She sat up in bed, startled, unrecognizing her surroundings. Suddenly she remembered, but with remembrance came fear. Peter had been very brave last night, but he must have been in agony. His poor face. He had jested about it, said that it was a cure for freckles. But perhaps he would be frightfully scarred. She closed her eyes and tried to visualize a Peter without freckles, a Peter whose face was a twisted mass. Would she love such a man?

The answer came clearly to her: Until she died she would love such a man.

She rang for breakfast and the waiter who brought her meal also gave her a note. She recognized Cranston's writing. She opened it with hands that trembled.

"Dearest," the letter read, "whatever you do, whatever you decide, wherever you go, remember that a word will bring me. Bert."

She telephoned the hospital and was told that Dr. Baxter was much better, could, indeed, answer the telephone, and she waited like a nervous school girl for the sound of his voice.

"This is Martha," she told him. "How are you?"

"All right. Much better than I've any right to be. The doctors here are ready to discharge me. As the doctor told you last night, I can treat my burns myself. So I'm leaving this afternoon."

"Oh," she said blankly. "I'll see you before you go?"

"Of course," he said. "Where are you?"

"At the only hotel in town," she replied.

"I'll be over in about half an hour," he said, "Can you see me then?"

"Yes," she replied.

Could she see him then? Would there be any time in her life when she couldn't see him? In half an hour, eh? Well, that gave her time to drink a cup of coffee, to bathe, to fix her lips and her nails and to don the pretty frock she had brought with her.

It was a very pretty frock, a blue that went well with her complexion, and the stockings and shoes were perfect with it. She adjusted her tiny hat carefully when the hotel clerk announced over the telephone that Dr. Baxter was calling and she descended the stairs confidently.

He led her to a wide seat before a large plate-glass window that looked out upon Abdegon's main street.

"Where is Cranston this morning?" he demanded.

A Hard Proposition.

"He's gone to New York, Peter. I'm not going to marry him. He's the second finest man I know, but I could only marry the finest. And I'm becoming embarrassed. Is the finest going to ask me to marry him?"

Agony was in his eyes now.

"Martha, I don't know what's happened. I only know that unless I'm insane you're telling me that you care for me. And it can't be, Martha. I'm going to China, into the interior, where few white men ever stray. I'm going there because I have to go. Don't ask me why, because I couldn't answer you. Sometimes I look at myself and ask myself if it's a great vanity that makes me want to bury myself in Tai Ping. There are, you know," and whimsicality was in his voice, "such things, the modern psychologists tell us, as martyr complexes.

To be concluded tomorrow.

Lawrence Play Fails to Make Suitable Film

Lacks Action and Wallop; About President's Trip; Theater Gossip.

(Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.)

By Nelson B. Bell.

"LET'S TRY AGAIN." RKO-Radio picturization of the play, "Sour Grapes," by Vincent Lawrence, adapted to the screen by Ernest Pascal, with scenario by Worthington Minor, co-starring Diana Wynyard and Clive Brook, with Helen Vinson, Irene Hervey, Henry Kolker, Theodore Newton and Arthur Hoyt. Directed by Worthington Minor. Reviewed Wednesday afternoon.

Worthington Minor, one of the living theater's more reliable directors, and in private life the husband of Frances Fuller, Washington's adopted actress, who scored so decisively with Gary Cooper in "One Sunday Afternoon," on the screen, and with Roland Young, Laura Hope Crews and Elizabeth Patterson in "Her Master's Voice," on the stage, has not as apprehended the subtle difference between the cinema and stage techniques.

In this, his first directorial chore for the celluloids, he has transcribed a mediocre drama to the uses of the screen without distinction. "Let's Try Again," derived from Vincent Lawrence's play of "Sour Grapes," purporting to make valuable suggestions as to how the divorce evil may be effectually ameliorated, is slow-moving, repetitive and static. The terse, and often monosyllabic, dialogue lacks both euphony and conviction and, since there is no action, lets the play down woefully.

Stars Not Favored.

Never have I seen Diana Wynyard or Clive Brook when they photographed to such poor advantage—Miss Wynyard being the victim, rather than the beneficiary, of too many close-ups, and Mr. Brook seeming in perpetual need of the Toledo blade of a deft tonsorial artist. Neither manifests the slightest zest for the task in hand and either, it seems to me, might well have been rid of the other, through the divorce courts or otherwise, with only the happiest of results.

The arguments advanced to clinch the point that a love that has died during ten years of married life may be salvaged by a stream of inept and pointless conversation fall upon these tin ears as both vacuous and futile.

Supporting roles are played for what little they may be worth by Irene Hervey who found herself able to advance irrefutable reasons why her lover should abandon his infatuation for the wife of their friend, Dr. Jack Overton, and marry her; Helen Vinson, an ostensible dancer, who found herself rather on a merry-go-round, insofar as her own love for Dr. Jack was concerned; Theodore Newton, who does nothing whatever with a role that amounts practically to that, and Arthur Hoyt, who does his best to create a comedy character of some worth out of the dreary role of the butler in the Overton home.

Much as I should enjoy applauding these usually admirable mimes in their present assignments, there is no discernible peg upon which one might, with discretion hang a boost.

It is also unfortunate that little among the abundant short subjects augmenting the bill recommends itself as the object of commendatory panegyrics. A Charlie Murray-George Sidney comedy, "Plumbing for Gold," has a few moments of splashy hilarity, when the boys manage to get the gas and water mains crossed, and there is a brief and superficial appeal in the pseudo-mystery developed in the new "Minute Mystery" bearing the title of "The Missing Clue." The Scrappy cartoon comedy, "Scrappy's Theme Song," leaves a little to be desired in the matters of both spontaneous comedy and lilting melody.

The RKO News of the World, with interesting views of the start of President Roosevelt's vacation cruise, the Astor-French wedding, whales off the coast of Jersey and Bonthron's greatest race, at Milwaukee recently, is best of the auxiliaries that supplement a feature of admirable intent but faulty execution.

It is with some consternation that we observe a lapis lazuli, or a lapsis lingua, or something, in yesterday's announcement in this space that Sidney Lust is showing the Bacr-Carnera fight pictures in Mount Rainier on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, July 9, 10 and 11. Slightly in a muddle as to the names and whereabouts of Mr. Lust's various temples of the titillating tintypes, we denominated the Arcade Theater as the one in Mount Rainier where it might be ascertained that nothing happened to Primo's ankle in that first round. While Sid has Arcade theaters in both Hyattsville and Rockville, it happens that the name of his showshop in Mount Rainier is the Cameo. It is at the Cameo that the fight films are to be shown.

To reach the Cameo Theater by motor car, drive out Rhode Island avenue northeast, one block beyond the District line to your left on Thirty-fourth street. By street car, take the Mount Rainier, Md., car on G street, or wherever it runs. So now you know.

Old Hunting Ground.

It is with keen interest that this column observes in the public prints that President Roosevelt, when he lands from the U. S. S. Houston at Ponce, Puerto Rico, will motor across the Military road to San Juan, the capital of the island.

In this motor jaunt of 50-odd miles the President will view some of the most gorgeous tropical scenery upon which his eyes ever have rested. He will cross Aibonito Pass near the beginning of his motor trek, the highest point on the island, from which both the Atlantic ocean and the Caribbean sea are visible on a clear day.

It was here that Gen. Shafter was ready to blow the Spanish army into Kingdom Come, or thereabouts, when he received word that the Spanish-American War had been called off on account of darkness, or something.

The air around Aibonito Pass is still blue from what the general said at the time this message was delivered.

First Auto Trip.

This is territory of some familiarity to your reporter since he made the first trip by automobile ever made from San Juan to Ponce—the opposite direction from that in which the President will be traveling. That was back more years than we have any present intention of admitting, and the motor car was driven by Charles H. Martin, of Springfield, Mass., but before that from my native State of Indiana. It was a one-cylinder Locomobile and how it wheezed and panted over those mountains and through those fords is nobody's business! But it made it. And got back to San Juan alive—not very much alive, but alive.

I happened to be superintendent of mails for the island at the time and Charlie was after a contract to haul the mail from San Juan to Ponce, and vice versa, by motor, instead of horse. He got the job.

Tempus, in case you hadn't noticed, doesn't even hesitate. And, by the way, don't get me wrong—I was 2 years old at the time!

Incidentally, I would be willing to wager a plugged nickel against the hole in a sinker—which sounds like a cruller, doughnut? — that President Roosevelt will feel no heat in the real tropics comparable to that which Washington has been suffering these past few days. Higher temperatures on the thermometer, perhaps, but no such smothering heat as surges up from the pavements here. I'd go back there any time, in weather like this, to cool off—and it is Jack Pearl who is Baron Munchausen, not I.

Anderson Sells the Guild.

The Theater Guild of New York has purchased a new play by Maxwell Anderson for production next season.

George Washington is the central character in the new Anderson drama, which bears the title of "Valley Forge."

Mr. Anderson is no newcomer to the roster of the Theater Guild's most successful authors. Along with Eugene O'Neill and Robert Emmett Sherwood, he bears the distinction of having had numerous earlier works of his put on the boards by the canny executives of the guild. Foremost among these, perhaps, is the recently closed "Mary of Scotland," which opened in Washington prior to its New York presentation, with Helen Hayes, Helen Manken and Philip Merivale heading the cast.

Antedating this work, Mr. Anderson's "Elizabeth, the Queen," and "Both Your Houses," the 1933 Pulitzer Prize winner, both had been put on by the guild with flattering results for all concerned.

Frances Starr, in private life Mrs. R. Golden Donaldson, of Washington, has been signed by the Selwyn-Franklin interests to appear in the stellar role of "The Old Folks at Home," by A. H. Harwood, a London success to be produced on this side in the fall. Miss Starr will appear in the role played in London by Marie Tempest. The play is scheduled to open in the Plymouth Theater, New York, on September 10.

First Aid Note.

If you had observed this paragraph's admonitions in yesterday's issue, you would not have had those burns to worry about today.

And who knows what kind of a vacation spot Franklin, Pa., is?

To Occupy Local Screens Tomorrow

William Powell and Myrna Loy are pictured in a sentimental moment, above at left, during the action of the film version of Dashiel Hammett's "The Thin Man," held over for a second week at Loew's Palace, beginning Friday. Gary Cooper Is Coaxed Into "Going Social" in Big Way; Pert Kelton Gets "Horse Laugh" Over Mere Pony; Miss Kingsley on the Boulevard.

By Grace Kingsley.

Hollywood, July 4.—If Gary Cooper doesn't watch out, he will go entirely social. Sandra Shaw, his wife, has a way with her, evidently.

PERT KELTON.

Sandra, you remember, persuaded Gary to leave the San Fernando Ranch, to which they retreated soon after they were married, with Gary buying overalls and all the rest of the farmer scenery, and to move into a Beverly Hills mansion. But on the understanding that Sandra would spend Gary's first vacation time with him on a hunting trip.

Now Gary has a vacation. And are they going hunting? No. Not for anything more thrilling than clothes, for they are going back to New York. They left, indeed, Saturday. The Paramount star and his wife will go first to Long Island, where in the rarified social atmosphere they will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Shields, Mrs. Cooper's mother and stepfather, then on to visit Harry Balfe, Wall street capitalist her father, in New York.

But Gary will have his innings to a certain extent, for he will spend some time on the Shields' yacht, fishing, and hopes to be able to go as far south as Florida, to do some deep-sea angling.

Pert Kelton's Horse.

Was poor Pert Kelton's face ruddy yesterday! While riding horseback down Santa Monica boulevard she was rudely stopped by a gentleman who insisted she was riding his pony! And she was, too.

Here's how it happened. Pert had visited a friend's ranch a few days before, and on the ranch was a horse owned by a man who had not been able to pay its keep, and she was told she could have it if she would pay the bill.

She took the animal, and was riding it when detained. But it's all right now. Her friend had merely given her the wrong animal. She gave the pony back to its irate owner, and got the right equine later.

Incoming Week Promises Wide Range of Fare

Theaters Announce Stellar Personalities and Parks Profit by Weather.

The forthcoming amusement week, presumably beginning in all of the motion picture theaters but RKO Keith's on Friday, will provide an unusual variety of subject matter. Another distinguished young star of Hollywood will make her first appearance on any Washington stage, a famous bandsman will debut as a screen star, a noted radio personality will appear locally in person, and altogether the week will be as noteworthy as any the Capital ever has had made available to it in mid-summer.

"Shoot the Works," Paramount's new comedy, with Ben Bernie and "all the lads," will be the chief screen feature at the Earle Theater, beginning tomorrow, with the "Voice of Experience" holding forth on the stage in its human embodiment. In "Shoot the Works," in addition to the Ben Bernie Band, are to be seen such agile funmakers as Jack Oakie and the late Dorothy Dell, Arline Judge, Alison Skipworth, Roscoe Karns, William Frawley and Paul Cavanaugh. The supplementary stage program includes acts by Bennie Ross and Maxine Stone, in a comedy musical skit, Russian Revels; a pretentious revue, and the Gilbert Brothers in a noval presentation. Universal News and Freddie Clark's orchestral overture will complete the bill.

* * * *

Mary Brian, one of the most engaging of the younger stars of the cinema, will be seen for the first time in person on a Washington stage as chief luminary of the vaudeville bill at Loew's Fox, beginning tomorrow. The principal screen feature will be "Murder in the Private Car," in which the foremost roles are played by Charles Ruggles, Una Merkle, Mary Carlisle and Russell Hardie. Miss Brian will be assisted by Gordon and King, two clever entertainers. Other on the stage bill include the Radio Aces, mimics and impersonators of air stars; Joe Morris & Co., in songs, dances and comedy, and the acrobatic experts, the Five De Guschis. Fox Movietone News and Prof. Lampkin's overture number will complete the bill.

* * * *

The next attraction at R.K.O.-Keith's Theater, following the present Fourth of July engagement of Diana Wynyard and Clive Brook in "Let's Try Again," will be the screen version of W. Somerset Maugham's "Of Human Bondage," in which the stellar roles are portrayed by Leslie Howard and Bette Davis, supported by Frances Dee and Kay Johnson. Given the advantage of one of the most powerful of modern novels as a basis of the screen story, Mr. Howard is said to offer on of his best performances in the Maugham work and Miss Davis to excel anything she has heretofore done for the cinema. The auxiliary attractions, it is promised, will be on a par with the distinguished quality of the major feature.

* * * *

Beginning tomorrow at Loew's Columbia Theater the principal screen feature will be "Private Scandal," a combination of laughs and thrills in which the leading roles are played by ZaSu Pitts, Ned Sparks, Phillips Holmes, Mary Brian and the late Lew Cody. The story concerns the affairs of a stock broker who kills himself in order that his insurance may cover his financial losses in the market. His act precipitates many unexpected complications of both a serious and humorous nature. Short sound subjects and the Paramount Sound News will complete the program.

* * * *

"The Great Flirtation," costarring Elissa Landi and Adolphe Menjou, is announced as the foremost screen feature of the two-and-a-half-hour program to be inaugurated at the Metropolitan Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. The picture was written under the original title of "I Married an Actress," but is not in any sense the usual backstage story. The supplementary attractions will embrace a full newsreel, "A City of Contrasts," a different sort of travelogue; Ruth Etting in "Song of Fame;" Abe Lyman and his orchestra in "Tin Hat Harmony," and cartoon comedy, "Buddy of the Apes."

* * * *

"The Thin Man," one of the most engaging entertainments the screen has afforded in recent months, has so caught the public fancy that, despite high temperatures and brutal humidities, it is being held over for a second week at Loew's Palace, beginning tomorrow. The principal roles in this subject are played by William Powell and Myrna Loy, with an admirable cast in support. The supplementary features are headed by Walt Disney's "The Big Bad Wolf," a sequel to his classic, "Three Little Pigs."

* * * *

The sustained period of tropical temperatures has brought Seaside Park, down at Chesapeake Beach, Md., to the peak of its summer activity earlier than usual this year. The salt water bathing pool, the bayside ballroom and the various concessions scattered about the resort, not forgetting the long pier and miniature railway, all attract their full share of patrons. With the Fourth over, the resort is prepared to accommodate record week-end crowds.

* * * *

Glen Echo Park, Washington's free admission amusement resort high on the banks of the Potomac, is enjoying one of its banner weeks. With the Fourth of July holiday falling in midweek, Glen Echo now is looking forward to the biggest week-end attendance in its history.

Ford

NO wonder Washington is going Ford as never before! The Ford V-8 develops a generous 85 horsepower. It gives you more speed than you will probably ever want to use . . . an acceleration that whisks you out of the tightest traffic pinch.

And it is also the most economical Ford ever built. It costs little to buy . . . little to operate . . . and will give you high resale value.

You can depend on the Ford V-8 . . . on its safety, the quality of its materials, the engineering skill and years of manufacturing experience behind it.

The Ford V-8 is a car without excess and costly weight. The V-8 engine is compact . . . cylinders are in two banks of 4 each, rather than in line. Saved engine space becomes usable body space.

As for smoothness of operation, remember—only the most expensive cars use a V-type engine. The Ford is the only V-8 selling for less than $2500. Call your nearest Ford dealer for a demonstration.

Helen Jacobs Wimbledon Finalist

Defeats Joan Hartigan; Faces Dorothy Round for Crown.

Lott and Stoefen Pull Surprise in Doubles; Gain Semifinal.

By Gayle Talbot.

WIMBLEDON, England, July 5 (AP).—Helen Hull Jacobs, United States singles champion, and George M. Lott, jr., and Lester Stoefen, American doubles titlists, today kept the Stars and Stripes flying in the All-England Tennis Championships.

Miss Jacobs, matched against an old-fashioned girl, who wore long skirts tied with a big bow in the back, Joan Hartigan, of Australia, won as she pleased, 6—2, 6—2, to enter the finals of women's singles.

Lott and Stoefen, showing vastly improved form over their previous appearances, polished off the young German team of Hans Denker and H. Henkel, 6—1, 13—11, 6—3, to enter the semifinals of men's doubles.

Others Eliminated.

Otherwise, however, it was rather a sad day for the invaders. Miss Jacobs and Sarah Palfrey, former holders of the American doubles title, were eliminated in the quarter-finals of women's mixed doubles, Miss Palfrey and Lott were put out of the mixed play and Sidney B. Wood, jr., and Richard Norris Williams, American Davis Cup captain, lost out in men's doubles.

Some of the sting was taken from the defeat of Miss Jacobs and Miss Palfrey as Dorothy Andrus, of Stamford, formed half of the team which put them out, 6—3, 4—6, 6—1. Her partner was Mme. Jung Henrotin, of France.

Miss Ryan Still In.

One American representative also remained in the other semifinal of women's doubles, Elizabeth Ryan, the former Californian, advancing with her French partner and co-champion, Mme. Rene Mathieu. The defeat of Miss Palfrey and Lott left the United States without a representative in mixed play.

Miss Jacobs won with such ease over Miss Hartigan, who appeared to be taken with stage fright on her first appearance on Wimbledon's famous center court, that enthusiastic supporters predicted an easy victory over the other finalist, Dorothy Round, of England.

Miss Round barely worked out a victory over Mme. Mathieu, 6—4, 5—7, 6—3.

No New Experience.

When they take the center court Saturday for the title it will be no new experience for either. The American was a finalist in 1929 and 1932, both times bowing to Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, while Miss Round was defeated in the final by Mrs. Moody last year.

The real sunshine of the day, from the American angle, came from the fine showing of Lott and Stoefen. The big blond from California was especially potent.

The defeat of Wood and Williams at the hands of Jean Borotra and Jacques Brugnon, veteran French defending champions, 8—6, 6—2, 6—3, was not unexpected.

Neither of the men's singles finalists, Fred Perry, England's ace, and Jack Crawford, defending champion from Australia, saw action. They clash tomorrow.

Fredericksburg Golf Trophy is Won By Hale

Fredericksburg, Va., July 5 (Spl.).—"Red" Hale, the Quantico marine, won the Lafayette Bean silver trophy in the Mansfield Hall Country Club's handicap golf tournament on the club links with a score of 84—19—65.

He was one stroke ahead of L. G. Payne and Floyd Ness, who finished with scores of 88—22—66 and 86—18—66. Tacrey, Saltes and Bowling finished the 18-hole schedule in under 70 strokes.

Abe Bean, the favorite, was off his game and scored in the 80's. Hale was presented with two trophies, one a perpetual award which must remain in the club trophy case and the other to be held permanently by him.

Richmond Judge Fines Teams After Police End Homer Row

RICHMOND, Va., July 5 (AP).—A baseball field squabble had a $10 echo in police court here this morning as Justice Elben C. Folkes fined the Richmond Colts and the Norfolk Tars that amount. The fine, Justice Folkes explained, was levied not against any individual but on the two clubs as units. The fines were then suspended by the justice.

The court scene was a sequal to an acrimonious debate which only club-swinging policemen were able to end which developed on the field last night.

Denny Musser, Richmond shortstop, swatted out a homer, the ball rolling under the clubhouse steps and then out again. Manager Bill Skiff of the Tars protested the home run and was ordered ejected from the field by Umpire Ben Mitchell. In the process of ejection Percy Dawson, Tar business manager, took, witnesses said, a punch at a policeman and was blackjacked for the trouble.

Justice Folkes said that all he knew about baseball "is just what I have learned from watching it for 40 years. I've found out that when you have an argument, or when you have trouble, it takes two sides to do it. I think both clubs misbehaved.

"So, I'm not fining any individuals, but I am fining each club the sum of $10. And I'll suspend those fines and see that you behave tonight."

Prim lost two games.

Boxers Low Mentally, Says Judge; Would Jail Carnera

New York, July 5 (AP).—Most prizefighters are not very bright, Supreme Court Justice Peter Schmuck observed today.

Justice Schmuck made this statement during a court consideration of Primo Carnera's financial and amorous difficulties.

"Except one or two prizefighters who kept their money," he said, "most of them are so low in mentality that they don't know money when they see it."

The specific question which Justice Schmuck was asked to decide was what part of $88,000 deposited by the Madison Square Garden Corporation before Carnera's fight with Max Baer should be held in escrow to satisfy a $15,773 breach-of-promise judgment obtained against the deposed heavyweight boxing champion by Emelia Tersini, London waitress.

Justice Schmuck reserved decision; he thought, however, that the Italian pugilist ought to be put in jail for contempt of court.

"Put him in jail," declared Justice Schmuck after counsel for Miss Tersini told him that Carnera had not obeyed a court order to testify as to the extent of his bank accounts.

Miss Tersini's attorney moved to examine Carnera and his manager, Louis Soresi, before a referee to determine whether the two had conspired to keep the boxer's money beyond the jurisdiction of the court.

Justice Schmuck also reserved decision on this motion.

Athletics Nose Out Boston Sox, 6 to 5

Get Five Runs in First and Win in Seventh.

Boston, July 5 (AP).—After spotting the Athletics five runs in the first inning, the Boston Red Sox squared up the game in the sixth frame, only to lose out by a 6-5 margin in the seventh when three Mackmen singled consecutively to drive over the winning run.

Each team used three pitchers, "Dusty" Rhodes opening for the Sox and lasting only two-thirds of an inning. He gave two passes and singles to Bob Johnson, Frank Higgins, Charlie Berry and Al Benton. The Sox were trailing by five runs when Johnny Welch relieved Rhodes.

Benton was driven from the mound in the third frame when the Sox pushed over three tallies on a pass to Rick Ferrell, Lyn Lary's single, Max Bishop's triple and Bill Werber's line drive.

Miss Grimes, Reba Kirson In Final

Will Clash Tomorrow for District Title at Columbia Club.

Mrs. Ruth Martinez and Bobsey Turney Upset in Doubles Play.

A GRITTY, black-haired girl from Baltimore and a little Miss from Morgantown, W. Va., yesterday gained the final round of the annual Women's District Tennis Championships at Columbia Country Club.

Fighting with her back to the wall and with her opponent on the verge of victory, strong-stroking Reba Kirson of the Maryland City came from behind in the third set of a gruelling, three-hour semi-final struggle with Charlotte Darling, of Philadelphia, to pull out the match by scores of 4—6, 6—2, 8—6.

Miss Kirson, the choice to win the title for which she was the runner-up to Louise Hofsmeister, of Chicago, last year, was seeded No. 1 and Miss Darling, No. 4.

Miss Grimes Advances.

Frances Grimes, of Morgantown, seeded second, had easier going in her semifinal test, vanquishing Margaret Anderson, of Richmond, 7—5, 6—2. The West Virginia girl was pressed to take the first set, but sailed through the second with little trouble.

Miss Kirson and Miss Grimes will meet for the championship at 3 p. m. tomorrow at Columbia.

From a Washington angle, the one bright spot of yesterday's play was the partial success of Sara Moore and Mrs. Dorette Miller, the No. 2 seeded team, in their attempt to gain the final round. The Capital City pair took the first set of their match with Miss Grimes and her Washington partner, Mrs. Frances Walker Bassett, and were two games from victory in the second when rain halted play at 5—5.

Miss Moore and Mrs. Miller ran through the opening set to take it at 6—1, but met with tougher opposition in the second.

The rout of District players at the hands of visiting entrants was continued yesterday when Mrs. Ruth Martinez, Washington's No. 1 ranking player, and Mrs. Bobsey Turney, the top-seeded doubles team, bowed to Mary Cootes, Smith College champion from Alexandria, and Miss Anderson. The scores of the match, another of the series of startling upsets which the tournament has produced, were 6—4, 6—1.

Clash in Semifinal.

Miss Cootes and Miss Anderson will face the fourth seeded pair of Miss Kirson and her Washington teammate, left handed Peggy Keyser, in the semifinal today, and Mrs. Miller and Miss Moore will complete their match with Miss Grimes and Mrs. Bassett.

Because of the probable unplayable condition of the Columbia courts, tournament officials expect the courts of the Army and Navy Country Club will be obtained for today's matches.

The hard-fought base-line duel between Miss Kirson and Miss Darling occupied the spotlight of yesterday's play. The Philadelphia girl sprung something of a surprise in takin_ the first set from her favored adversary, but when Miss Kirson came back to take the second comparatively easi, it was conceded the Baltimore player was really just beginning to hit her stride.

Miss Darling, however, jumped to a 5—3 lead in the deciding chapter to have the match almost in her grasp. At this juncture Miss Kirson stormed through the next three games behind some fast, accurate driving, to lead 6—5. Miss Darling again deuced the set, but cracked in the next two games in the face of Miss Kirson's strong ground strokes.

Lefty Grove Has Tonsils Removed

Operation Last Resort to Return Hurler to His Old Form.

Rumors Persist Mack Will Take Him Back If He Fails.

BOSTON, July 5 (U.P.).—Bob (Lefty) Grove, Boston Red Sox' $125,000 bust, had set of badly infected tonsils removed today, and a few weeks should tell the fate of the most famous portside wing in a baseball.

The once mighty Grove had a record of four wins, one of them very impressive, and four losses for the season to date, but had been shelled from the mound on his few recent appearances. Today's surgery at St. Elizabeths in Brighton—the ball players' hospital—was a last resort.

Grove had three abscessed teeth extracted at the end of the spring training season and it was said that removal of the tonsils should clear up Lefty's general health, putting it squarely up to the money wing to say whether any of the famed mule kick remains, or whether it has gone the way of all flesh.

Out in Three Days.

Dr. Harry P. Cahill, a specialist, performed the operation and later it was said that a routine recovery should follow and that Grove probably would be released within three days. Rest, sunshine, and gradually increased exercise will tell the story.

The infection had reached a very advanced stage, said Dr. Edward J. (Eddie) O'Brien, jr., famous foot ball referee and Red Sox Club physician, who recommended the operation. "We have high hopes that the deceased tonsils were the source of Grove's trouble," he added.

Grove, who used to be quite a temperamental hurler until Sage Connie Mack took him in hand, has been depressed by his inability to produce, and the Red Sox, who never denied handing over $125,000 for Bob, have been suffering in silence.

Became Disgusted.

After several early season pitching failures, Grove got cranky, tomping in the dugout and throwing his glove down in disgust. Lately, however, he has contented himself with sitting on the bench or out in the bull pen, wearing a worried and wondering look.

A funny aspect of the Grove incident is that the Red Sox, rebuilt by Tom Yawkey at a tremendous cost, have been playing first-division ball without the services of the club's best potential hurler. If Grove returns to pitching health there's no telling what the Yawkey-Collins entry would do.

Rumors persisted that there is an agreement between the Sox and the Philadelphia Athletics whereby Connie Mack will take Bob back and forfeit the ante if Grove's indisposition solidifies.

"Thta is something for the Boston management to talk about," said Mack, who was in town with his A's today. "I can't say anything that may compromise them."

Phils Outslug Braves, 14-11, Aided by Homers

Philadelphia, July 5 (AP).—Coming from behind on an eight-inning rally, which included homers by Camilli and George Davis, the Phillies outslugged the Boston Braves to take a 14-to-11 victory today. McManus and Berger hit four-baggers for the Braves.

Moore's Clout Helps Giants Win, 13-7

Homer With Bases Loaded Provides Big Blow as Dodgers Bow.

BROOKLYN, July 5 (AP).—Joe Moore's pinch home run with the bases filled in the sixth inning today provided the big wallop of a 13-to-7 triumph of the world champion New York Giants over the Brooklyn Dodgers at Ebbets Field. The Dodgers were leading by five runs to three when Moore, pinch-hitting for Blondy Ryan, came to bat with two out in the sixth. Moore's mighty blow struck the right-field screen, wiped out the Dodgers' lead and started the Giants on their way to victory.

The four-base hit was made off Ray Benge, who was hanging on to a two-run advantage. Benge slipped over the third strike which Moore tipped and the pinch hitter had another chance to hit when Catcher Al Lopez dropped the ball. He connected soundly with Benge's next offering, driving it for the circuit.

That devastating blow ended Benge's tenure on the mound and he was succeeded by Watson Clark, who was given a disheartening welcome in the seventh when the Giants scored five more runs to build up a safe lead and put the game on ice.

Bunch Five Hits.

The Giants bunched five hits off Clark—all singles—in addition to drawing a pass and an error for the five runs in that inning. Walter Beck relieved Watson and finished the game. He was nicked for three hits and a run in the ninth.

The Dodgers did most of their scoring early in the game, mainly on the strength of home runs by Al Lopez and Tony Cuccinello. The Brooklynites staged a mild recovery in the ninth, tapping Herman Bell, successor to Hal Schumacher and Clydel Castelman, for four hits and two runs.

Kamm Leads 14-Hit Rout; Earnshaw, of Chisox, Pounded Hard.

CLEVELAND, July 5 (AP).—The tail-end Chicago White Sox were easy victims for the Indians here today in an 8-to-0 victory for Oral Hildebrand, who let them down with eight hits while his mates garnered 14.

Big George Earnshaw yielded 13 of the safeties, 6 of them coming in the seventh inning, when the Indians scored 6 runs. Harry Kinzy, right-hander from Texas Christian University, pitched the eighth inning for the Sox.

Willie Kamm led the Cleveland attack with two doubles and a single, while Burnett, Hale, Pytlak and Hildebrand each made two hits.

Modern Times, 8-1 Shot, Closes Fast to Win in Charles Town's Feature Race

Mare Downs Flageolet By Head

Rustic Cuba Far Back After Setting Pace to Stretch Turn.

Daily Double of $41.50 Paid on Parade On and Small Change.

By Walter Haight
(Post Staff Correspondent).

CHARLES TOWN, July 5.—Modern Times, which might be more appropriately named "Ancient Days," having reached a merry old racing age of six years, stuck her fuzzy head out just in time to win the Shenandoah Valley Jockey Club's feature race here today. Modern Times must have visited a Fountain of Youth since her last outing for she was fairly bubbling over with pep today and it was her ability to put up a sizzling finish that decided the issue. It was the well-played Flageolet which was nipped at the wire, while in the act of doing some determined finishing on his own account. Pergola was third.

Scotty Prain had the mount on Modern Times and he shared honors with the old mare. At the start of the 7-furlong test there was no indication that Modern Times or Flageolet would figure in the distribution of the purse.

Rustic Cuba Sets Pace.

Rustic Cuba, backed into favoritism, was first to show in front and was followed by Evening Chimes, a 29-1 shot. Modern Times and Flageolet were running one, two in the second division. Rustic Cuba did not shake off Evening Chimes until nearing the stretch turn. Shortly afterward the strenuous pace-setting effort cracked Rustic Cuba as Modern Times and Flageolet fairly ate up ground rounding the final bend. These two went on to battle it out and Prain managed to get the winning jump out of Modern Times at the wire.

The fact that Modern Times has almost gone to sleep while running back in recent races, made her unpopular with the ordinary run of bettors. Hence an $18.80 mutual awaited those who were lucky enough to buy the right pasteboards.

Daily doubling was indulged in at the rate of $41.50 for the usual deuce by those who had the combination of Parade On, in the first, and Small Change, in the third. The last named was one of the day's two favorites to triumph. Dutiful, in the final, was the other.

Columbus Pilot Suspended

Chicago, July 5 (AP).—Manager Ray Blades, of the Columbus club of the American Association, was indefinitely suspended and two Red Bird pitchers, Robert Kilinger and Arthur J. Teachout, fined $10 each, today by President Thomas J. Hickey for "abusing" Umpire Larry Goetz in last night's game against Toledo.

At the Post . . .

with Bill Bennings.

Charles Town, July 5.

Dear Al:

I expect to see the stalls flooded with tears when this meeting comes to an end with the running of Saturday's card. The horses have been here so long and have met each other so many times that it is a shame these friendships must end. In fact, I believe that through a series of comparative races, the worst horse here could be figured the best horse. They have beaten each other until they are dizzy. The close of the meeting will do some good. It will mean that a number of the so-called jockeys here will not have to spend the afternoon trying to keep from falling off horses. Then again, I believe the change of scenery will benefit Clocker Mike. BILL.

First race—Hurdy Gurdy has developed into a fairly dependable sort of juvenile. That last winning effort repeated here would account for the major end of the purse. Any price is a good one. Ghost Story gets in light and turned in a fast race yesterday. Jinnee is a possible surprise.

Second race—Repeal gets in this with only steadying weight and will have Eddie Smith to do the booting. Looks like a safe wager. King of Hearts seems to be a whole lot better than rated. This Play can better that last and is dangerous.

Third race—Mordrom, according to Clocker Mike, can take care of this kind. He has been brushed up with some good trials. I'm inclined to string along. Golden Castle breaks off the rail and will be in the thick of the battle. Thurnbergia has a fighting chance to take it all.

Fourth race—Jeannette K. gets a nice break in the weights, being asked to carry only 105 pounds. This way rigged she may earn a set of brackets. Launcelot and Dunair for the other awards. The last-named is going to crack down now that the meeting is almost over.

Fifth race—Golden Measure and Ada Wan figure to struggle for this purse. Both are as fit as hands can make them and ready for a hard race. Americana, a bad-legged thing, is entered. If the under-pinning should hold up this one might make it embarrassing for the top pair.

Sixth race—Worthington should take care of this field. The veteran earns his way beating this brand of horses. War General and Rube Samuelson for the rest.

Seventh race—Merry Miss, Dark Vision and Transcribe are preferred in the day's finale.

Babe Ruth to Play On Tour of World

New York, July 5 (U.P.).—Babe Ruth decided today to make his last appearance as a regular baseball player on foreign soil. He announced that he would make a world tour with the American League team in the fall.

The famous right fielder of the New York Yankees said he would accept the invitation of John Shibe to join the outfit which will go to Japan and Australia. Mrs. Ruth will accompany him. The team expects to go around the world, playing its final game in France.

Ruth figures this is his last year as a regular in organized baseball. He expects to become a player-manager next season or drop out of the game entirely. The players will leave New York right after the world series.

Chart of Charles Town Races

WEATHER, CLEAR; TRACK, FAST.

FIRST RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $250; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:31. Off at 2:34. Winner, L. C. Leith's ch. g. (2), by Dress Parade—Whiskon. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $200; second, $35; third, $15. Time, 1:03.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SCOTTY DON, $6.00, $2.80, $2.60; GIGGLY ANN, $2.40, $2.20; JANE PORTER, $2.40.

SCOTTY DON, away well, was rated behind the fast pace of GIGGLY ANN, wore her down in the stretch drive and was going away at the end. GIGGLY ANN had good early speed to take command immediately after the start, saved ground and hung on well. JANE PORTER, slow to find her best speed, moved up stoutly in the stretch.

THIRD RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $250. Three-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:26. Off at 3:27. Winner, B. Bond's b. g. (4), by Aromatic—Petty Cash. Value to winner, $200; second, $35; third, $15. Time, 1:01 4-5.

Horses	Wgt.	Post	St.	¼	½	¾	Str.	Fin.	Jockeys	Straight

WEST ACTION	116	6	6	6°	6°	6h	7	Willard		36.80

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SMALL CHANGE, $3.80, $2.40, $2.40; NAY NAY, $2.60, $2.40; HINIGHT, $5.40.

SMALL CHANGE, fastest away, took a short lead, permitted HINIGHT a short lead on the far turn, drove through on the inside and held NAY NAY safe. Latter well up throughout, closed fast on the inside. HINIGHT had good early speed, but faltered in the stretch.

DAILY DOUBLE (first and third races) PAID—$41.50.

FOURTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $250. Three-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post at 3:50. Off at 3:51. Winner, Mrs. G. C. Everhart's b. m. (6), by Dunlin—Rock Court. Trained by G. Everhart. Value to winner, $200; second, $35; third, $15. Time, 1:22 3-5

Horses	Wgt.	Post	St.	¼	½	¾	Str.	Fin.	Jockeys	Straight

LITEGATE	100	6	2	2°	6	6	6	Scarpulla		58.70

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DUTIFUL, $4.40, $3.00, $2.20. POST BRIGADE, $7.20, $2.60. PINK POST, $2.20.

DUTIFUL had good speed to take command in the run for the first turn, was rated in front throughout and was kept going to the end. POST BRIGADE lacked early speed, moved up gradually and closed with good speed. PINK POST, well up throughout, did not respond when called upon.

FIFTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $250. Three-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Winner, B. A. Hall's br. m. (6), by Pataud—Margaret Lawrence. Trained by B. F. Baker. Value to winner, $200; second, $35; third, $15. Time, 1:30.

Horses	Wgt.	Post	St.	¼	½	¾	Str.	Fin.	Jockeys	Straight

EVENING CHIMES	110	4	4	2°	2½	2°	4°	6	O'Malley	29.70

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MODERN TIMES, $18.80, $9.00, $3.80; FLAGEOLET, $5.00, $3.80; PERGOLA, $3.00.

MODERN TIMES was rated off the early pace, moved up quickly on the outside in the stretch, wore down RUSTIC CUBA and held FLAGEOLET safe. Latter, far back in the early racing, came with a belated rush in the stretch and just failed to get up. PERGOLA, rated off the early pace, saved ground on the inside, but was not good enough.

SIXTH RACE—About seven furlongs. Purse, $250; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:40½. Off at 4:41. Winner, Mrs. L. Bull's b. or br. f. (4), by Westwick—Black Wand. Trained by C. M. Feltner. Value to winner, $200; second, $35; third, $15. Time, 0:25, 0:51 1-5, 1:15 4-5, 1:29 2-5.

Horses	Wgt.	Post	St.	¼	½	¾	Str.	Fin.	Jockeys	Straight
TULEYRIES WAND	110	2	3	1½	1°	1½	1°	1h	Palumbo	$5.00

ROSEMARIE B	110	5	4	2°	3½	5	5	5	Gaither	5.40

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TULEYRIES WAND, $12.00, $3.80, $2.60; KING BIRD, $2.80, $2.40; HELENS ALIBI, $2.80.

TULEYRIES WAND had good speed to take a short lead, was rated in front throughout and, saving ground, held KING BIRD safe. The latter, reserved from the early pace, moved up stoutly nearing the far turn and, closing well, was wearing the winner down. HELENS ALIBI, slow to find his best speed, was forced to race wide for the entire trip, and lost much ground. BRAW SCOT had some early speed, but stopped badly. ROSEMARIE B. quit.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $250; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:06. Off at 5:07. Winner, Miss B. Faulconer's b. f. (4), by Transmute—Miss Dora. Trained by E. H. Gaines. Value to winner, $200; second, $35; third, $15. Time, 0:25, 0:51 2-5, 1:17, 1:44 2-5, 1:52.

TRUE JOHN	112	3	3	2h	1h	5½	7	7	Willard	7.70

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DARK STAR, $5.80, $6.00, $3.00; BOSTON IDLE, $7.40, $3.00; JUSTA FLAPPER, $2.60.

DARK STAR, slow as usual in the early running, moved up fast on the far turn to take command entering the stretch, and was in hand to the finish. BOSTON IDLE had good early speed, raced BABY CHINK into submission, gave way to the winner, but held on well. JUSTA FLAPPER raced evenly and closed well. LIGHT ACTION had no mishaps. BABY CHINK was forced to race wide. TRUE JOHN stopped badly.

Stock Market Advances After Holiday Recess

Gain in Commodities Is Aid; Trading Totals 440,466 Shares.

New York, July 5 (AP).—Sentiment in financial markets assumed a bullish tinge after the Fourth of July recess, and was translated today into moderate strength in stocks and commodities.

Brisk advances in rubber, wheat, sugar and silver were mildly stimulating factors in the speculative markets generally.

Speculation in stocks was still on a restricted scale, however, although turnover of 440,466 shares on the stock exchange was somewhat larger than in the preholiday session.

Cooler Weather Aids.

Cooler weather combined with the holiday to refresh Wall street. Traders bought stocks with the hope that a definite trend would develop as the country begins to look forward to late summer and autumn business prospects.

Leisurely buying of stocks was widely scattered through the list. The Standard Statistics average for 90 stocks was lifted 1.3 points to 78.

Industrial shares were favored but rails and utilities also fell in line with the slow advance that followed a firm opening. At the close there were numerous gains of 1 to 4 points among such issues as American Can, Chrysler, Bethlehem Steel, U. S. Steel, Hercules Powder, Johns-Manville, Westinghouse, Santa Fe, Montgomery Ward, New York Central and U. S. Smelting.

Home Stake Mining further intrenched its position as the highest-price issue on the board by spurting 9 points to 421 as directors declared an extra of $2 in addition to the regular $1 monthly dividend. Powder stocks were strong. Hercules rising 4 points to a new 1934 top at 77, while Du Pont ran up nearly 3 points.

Armour Preferred Up.

Assurance that enough proxies had been obtained to indicate success for the company's recapitalization plan lifted Armour of Illinois preferred more than a point.

Coca Cola touched a new peak for the year at 129¼, and finished 2 points higher. Cuban sugar shares were in demand on rising sugar prices and hopes for further reduction of the tariff on Cuban sugar.

Goods Markets.

New York, July 5 (A.P.).—The prolonging of the holiday by traders led to a very quiet market in cotton gray goods today. Finished cloths available for sales were sought by retail buyers, and cutters picked up any stray lots offered. Wool goods for prompt cutting are being bought in small lots more freely. Rayon markets were quiet. Rayon fabrics are beginning to sell better for fall. Silk crepe and satins were bought moderately for fall cutting. Burlaps were barely steady.

Robey's Review

Finance Economics Business

First Anniversary of the President's Message Supporting the Commodity Dollar Finds the Idea No Longer Is in General Favor.

By Ralph West Robey.

One year ago this week the American public was given the first conclusive evidence that our monetary system was to be discarded by the Administration in favor of a policy of experimentation. The evidence was contained in the message of President Roosevelt to the World Economic Conference. In this the gold standard was referred to as one of the "old fetishes of so-called international bankers" and it was stated that the "United States seeks the kind of a dollar which a generation hence will have the same purchasing power and debt-paying power as the dollar value we hope to attain in the near future." It is interesting, therefore, to see what success has been enjoyed during the intervening 12 months in reaching this goal.

First, as to raising prices: According to the index of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, with 1926 equal to 100, wholesale prices for all commodities a year ago were 65. Today they are 75. In the case of farm products the increase has been from 53 to 66; in foods from 61 to 71, and in all other commodities from 69 to 79.

Price Rise Has Been Slightly Over 15 Per Cent.

On an absolute basis, therefore, it may be said that during the year there has been a substantial increase in the price level—the general average today being a little better than 15 per cent above the end of June, 1933. There have been comparatively few years in our history in which there was an equally great increase.

This, however, is only part of the story. The Administration set as its goal in raising prices the level of 1926, or say, the average of 1923-1926. This would mean a figure of approximately 100 in the Bureau of Labor index. With the index now standing at 75, thus, we still are far short of the desired level. In a word, instead of getting a rise of 35 points there has been a rise of only 10 points.

Whether one concludes that the Administration has been successful, therefore, probably will depend upon whether one measures the success by what was desired or by comparison with earlier advances. It seems to me that since this was to be an artifically created rise, one must use the former criterion.

Have Made No Advance In Getting Ideal Dollar.

The second point made by the President in his message to the conference was the establishment of a monetary system that would assure stability of prices. There is comparatively little need to argue at length on this. Quite obviously we are no farther along the road to the ideal than we were a year ago. All we have learned about it in the meantime is that the price level depends upon something more than the gold content of the dollar—that prices can not be manipulated by varying the value of this metal. Of course, as a matter of fact, all monetary economists knew this was the case before we adopted the Warren idea as a national policy, but apparently the experiment was essential in order to convince the Administration that regulating prices is not so simple.

As one looks back over events since the statement of the President a year ago, therefore, he must be impressed by two things: First, that the Government has been unable to raise prices as it desired; secondly, that we are as far as ever from attaining the goal of a dollar of constant purchasing power. The best that can be said for the period is that it has cleared away some intellectual rubbish and hence has lessened the likelihood of further monetary experiments.

Bonds Climb Two-Tenths in Quiet Session

All Classes of Loans Hold Firm; Trading Totals $9,362,000.

New York, July 5 (AP).—All classes of loans showed further firming tendencies in today's bond market, although trading was quiet and price improvements generally confined to a fractional range.

Total trahsfers of $9,362,600, par value, about equaled Tuesday's aggregate. The Standard Statistics Co. average, for 60 domestic corporate issues advanced two-tenths of a point to 86.4.

Followers of the secondary groups apparently felt a little more cheerful after their Fourth of July holiday and most of the activity was centered on the lower and medium-priced loans, which recently have encountered profit-taking resistance.

Prime Investments Quiet.

The quiet rally in stocks may have had some stimulating effect in this sector. Prime investment bonds, most of which are around their lowest yields in several years, did little or nothing.

Among the more active gainers of fractions to around a point were some issues of Alleghany Corp., Santa Fe, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake Corp., Burlington, St. Paul, Chicago & North Western, Chile Copper, Columbia Gas, Erie, Goodyear, Hudson & Manhattan, Inland Steel, International Telephone, Kansas Gas, Lehigh Valley, Louisville & Nashville, N. Y. Central, Nickel Plate, Northern Pacific, Otis Steel, Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, and Utilities Power & Light. Colorado Fuel 5s jumped 5⅛ points on a light turnover.

Government Division.

In the U. S. Government division, Home Loan, Federal Farm Mortgage and most of the Treasurys held advances of 1-32 to 8-32 of a point. Treasury 3¼s of 1946-1949 were up 3-32 to a new high for the year.

A rally of 1 to around 2 points in German dollar obligations was about the only feature of the foreign list. The Young plan 5½s and Dawes plan 7s gained 1 and 1¾, respectively, following word that the Reich had reached an agreement with Great Britain on the continuance of interest payments on these issues. The recovery here reflected hopes that Washington might effect a similar accord. Bonds of Poland and Rumania firmed, but the Argentines were a little heavy.

Curb's Prices Pushed Higher Under Buying

Trading Lagged After Fast Start; Sales Rise to 136,000 Shares.

New York, July 5 (AP).—Prices closed moderately higher on the Curb Exchange today. Trading started at a relatively fast pace, but soon lagged. Transfers approximated 136,000 shares, compared with 102,000 Tuesday.

From the outset the buying outweighed the selling. Fractional improvement prevailed generally, but some specialties gained more. Metals did little despite the firmness of that group on the big board. Oils were also comparatively narrow.

Glen Alden Coal, a recent favorite, rose to a new high for the year, finishing at 22¼, up 1¼. In a small turnover, New York & Honduras Rosario also went into new high ground, showing a gain of 1¼ points at 46. Considerable activity appeared in shares of Armour & Co. (new) and Greyhound Corporation, at slightly higher prices.

Aluminum Co. of America rose 2 points and A. O. Smith got up 1. Firmness was displayed by Electric Bond & Share and American Gas & Electric. Commonwealth Edison rose nearly 3 in a small transfer.

Code Costs Make Stockholder Forgotten Man, Sloan Declares

By Anna P. Youngman.

In the opinion of George A. Sloan, president of the Cotton Textile Institute and chairman of the Cotton Textile Code Authority, the stockholder is the "forgotten man" of this age of industrial organization. In a statement dealing with the "First Year Under the First Code," he said, "Today we are again confronted with profitless operations closely bordering on precode conditions." Some of the reasons for this condition are revealed by Mr. Sloan's estimates of increases in costs under the code. Additions to pay rolls during the ten months since the code was put into effect have amounted to $113,000,000—an increase of 78 per cent. Hourly wage rates have advanced 67 per cent, while average working hours have declined 26 per cent.

Meantime there has been an increase of only 3 per cent in the number of bales of cotton consumed by the mills. Thus it is clear that per unit labor costs have risen at an amazing rate within the period of a few months as a result of code agreements concerning wages and hours.

Apart from wages, however, the mills have had to pay much more for raw cotton supplies. These material costs have been about 120 per cent in excess of precode averages, including the heavy processing tax, which accounts for one-half of the increase. Thus the code and the processing taxes together are estimated to have added about $19,000,000 per month to the operating expenses of the cotton mills, without allowing for increases in raw cotton prices.

Stockholder Is Victim.

If all these additions to production costs could be passed on to consumers in the form of higher prices, without loss of business, the stockholder would be no worse off than before. At every turn, however, he appears to be the victim of policies that are designed to bring relief to other classes in the community, while his right to defend his own interests is most grudgingly conceded. The stockholder is the man who pays increased wages by being forced to accept dwindling profits and reduced dividends.

Taxes to finance relief programs, and to pay the costs of agricultural curtailment programs, also fall upon him as owner of the industrial concerns that pay these levies. Mounting raw material costs, forced in advance of a rising demand for manufactured products that would sustain higher prices likewise make serious inroads upon the net operating incomes of the corporations from which the stockholder derives his returns.

Unfortunately for the stockholder, cost raising is lauded as being socially beneficial, while concerted price fixing and price raising designed to cover production costs are generally denounced as anti-social practices. Price fixing undoubtedly often results in protection of the weak and inefficient, with excessive profits for the strong business units. However, as the National City Bank states in its July review:

Higher Costs Are Blamed.

"There is no reason to believe that the price-fixing provisions of the codes have been a chief cause of the rise in prices of industrial products, for it is principally accounted for by the increased costs of labor, taxes, and raw materials. In fact the widespread introduction of price-fixing provisions in codes was due in large part to the necessity of passing on the consumer some, if not all, of these increased costs. Efforts to redistribute the National income by undertaking to raise farm prices and wages without making allowance for the resultant shrinkage in industrial profits inevitably miscarry.

"The problem of the cotton textile industry presents a typical, although especially striking illustration of the problems created by attempts to force the pace of business expansion by raising production costs in advance of an expansion of consumer demand capable of supporting larger scales at higher values.

Apart from the specific causes of anxiety cited by Mr. Sloan, every industry, as he says, feels the effect of other, more or less intangible obstacles to improvement, such as lack of confidence in the trend of legislation, and uncertainty regarding future monetary policy. Finally, the official inclination to underrate the institutional value of the business man—if such it can be called—gives rise to a feeling of anxiety. That has been enhanced by Congressional predilection for a type of class legislation which minimizes the importance of the profit motive in industry.

Commodity Prices Decline After Advances

Reactions in Grain, Flour and Coffee Pull Market Downward.

New York, July 5.—While the Dun & Bradstreet daily weighted index of wholesale commodity prices broke through the high point of last July, reaching 113.68 on June 19, subsequent reactions in grains, flour, butter, silk, rubber, lard and coffee caused a drop in the index to 112.70 on June 25, as against 113.44 a week previous, a loss of .74 points.

However, the general tone was steady, with sugar reaching new high levels, and cotton, silver, tin, hogs, steers and lambs furnishing outstanding examples of strength.

Price changes in the regular weekly compilation of wholesale prices, prepared by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., also reflect a check in the advancing trend of the previous two weeks. Advances in the current week numbered only 23, against 29 the week before, while declines totaled 26, against 22 last week.

Number of Declines.

In the corresponding week of 1933, advances and declines were 57 and 56, respectively.

Foodstuffs, generally, held rather steady, with advances numbering 16, the same as the preceding week, and declines totaling 15, or 3 more than last week.

Coffee prices declined more than one-half cent a pound to the levels obtaining last February. This was due largely to lack of exchange support from Brazil, coupled with extensive hedge selling.

Spot demand is only fair, but a hopeful feature is the fact that the visible supply of Brazilian coffee for the United States is now only 797,000 bags, or less than a month's supply. Butter was relatively steady at slightly lower levels than last week, the decline bringing out a broader supporting movement.

Some offerings of Danish butter, scheduled to arrive next week, have been made. Egg receipts at leading markets were fairly liberal for the season, and the movement into storage is reported heavier than last year, but speculative buying continues limited. White and mixed-colored varieties rose ¼ to ½ cents, while brown eggs were steady.

Livestock Prices Rise.

Although receipts of live stock at leading markets were somewhat larger than last week, prices of all classes continued to advance. Hogs reached the highest since last October, closing at $4.90 per hundred weight, in contrast with $4.60 a year ago.

The cattle market was active and higher, and reached the highest levels of the year, while lambs closed 25 cents higher and sheep remained firm at the previous quotations.

With the exception of lard, which declined some 23 points for the week, pork products generally showed particular strength. Tallow and mess pork were slightly higher, while hams gained ½ cent and bacon advanced a full cent.

Wool Market.

Boston, July 5 (A.P.). (U. S. Dept. of Agri.).—A little business was closed recently on strictly combing 56s, ¾ blood Ohio and similar fleeces. Most sales in the past few days were at 33 cents in the grease. Mills were trying to buy at 32 cents, but not very much strictly combing staple bright wool was available at this figure. Little was done on strictly combing 48s, 50s, ½ blood fleeces, which were quoted at 31@32 cents in the grease for graded lines.

Hops Barely Steady.

New York, July 5 (A.P.).—HOPS—Barely steady. Pacific Coast, 1933, prime to choice, 34@35; medium to prime, 32@34; 1932, prime to choice, 24@27; medium to prime, 22@24.

Foreign Markets.

(Associated Press.)

London—Trading was more cheerful on the stock exchange today, the feature being the strength in German bonds following the signing of the debt agreement. Rubber and tin shares were better following advances in those commodities. Transatlantic issues were steady and gold mines were firm. The closing tone was firmer.

Paris—Quotations were firm in a quiet session on the bourse today. Rubber and metal shares and rentes made slight gains. The closing was firm.

Berlin—The conclusion of the London transfer agreement toned up the bourse, which responded with a general upward trend. Later the market became quieter and irregular, but the closing was sustained.

The Markets at a Glance

What the Stock Market Did.

	Thurs.	Tues.
Advances	333	154
Declines	117	245
Unchanged	138	168
Total issues	588	567

Stocks—Prices were increased after the holiday recess. The average advance was 1.3 points. Turnover volume totaled 440,466 shares.

Bonds—The market advanced two-tenths of a point in a quiet session. All classes of loans showed further firming tendencies. Sales volume totaled $9,362,000.

Curb—Prices were pushed higher under buying. Trading started at a fast pace, but soon lagged. Transfers increased to 136,000 shares.

Wheat—Stimulated by unlooked-for strength from the Liverpool market, wheat prices scored gains. July wheat closed at 89⅛; September at 90. Oats were higher. Corn unchanged.

Cotton—Prices were pushed lower after an early advance. October sold at 12.27. The general market was unchanged to 2 points lower. July closed at 12.07.

Rubber—Crude rubber market closed steady, 44 to 57 points higher. July sold at 14.71; September at 14.97 to 14.99.

Sugar—Raw was unchanged at 3.15; refined sold at 4.75.

Coffee—Spot coffee was quiet. Santos No. 4 sold at 9¼; Rio No. 7 at 10½.

Silver—Bar silver was steady. It sold in New York ⅛ higher, at 46¾ cents per ounce. It sold in London 3-16 higher, at 20⅞ pence.

Gold—Bar gold sold in London at 137 shillings and 7 pence.

Dollar—The United States dollar was slightly higher on foreign exchanges. It stood in New York, with reference to other currencies, at $5.03⅜ to the English pound; 6.59⅛ cents to the French franc, and 38.37 cents to the German mark.

Trade Trends.

(Associated Press.)

Railroad equipment—Carriers' demands have fallen off sharply during the last few months, but manufacturers are looking for a revival before the end of the year on the basis of current inquiries for an estimated 6,000 to 8,000 freight cars.

Construction—Contract awards for the week represent only a four-day period on account of the July 4 holiday and are the lowest of any week this year at $13,536,000, says the Engineering News-Record.

Steel—Mill operations next week, says the American Metal Market, should show a substantial rebound from the low rate occasioned by the July 4 holiday, "while in the following week the real pace will probably be disclosed."

Shoes—Trade reports indicate that some of the larger manufacturers are considering price reductions of 10 to 20 cents a pair.

Hardware—Wholesale trade in June was maintained around the levels of May and June, 1933, according to Hardware Age. Electric refrigerator sales have been breaking records this season and sales of paint are ahead of last year, says the publication.

U. S. Treasury Receipts.

Cotton Prices Decline After Early Advance

July Closes at 12.07 as Market Is Unchanged to 2 Points Off.

New York, July 5 (AP).—Cotton slipped back after an early advance today. October contracts after selling up 12.39 at the start, declined to 12.27 in the late trading and closed at that figure, with the general market finishing barely steady, net unchanged to 2 points lower.

Opening prices were 8 to 11 points higher in response to relatively firm Liverpool cables and reports of continued dry, hot weather in the Southwest. Buying orders were supplied by the trade, commission houses and Wall street sources on expectation of increasing complaints of crop deterioration from the Southwest.

Prices turned easier after publication of the weekly weather report which indicated that the Texas crop was holding up well considering the scanty supply of moisture.

After selling off some 6 or 7 points from the best, prices steadied temporarily on buying encouraged by the rising trend of the stock and grain markets, but the demand was comparatively limited and prices eased near the close under liquidation. July sold off to 12.07 and January to 12.49, with closing quotations at the lowest figures of the day.

Liverpool was reported a buyer of January contracts on differences during the early trading, but on the whole there were comparatively few orders from abroad.

Exports today, 16,147, making 7,423,757 so far this season. Port receipts, 1,356. U. S. port stocks, 2,527,065.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was quiet but steady today, closing net unchanged to 2 points higher. Firmness of cotton and other commodities appeared to have a favorable influence, and crude oil was steady with offerings light.

Sales totaled 12 contracts. Bleachable spot, nominal; July closed, 5.78; September, 5.81; October, 5.87; December, 6.08; January, 6.11.

The Dollar Abroad

(Associated Press.)

Foreign exchanges turned lower against the dollar yesterday, led by pound sterling.

The latter dipped 1½ cents in New York to $5.04⅞. The dollar was ⅛ a cent higher in London at 3.05½ to the pound.

The price of gold in London gained 2 pence at 137 shillings 7 pence a fine ounce (equivalent to $34.80). Bars valued at $1,972,776 were purchased.

French francs eased .00¼ of a cent in New York to 6.59½ cents. The dollar held at the equivalent of that figure in the Paris trading.

Italian lire, Swiss francs and Canadian dollars showed resistance to the down trend.

At the closing in New York for French francs, the dollar was valued at a premium of .58 of a cent over par, compared with .54 of a cent on Tuesday and with .58 of a cent a month ago.

Bar Silver Advances ⅛ to 46¾ Per Ounce

New York, July 5 (AP).—Bar silver advanced ⅛ of a cent an ounce, to 46¾ cents, today to equal its 1934 high which was made in February. Previous to that the metal had not sold that high since 1930, when it reached 46⅞ cents.

Silver futures, advanced slightly in quiet trading on the commodity exchange. Some of the active months showed gains averaging around one-tenth of a cent an ounce.

Farmers Get First Loans in Drought Areas

Advances to Sufferers Are Part of $525,000,000 Relief Fund.

Farmers and stockmen in North and South Dakota and other primary drought areas today (July 3) received the first proceeds of loans from the recently appropriated relief fund to purchase feed for livestock, according to a statement just made here by Gov. W. I. Myers, of the Farm Credit Administration.

The loans are being made from a part of the $525,000,000 emergency relief fund appropriated in the act of Congress approved June 19, 1934.

Gov. Myers said that the first disbursements from the fund were made this morning when 150 checks were mailed out by the Minneapolis office, going to borrowers in the Dakotas, Minnesota and Wisconsin, and that the other emergency crop loan offices operating in the primary drought areas were receiving applications for the loans and making immediate disbursements to approved borrowers.

Drought Areas' Extent.

The primary drought areas cover, besides the Dakotas, parts of Minnesota, Wisconsin, Montana, Wyoming, Oregon, Texas, Arizona, Colorado, New Mexico, Nevada, California, Utah and one or two counties in several other States.

Thus, within two weeks after the drought relief measure was approved, appropriating funds to make special loans to purchase feed for live stock and for the purpose of growing forage crops in the drought-stricken areas, the program of the Farm Credit Administration for making the loans available has been placed in operation and farmers and stockmen are obtaining cash loans.

Applications for the loans, which are being received from farmers and stockmen who are threatened with loss of their stock because of the drought and who are unable to obtain credit from other sources, have begun to come in from most of the drought areas, and according to Gov. Myers no efforts are being spared to get out the loans immediately to purchase feed, especially for cattle, which in some areas are in danger of starvation.

Promissory notes of farmers are taken as the only evidence of indebtedness of the farmers at the time the first installment loan is made. The farmer also furnishes from his creditors a nondisturbance agreement signed by the chattel mortgage lienholders. Thus, delay in examining security is avoided.

Need First Consideration.

The applicant's need for feed is the first consideration right now. All loans are being advanced in monthly payments and there will be time to check up before the second installments are needed.

The loans are being handled by the emergency crop loan offices under the Farm Credit Administration. Applications are received by the local county committees already established throughout the drought areas and forwarded to the regional offices at Minneapolis, Salt Lake City and Dallas, Tex. the checks being mailed directly from these offices to the borrowers.

Largest Banks Gain Deposits; Loans Lower

New York, July 5 (AP).—The Chase National Bank and the National City Bank, the country's largest commercial banks, report higher deposits and holdings of Government securities, but lower volumes of loans outstanding in their condition statements for June 30, as compared with March 31.

In line with general trends of bank credit, the Chase National has more than doubled its holdings of Government securities in the past year and has greatly increased its cash and Federal Reserve funds.

"Governments" held by the institution total $417,366,000, compared with $319,600,000 at the end of March and $207,955,000 on June 30, 1933. Cash on hand and at the reserve bank and other banks amounts to $412,911,000, against $393,072,000 three months ago and $357,374,000 a year ago.

The Chase loans, discounts and bankers' acceptances have dropped to $621,566,000 from $713,247,000 in March and $779,755,000 a year ago. Capital and surplus of the bank show no change from March, while undivided profits have grown to $16,521,000 from $11,375,000 in the quarter.

The City Bank's figures show a somewhat smaller swing from loans to Government securities. The latter stand at $304,631,000, compared with $247,929,000 three months ago and $252,383,000 a year ago. Cash on hand and due from banks totals $358,390,000, against $364,154,000 in March and $334,165,000 at the end of the 1933 period.

Loans, discounts and acceptances of the National City amount to $490,367,000, against $511,790,000 at the end of March and $559,911,000 a year ago. With capital and surplus unchanged, undivided profits have increased to $8,018,666 from $7,612,056 at the end of March.

German Import Duties.

A German government decree has reduced the import duties on fodder beans and peas, lupines, vetches, green fodder, hay, dried clover, peanut shells, also ground and similar fodder, according to a cablegram received in the Department of Commerce from Acting Commercial Attache Douglas Miller, Berlin.

Export Duties Imposed.

A German government decree has imposed export duties on various feedstuffs, including beans, peas, hay, potato flakes, fish meal, bran and oil cakes, according to a cablegram received in the Department of Commerce from Acting Commercial Attache Douglas Miller, Berlin.

Harrisonburg to Play Two Week-End Games

Harrisonburg, Va., July 5 (Spl.).—The first-place Harrisonburg team in the Valley League faces two games this week-end, and has a good opportunity to increase its lead over the second-place Charlottesville nine.

The league's week-end schedule:
Saturday—Culpeper at Harrisonburg; New Market at Woodstock.
Sunday—Charlottesville at New Market; Harrisonburg at Woodstock.

League Standings.

	W.	L.	Pct.
Harrisonburg	8	4	.667
Charlottesville	6	3	.667

Burton Convalescing.

Allen Burton, coprofessional at Army and Navy Country Club, is at Georgetown Hospital recuperating from an appendicitis operation he underwent Monday. The 22-year-old golf pro, who shares the duties with his younger brother, Danny, is expected to remain in the hospital another week.

Virginia Body Rejects Dempsey Referee Plan

Richmond, July 5 (Spl.).—Walter Heenan, local fight promoter, today said the Virginia commission has turned thumbs down on negotiations to bring Jack Dempsey here to referee on July 16.

Heenan went to New York the other day and in a conference with the former champion agreed to terms for a visit here. Then Heenan went to the commission and made his plea, but the ring rulers, while sympathetic, said the State law was clear, and that none other than Virginia residents could referee boxing.

Tilghman Splits Two.

Easton, Md., July 5 (Spl.).—The Twelfth Ward team of Wilmington, Del., and Tilghman played two games of ball yesterday. The morning game was played at Tilghman and Wilmington shut out Tilghman, 4 to 0. The afternoon game was played here and Tilghman won, 6 to 2.

Nesbit Gelding Wins Twice at Culpeper

Takes Feature Challenge Cup; Also Cops in Corinthian Class.

CULPEPER, Va., July 5 (Spl.).—Cheers from the grandstand greeted Miss Elizabeth Nesbit as she pocketed the coveted prize of the Culpeper Show, the Silver Challenge Plate offered for hunter championship, awarded to her thoroughbred chestnut gelding, Cathode Ray, outstanding horse of the 1934 exhibit.

The most colorful event of the day, also won by Cathode Ray, was the Corinthian class with riders in hunting colors and bowlers, in which the almost perfectly matched exhibits made the contest close. Miss Fay Engalls rode her Jumping Jack and Miss Sue Engalls was on Silver Top. Miss Connie Moore rode Gray Stone and Miss Margaret Cotter rode Rooksie, while there were also entries from Edgewood Farm and from Mrs. Allan Potts' Happy Creek Stables.

Jumping Ponies Feature.

The jumping ponies afforded interest in the early exhibits, with Colbert's Little Liza Jane proving a winner in both pony classes. The crowning touch of the closing day was the steeplechase, in which Fluttering came to victory over a field of six, winning in the same race as on first day.

Class 2. Yearling colts—Won by E. L. Redmond entry.
Class 5. Ponies, 12¼ hands and under, ridden by children under 12 years—Won by Little Liza Jane, L. R. Colbert; second, Nymph, Miss Peggy Keith Hamilton.
Jumping ponies—Won by Little Liza Jane, L. R. Colbert.
Class 10. Road hacks, shown at walk, trot, gallop and over one jump—Won by Brown Bryan, agency E. J. Grothaighs; second, Dark Rogue E. L. Redmond; third, Skyrocket, L. R. Colbert.
Class 6. Saddle horses, open to all—Won by Gulf Breeze, Miss Marjorie Lee McLeod; second, Jack Lightning, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Owen; third, Sporty McGinty, Redewood Farm.
Class 17. Ladies' hunters; shown over 4-foot jumps, ridden by ladies—Won by Cathode Ray, Miss Elizabeth Nesbit; second, Jumping Jack, Miss Fay Engals; third, Skyrocket, L. R. Colbert.
Class 19. Free-for-all handicap; 3-year-olds shown over 3½-foot jumps, green horses, 4 feet and blue ribbonener over 4½ feet; 23 entries—Won by Lucky Find, L. R. Colbert; second, Annie, Mrs. James C. Hamilton; third, Graystone, L. R. Colbert.
Class 18. Corinthian class, open to all hunters. Ridden in hunting colors in and out 21 fest. 4 feet in and 4 feet out—Won by Cathode Ray, Miss Elizabeth Nesbit; second, Red Port, Edgewood Farm; third, Nesbit, Mrs. Allen Potts.
Class 22. Hunter championship. The Culpeper Challenge Plate—Won by winner—Won by Cathode Ray, Miss Nesbit. (Won in 1932 by Clearanfast, Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Plummer; in 1933 by Holly, E. L. Redmon.)

Races.

First race—Half mile; open to all; $100 purse to winners; same in all flat races. Won by Kenbridge, C. H. Fitzgerald; second, Francis Cooper, W. W. Hains; third, High Lady, Mrs. A. S. Bowman.
Second race—One mile; open to all. Won by Charley J. B. C. W. Byers; second, Infatuation, Mrs. Helen Phillips; third, Saratoga Chip, Mrs. William Anderson.
Third race—Three-fourths mile. Won by Schley B., Mrs. A. S. Bowman; second, Willie Billy, M. R. Waugh; third, Jesse, Oscar Beach.
Fourth race—Half mile. Won by Kentucky Son, M. T. Rodecap; second, Argyll, J. D. Swann; third, Moreover, A. Holloway.
Steeplechase—Two and one-half miles over jumps, once around half-mile track, under rules of National Steeplechase and Hunt Association. Won by Fluttering, M. H. Everhart; second, Cautious Lena, Oscar Beach; third, Radio, Wilmer Kearns.

Gehrig Slams Pair As Yanks Top Nats

Washington players were resting their tired brogans on the bench when the boys plugged Mr. Broaca. Buddy's sock was dealt in the seventh inning and Stone's in the ninth.

Score in First Inning.

The Nats' first run was delivered by Heinie Manush in the first inning, when he batted a single to right field while Stone, who preceded him with a double to the same spot, ankled home.

Broaca was in command until the fifth, when my fat friend, Ruth, pulled his first trick of the afternoon.

Myer started an apparent rally with a single to center with one out. Stone popped out to Dickey, bringing Heinie up. Manush looked over three pitches, picked on the fourth and drilled it into the right-field corner, where to all intents and purposes it should have been no worse than a double.

Ruth Looks Good.

But the old St. Mary's boy hustled his hulking frame across the greensward, and with the dainty motion of flicking off a gnat, robbed a Nat. Again in the seventh the Babe urged his aging underpinning into something more than a trot to gyp Joe Cronin out of a two-bagger at least. Two were out, Myer had blasted his homer, and Stone was on first, the result of a single to right, when Ruth vetoed Joe's motion to add a figure or so to Washington's portion of the scoreboard with his sparkling catch. The old boy looked real good on it.

Travis busted up a Washington rally in the third by forcing Cronin at second for the third out with Buddy Myer perched on third. In the sixth it was Luke Sewell who ruined the works. He tapped an expectant uprising on the skull with a roller to Heffner, with Travis on second and Kress on first. Both had singled.

It was that way all afternoon. I am borne out by the left-on-base figures, which show that no fewer than ten citizens of the Capital City saw New York from the bases during the game.

First Clout in Third.

Gehrig's first tee shot brought the home team from behind a one-run deficit into a commandng lead in inning No. 3. Walter Stewart was on the mound at the time and getting along fairly decently until Crosetti singled over second base and went to second on Saltzgaver's blow over shortstop. Stewart then proceeded to add real interest to the situation by walking Ruth. What happened after that has gone before—over the fence by Gehrig.

Two additional Yank runs got on the scoreboard in the sixth after Saltzgaver singled and Gehrig gave an encore of his home run act.

Bob Kline, the biggest man in baseball, went in to pitch the seventh, but was not big enough to prevent another pair of New Yorkers from crossing the plate. Alex McColl went through the process of finishing up the game and escaped with one hit, but no runs, against his record.

The teams will resume tomorrow, and Earl Whitehill will be tossed upon the sacrificial mound by the Nats.

Euel Moore to Phils.

Philadelphia, July 5 (AP).—The Philadelphia National League Club today acquired Euel Moore, right-handed pitcher, from the Baltimore club of the International League. Moore was obtained in exchange for George Darrow, pitcher; Irvine Jefferies, second baseman, and an unannounced sum of money.

BLACKIE BEAR
By D. SAM COX

An "Eagle" Nearly Got the Children

Nearly all of the chestnut trees about Mountain House were on the other side of Lake Bettie, and Benny and Jenny never had been over there, so they didn't know much about chestnuts. They had seen a few that the wind had blown over into the yard, but they always had those awful stickers all over them, and so the children had let them alone.

But Chatter Squirrel and Jocko Monkey had gotten them all in the notion to gather a lot of them, and let Bettie roast them, and so soon after breakfast they were all getting buckets and baskets into the boat to row across the lake to the big trees on the other side. Of course, Benny and Jenny had to go, for they expected to have lots of fun.

Chatter Squirrel was sure enough tickled when he got over there and saw the ground just covered with the big ripe chestnuts, and trees and trees full of others that hadn't fallen. And he chattered a lot about them while he ran around and picked them up and put them in the baskets. He knew so well how to handle them that the stickers didn't bother his little feet at all, but Benny and Jenny were kept busy pulling them out of each other's paws, till they learned how to get the nuts without getting all stuck up.

Chatter Squirrel wasn't satisfied to stay down and pick up the nuts that were on the ground, and so he climbed up a tree and threw a lot more down.

That looked like a lot of fun to the children, so they thought they would climb a tree, too. They climbed up a pretty big tree that had limbs that went out over the lake, and after they had thrown down chestnuts till their paws were sore from the stickers, they thought they would stop gathering chustnuts and would just play around in the big tree.

It wasn't long before they had both crawled out on a big limb, and were away out over the water, when they saw a big shadow fall on them. They looked up to see what made the shadow, and then they both "woofed" and turned loose the limb and fell "splash" into the water. As they were falling they both screamed, "Eagle! Eagle!"

Blackie and the others looked up to see the "eagle," and they saw a big black buzzard just gliding down over the lake and going across to the other side.

He had a good laugh at the children, but he knew they remembered the story about the sure-enough eagle that came down after him, and so he was to blame for their "ducking." He was pretty nice to them, and he and Jocko jumped in to help them out of the water.

Then Jocko took them into the boat and rowed them back home, where Bettie soon had them dried off and lying out in the sun.

OFFICIAL NOTICES

OFFICE OF THE COMMISSIONERS OF the District of Columbia, June 22, 1934. Notice is hereby given that a hearing will be held by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia on June 6, 1934, in the matter of closing certain streets hereinafter described, and the said Commissioners being satisfied as to the equity, justice and advisability of said closings, and that said closings are for the public interest and not detrimental to the interests of abutting owners, notice is hereby given that the said Commissioners have prepared the following order, One of Series No. 1934, to the provisions of Public Act No. 307, approved December 15, 1932, the street area as shown in green on plats filed in the office of the Surveyor of the District of Columbia, and numbered as Maps 1837, 1838 and 1839, is hereby ordered closed, same to take effect on and after August 2, 1934, the title to said land comprised in said area so closed to revert to the abutting property owners, as shown on said maps; the said street area hereby ordered closed to be used for the purposes: (1) Closing part of Utah avenue n. w., south of Rittenhouse street, abutting on lots 46 to 52, square 2319, and being that part of said Utah avenue north of the extension of the westerly boundary of parcel 61/69 (Episcopal Home for Children). (2) Closing part of Sterrett place n. w. west of Reno road and providing for a dedication in connection with the same, to adjust the street lines and provide for a change in the course of said Sterrett place. (3) Closing part of 8th place n. w., south of Quincy street, abutting on lot 811, square 2901 (known as U. S. Reservation No. 486), and being that part of said 8th place lying south of the extension of the south line of a public alley 15 feet wide, running east and west in square 2901. Any and all parties interested must file objections to said closings in writing before the effective date of above order; otherwise said order shall become effective August 2, 1934, as aforesaid, and said street area shall on and after said date become closed in accordance with the provisions of said act.

Walt Mason, Himself

Against Odds.

When I recall how danger lurks in every path a man may take, and how the deadly microbe works its fell designs through pie and cake, it seems a strange and wondrous fact that man can such a battle wage, and sometimes go along intact until he dies of wintry age. The old-time doctors used to sing the praises of the babbling brooks; the waters of a shady spring would beat all nostrums in the books. But now we know that one who'd sip from such a spring has little sense; he'll soon be in the sexton's grip, who'll plant him by the honeyyard fence. Long since the dun cow's milk supplied by dairymen had quite a boom; but now unless it's boiled and fried and pasteurized its name is doom. I read hygienic magazines, and in them find, to my surprise, that in the humble can of beans a frightful death in ambush lies. There's danger in the egg that's poached, there's peril in the egg that's boiled, and every hour we are approached by doom that can't be always foiled. There's something deadly, something wrong wherever we may toe the line; the wonder is we last so long before we must take in our sign.

THE BUNGLE FAMILY — Happiness — By Harry J. Tuthill

THERE GOES A MAN WHO WALKS A LITTLE LIKE A SAILOR.
OH EVERYTHING I SEE REMINDS ME OF THAT WONDERFUL CRUISE ON MONTGOMERY EL DORADO'S YACHT. HA! AT LAST THIS FAMILY ISN'T JUST THE PEOPLE HELD BACK BY THE POLICE AT SOME SOCIAL BLOW-OUT.
WHAT A CHANCE FOR PEGGY TO BECOME ENGAGED TO THAT SPLENDID MAN.
MOONLIGHT EVENINGS WITH THE WAVES SWISHING AGAINST THE SIDE OF A YACHT IS EXACTLY WHAT SHE NEEDS TO PROVE THAT GOOD CATCHES DON'T GROW ON TREES.
MRS. MONTGOMERY EL DORADO! CARS, HOMES, ODDLES OF MONEY. EVERYTHING WORTH WHILE.
WHAT A RELIEF IT WILL BE TO GET HER MARRIED BEFORE SHE BEGINS TO SHOW MORE OF THAT WASHED-OUT LOOK ALL THOSE BUNGLE GIRLS GET.
AND WHAT A BITTER PILL ALL THIS IS TO THOSE UPPISH WOMEN WHO ELBOWED ME OUT OF THAT NICE FRIDAY CLUB. HA HA!
YES SIR, EVERYTHING COMES TO HIM....OR HER, WHO WAITS.
SAILING, SAILING, OVER THE BOUNDING MAIN!

DYNAMITE IS IN THE RING FOR THE BIG FIGHT WITH BATTLING BLITZEN-DYNAMITE KNOWS OF THE KIDNAPPERS' THREAT AGAINST JOE UNLESS HE LETS BLITZEN WIN-AND ALSO UNLESS HE KEEPS THE WHOLE MATTER A SECRET
FOR THE LOVE O'MIKE, DYNAMITE!-WHERE'S JOE? WHAT'S ALL THA MYSTERY?
THERE AIN'T ANY MYSTERY, PETE-JOE'S JUST GONNA BE LATE-THAT'S ALL
BUT IT AIN'T NATCHERL! YOU FIGHTIN' WIT' OUT JOE IN YER CORNER-SOMETHIN'S WRONG-WOT IS IT?
FORGET IT, PETE-AN' SHUT UP!
O.K. BUT FLATTEN THIS TRAMP QUICK, WILL YA? I GOTTA LOT MORE QUESTIONS TA ASK
OUT O' THE RING, PETE! THERE'S THE WARNIN' WHISTLE CLANG!

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY — By Clifford McBride

GOLLY, LOOKS LIKE SOMEBODY'S OUT IN THE LAKE WAVING FOR HELP/ QUICK, NAPOLEON, MAYBE WE CAN SAVE HIM!

BY HICKORY! YOU KIN THANK THAT DOG O' YORES FER ME MISTER/ I'VE BEEN PUTTIN' OFF GOIN' OUT THERE AN' DRAGGIN' IN THAT PET SCARECROW O' MINE, EVER SINCE THE LAKE ROSE AN' FLOODED MY LAND LAST FALL!

DIXIE DUGAN — Now Comes the Dawn — By J. P. McEvoy and J. H. Striebel

LAUGHING, DR. BROWN ALLAYS THE GIRLS' FEARS ABOUT THE "SPECTRE" AS WITH A QUICK MOVEMENT HE TURNS UPSIDE DOWN-A PILLOWCASE—AND OUT POPS A FRIGHTENED—CAT
THEN—AS A DOOR SLAMS ABOVE, HE DASHES QUICKLY UP THE STAIRS—
THE SOUND OF SCUFFLING IS HEARD AND—SO IT'S YOU—YOU RASCAL HELP HELP!
SAY "UNCLE!"
WHY, IT'S EDGIE—
ALL RIGHT—HA-HA UNCLE! UNCLE! UNCLE!! ONLY LET GO OF MY EAR!

THE GUMPS — A Prey to the Elements

SO THAT UNCLE OF YOURS IS WORTH A MILLION DOLLARS, EH? I SUPPOSE HE MADE IT ON THE STOCK MARKET— I'D LIKE TO TAKE A LITTLE CHANCE AT THAT MYSELF— I WAS ALWAYS LUCKY.
NO MAN EVER GOT RICH HIDING HIS MONEY IN A TEA-KETTLE- IT'S ALL DONE BY SPECULATING- I'LL BET I COULD TAKE A COUPLE THOUSAND DOLLARS DOWN TO THE STOCK EXCHANGE AND MAKE A MILLION IN A FEW WEEKS-
YOU A MILLIONAIRE! YOU'D LAST AS LONG DOWN THERE AS A MORNING GLORY- DO YOU KNOW WHAT THE STATISTICS SHOW- THAT THIRTY-SEVEN MEN ARE STRUCK BY LIGHTNING FOR EVERY ONE THAT GETS TO BE A MILLIONAIRE-
TAKE MY TIP- YOU'D BETTER KEEP OUT OF THOSE THUNDER-SHOWERS-

DICK TRACY — The Cautious Caller

PASSING THE GARAGE, SCOTTY ORDERS THE CAB DRIVER TO DRIVE AROUND THE CORNER AND STOP ON A SIDE STREET..
HERE YOU ARE, OLD CHAPPIE!
TAXI
I'LL SIZE UP THE PLACE FROM THE REAR FIRST. ONE SHOULD GET ACQUAINTED WITH ALL THE EXITS OF A BUILDING BEFORE ENTERING.
THAT BIRD IS ONE PERSON I WANT OUT OF THE WAY! HE'S HECKLED ME ALL MY LIFE. CAN YOU SEE 'IM IN THE PERISCOPE, STEVE?
YEAH. HE'S JUST SNOOPING AROUND THE BACK HERE.
